Senator's Own Speeches, He Says, Give Proof of the Inconsistency He Asked.

VARIED SUPPORT PICTURED

Cox Says Harding Should Tell Where He Stands on League or Admit He Is an Impostor.

CROWD OUT AT BALTIMORE

Armory Where Harding Spoke Is Packed—Morning Speech to Wilmington Crowd.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 21.—Governor Cox, speaking before a great audience in the armory here tonight, announced that he accepted, in the name of the American people, the Presidency of the United States as the reward, offered by Senator Harding, for proof of his inconsistency on the League of Nations issue.

The crowd laughed and cheered. Governor Cox then recited his evidence of the fourteen "wabbles" which he charged Senator Harding has already made on the League of Nations in an effort to hold all factions of his party together. He quoted from speeches by Harding as proof of "inconsistency," and said the Senator's latest outburst, at Jackson, Ohio, was apparently one of those "unfortunate" slips made whenever he got away for a few minutes from "his guards" and "censors" who surrounded the "front porch."

As further proof of Harding's inconsistency Governor Cox called attention to the fact that in a single issue of a Philadelphia newspaper today Senator Johnson, a treaty "irreconcilable," was represented as saying that "Harding Rejected League," while headlines over the report of a meeting addressed by ex-President Taft read, "Harding Favors League, Says Taft."

"It is the duty of Senator Harding," exclaimed Governor Cox, "to advise the American people frankly who is right—Johnson or Taft. If he fails to do it, he may be regarded as an impostor, deliberately seeking to deceive the American people."

When the applause subsided Governor Cox said that efforts had been made by Harding and the group of leaders who were sticking to him, not only to deceive the people about Harding's attitude, but also to mislead the people by false statements concerning the position which he (Cox) had taken. They were attempting, Governor Cox said, to tell the people that he was unalterably opposed to reservations and that his success at the polls would not be accepted as a mandate of the people.

This League with Reservations or None.

"There can be no doubt as to the result if I am elected," said Governor Cox. "This is a referendum on the League of Nations, and at the election the will of the people will have been expressed.

"I have repeatedly stated that it will be my intention to sit down immediately with the members of the Senate; that I would accept reservations from any source whatever that were sincerely offered in helpfulness; that we would consult with President Wilson, with Judge Taft, with Elihu Root and others who are equipped to aid, and that face to face and man to man with our cards on the table, we would work out a result, without partisan considerations, which would permit America to take her place in the League of Nations of the world and in the only association of nations, designed to prevent war, that is possible.

"It is this League with reservations or it is no League—and it is this League with reservations that I favor going into. My election will not be viewed in any sense as a partisan result, but as a victory for a principle. It is my earnest hope that the eminent Republicans who are friends of the League, but who, out of partisanship, are misleading the voters, will respond to their consciences, so that we may all take part in bringing the greatest good to America and to the world."

Governor Cox's audience here packed the armory where Harding spoke a few weeks ago, and a demonstration that lasted ten minutes greeted his arrival on the stage. Ex-service men with banners reading, "Keep the Faith With Those Who Died in France," "Kill Militarism Forever and Give the World Lasting Peace," were conspicuous in the throng, which was one of the largest the Governor had addressed.

The Governor caused a burst of laughter and cheers when, referring to the case of Edward Ryan, who heckled Harding in this same place and was arrested, by stating that any one asking him a question was within his rights as an American citizen.

A man in the gallery asked the Governor if he would accept the Lodge reservations as they applied to Article X. The question was long and involved and before the man had finished the crowd was shouting to "put him out."

When quiet was restored Governor Cox made this reply: "If there is any-

Shift in the Control Of Defenses of New York

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—Primary defense of New York City against an invasion by sea would be directed from this city, under a War Department order received today at the headquarters of the First Corps area.

The order transfers to the First Corps area that part of the State of New York that lies east of longitude 72.30 west, comprising the eastern half of Long Island, with Forts Wright, Terry and Michie, and the extensive defenses of Block Island.

These defenses were erected for the protection of New York, but are now adjudged to be more important for the protection of New London, Bridgeport and Southern Connecticut in general.

ROOT DENIES ANY INJUSTICE TO COX

SAYS COX IS WITH WILSON

And the President, He Adds, "Certainly Has Not Changed" His Covenant Position.

Elihu Root replied yesterday to the telegram he received on Wednesday from Governor Cox, in which the latter charged that Mr. Root had made a false statement in his Carnegie Hall speech when he asserted that "Mr. Cox declared that he will insist upon the treaty just as Mr. Wilson negotiated it." In his telegram Mr. Cox pointed out that Mr. Root must have known that in many of his recent speeches he had gone on record as being willing to accept reservations to the League of Nations covenant and he called on Mr. Root to correct his statement in the interest of truth and justice to the people.

In his reply, sent to Governor Cox at Dayton, Ohio, Mr. Root told Mr. Cox he would not willingly do him an injustice, and did not think he had done so. He reminded Mr. Cox that the latter had begun his campaign with the authorized statement that he (Governor Cox) and President Wilson were "in complete accord upon the League of Nations," and that it was a well known fact that the President had not changed his position regarding the League in any way. If Mr. Cox had changed from his original position, Mr. Root said, he had never heard of it. He added that such a change was not indicated by "the vague and general expressions" of the Cox telegram.

Mr. Root declared Mr. Cox had said nothing clarifying concerning his position regarding Article X. when he stated that he would accept reservations that "will clearly state to our associates in the League that Congress and Congress alone has the right to declare war." Mr. Root asserted that every one knew that already and that Mr. Cox's declaration meant "absolutely nothing."

In conclusion Mr. Root refused to retract anything he said in his Carnegie Hall speech, and said he was still of the opinion that it was the position and purpose of Mr. Cox "to impose upon the United States the covenant negotiated at Paris without any real change whatever."

Mr. Root's Full Reply.

"Oct. 21, 1920.

"The Hon. James M. Cox, Dayton, Ohio:

"I have today received your telegram dated yesterday. I would not willingly do you injustice and I do not think I have.

"You began your campaign by an interview with the President and an authoritative statement that you and he were in complete accord upon the League of Nations. I cannot be mistaken about his position. Throughout the long struggle in the Senate he steadfastly refused to give his assent to any reservation which substantially changed the covenant as he brought it back. He certainly has not changed. His very recent utterances show that.

"If you have changed from that complete accord with him, I have not heard of it. Such a change is not indicated by the vague and general expressions of your telegram saying that you will accept reservations that will clarify, that will be helpful, that will reassure the American people, that you would sit down with the members of the Senate, that you would confer with Mr. Wilson, Mr. Taft and myself, and all others who have a sincere purpose, &c., because you are the one who would determine what was helpful, what would reassure the American people, what advice you would follow, and you are solemnly publicly pledged to an agreement with Mr. Wilson concerning the covenant he brought back from Europe.

"There is one statement of your telegram that does give a definite idea of where you stand upon what Mr. Wilson declares to be the heart of the League—the general alliance of Article X., by which the United States would undertake to guarantee as against external aggression the territory and independence of every member of the League and to make that guarantee good by war if necessary. You say in your telegram that you will accept reservations that 'will clearly state to our associates in the League that Congress, and Congress alone, has the right to declare war' and that 'our Constitution sets up limits in legislation or treaty making beyond which we cannot go.'

"That, it seems, is what you are willing to do about Article X. Well, it is absolutely nothing. Everybody knows already that only Congress has the right

POSSES SURROUND REFUGE

LAWES GOES TO LEAD CHASE

Armed Guards Also Sent from the Prison—Identity of Men Proved by Abandoned Car.

Cornered in a dense forest near Warren, N. H., twenty miles north of Concord, George Stivers and Marcus Bassett, escaped prisoners from Sing Sing, last night were playing a desperate game of hide-and-seek in their efforts to evade their pursuers. At midnight it was reported that several shots had been fired at the fugitives by members of a posse early in the evening. The convicts ran further into the forest without returning the fire.

Immediately upon receipt of this information Major Lewis E. Lawes, Warden of Sing Sing, who is in Albany, instructed Nicholas Schatzel, Acting Warden, to send a posse to Albany. Led by the Major the guards will then go to Warren, expecting to arrive there early today.

Meanwhile a posse of New Hampshire police and citizens, armed with rifles, revolvers, shotguns, pitchforks and clubs and led by George A. Wooster, Sheriff of Merrimac County, are standing guard around the woods. The forest lies about two miles from Warren and extends northward to Kearsarge Mountain. It is full of ravines, hills and dense undergrowth, affording innumerable hiding places. Its exits in the direction of Franklin and Andover are being closely watched to prevent the only possible escape in the direction of a railroad.

Shots Halt Efforts to Escape.

Two attempts by the trapped fugitives to break through the cordon of 200 armed deputies, keepers, policemen and farmers were halted by rifle fire, according to a telephone message received at Sing Sing Prison last night from Leon Annis, Chief of Police of Warner. The chief said the first attempt was made at 9:30 o'clock, when the fugitives were seen by members of the posse who fired a volley of shots that sent them scuttling back to cover. The second attempt occurred at 11:45 o'clock.

Chief Annis said that no effort was made to hit the fugitives, the shots being intended only to frighten them. The leaders of the posses were content, he said, to wait until daylight, when they were sure of capturing Stivers and Bassett.

While 200 armed men are thrown around the forest, additional guards are watching the highways and railroads nearby.

Autos Establish Identity.

No doubt concerning the identity of the trapped men exists among the authorities. The fugitives took to the woods after abandoning in Concord an automobile bearing the manufacturer's frame and motor numbers which showed it to be the car stolen by Stivers and Bassett at Newtown, near Mount Kisco, early Sunday. These numbers showed the car belonged to Samuel Skinner. Near the forest the pursuers found a second motor car, stolen in Concord, and it bore the Connecticut license number, 45,610, which the convicts had transferred from the machine they left in Concord. This plate was taken from a car stolen from William McCabe of Derby, Conn.

When Major Lawes was told of these facts, shortly before he started with his posse for New Hampshire, he said:

"Those are the two convicts beyond any possibility of doubt. I am going to Warner myself, and I shall be there before daybreak."

Over the telephone to Sing Sing Victor Moore, Chief of Police of Concord, said a posse of policemen and armed citizens had chased the escaped convicts into the woods and surrounded them after Stivers and Bassett had committed two crimes, one at Concord and another at Henniker, ten miles to the north.

Fugitives Hold Up Storekeeper.

The report from Chief Moore was the first authentic news of the escaped prisoners since they evaded their pursuers near New Milford late Tuesday night. The two convicts, he said, arrived in Concord in their green touring car about noon yesterday. There the fugitives abandoned the green car and stole a twin six Packard from Hiram Gilkenny, an undertaker. Soon after they disappeared in this motor car the Concord police sent in an alarm over the countryside and gave chase.

Stivers and Bassett drove to Henniker, ten miles away, where they went into the store of Will Claridge and bought some supplies. They produced a $10 bill as if to pay for the purchases, but when the articles were handed to them, one of the convicts thrust a pistol in the storekeeper's face, and while one dashed to the motor car waiting outside, the other backed out of the place.

The proprietor ran to the rear of the store, procured a rifle, and gave chase to the highwaymen. When he reached the front door he saw the convicts disappear down the road.

In the encounter, a shot was fired, but whether it was by Claridge or one of the bandits, was not clearly under-

Workers Propose Wage Cut To Prevent Factory Shutdown

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 21.—The Massasoit Manufacturing Company announced today, that its employes here have offered to accept a reduction in wages in the face of a threatened shutdown said to be due to high manufacturing costs and the hesitancy of the public to buy at the present prices. The company manufactures cleaning waste, car box packing and coarse cotton mop yarn.

The announcement says that price reductions made by the company during September proved inadequate to meet present market conditions and that in view of that fact the employes voluntarily offered to accept a reduction in wages amounting to approximately 20 per cent., to take effect next Monday.

Six hundred persons are employed in the local mills of the company.

NEW ZEALAND MEAT SOLD

Net Profits from 5.54 to 16.54 Cents a Pound, Experts Charge After Long Inquiry.

An indictment containing 137 counts, charging profiteering in violation of the Lever act, was returned yesterday afternoon by the Federal Grand Jury before Judge Augustus N. Hand against Armour & Company, packers, as a corporation, and against J. Ogden Armour, President; F. Edson White, Vice President; Herbert A. Phillips, manager of the dressed sheep department of Armour & Company at Chicago; Arthur F. Van Pelt, district superintendent of the packing house for New York City and adjacent territory, and Charles A. Neyer and William Netsch as individuals. The penalty upon conviction may be, in the case of the corporation, a fine of $5,000, and for the individuals a fine of $5,000 or two years' imprisonment, or both.

The case against the packers was developed before the Grand Jury by Lester S. Kafer of 2 Rector Street, special assistant to the Attorney General. The investigation covered more than four months and was directed by Armin W. Riley, head of the "Flying Squadron." The evidence in the case of Armour & Company was gathered chiefly by Agents C. H. Daugherty and W. H. Smith of the Flying Squadron. It is charged that Armour & Company sold quantities of lamb in this city and surrounding territory for prices varying from 23 to 35 cents a pound, whereas the lamb, including dressing, shipping and overhead charges, cost the corporation only 18.46 cents a pound.

So far as is shown by the investigation carried on all the way from the source of supply in New Zealand to the points of consumption in this territory, the sale of 3,600,000 pounds of lamb from May 1 to June 26, 1920, has been accounted for, leaving 5,061,000 pounds of a lot of 8,661,000 unaccounted for, but which, it is assumed, was also sold under similar conditions here and elsewhere.

Will Appear When Wanted.

As soon as the indictment was returned Mr. Kafer notified Lamar Hardy, former Corporation Counsel, representing the packers. Mr. Hardy said he would inform his clients, and gave personal assurance that the individuals indicted would appear when wanted.

All the 137 counts of the indictment, covering as many cases in which the packers are alleged to have levied exorbitant prices for lamb, follow almost identically the wording of the first count. The first count, after naming the defendants, charges that on June 1, 1920, "said defendants did then and there willfully, knowingly and unlawfully and feloniously offer for sale and sell one hundred and fifty-eight (158) pounds of New Zealand lamb to L. Lowenthal, and make a rate and charge for said lamb twenty-four (24) cents per pound, whereas the cost of said lamb, including the price paid therefor and all overhead and carrying expenses and all other expenses of whatever kind in respect of said lamb, did not exceed eighteen and forty-six-one-hundredths (18.46) cents per pound; that the aforesaid rate and charge for said New Zealand lamb yielded a net profit to said Armour & Co. of five and fifty-four-hundredths (5.54) cents a pound; that the said rate and charge by the said defendants, made as aforesaid for lamb, was unjust and unreasonable."

The charge that Armour & Co. disposed of their lamb at a price as high as 35 cents a pound is put forward in count 80, which alleges that at this price 75 pounds of New Zealand lamb was sold on April 24, 1920, to Joe Wyland and yielded the corporation a net profit of 16.54 cents a pound.

Average Profit 6.61 Cents a Pound.

The average selling price of the entire shipment of New Zealand lamb which was sold by Armour & Co. within a period of about eight weeks was 25.17 cents a pound, and the average net profit on all transactions was 6.61 cents a pound.

While the indictment does not go into the subject, it is said that some of the lamb from New Zealand was retailed at still higher prices as fresh domestic lamb.

Mr. Riley said that the evidence placed before the Federal Grand Jury was procured following the indictments returned against the packers in Brooklyn last Spring, when they were charged with profiteering in the sale of meat.

GLOOM ENSHROUDS BRITAIN AS STRIKE WINS RAILWAY MEN

HAD STARTED CONFERENCES

RAIL MEN VOTE TO GO OUT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—A very black outlook developed in the coal strike situation today when the National Union of Railwaymen served an ultimatum on the Government that they would begin a sympathetic strike on Sunday at midnight unless negotiations are initiated before then for a settlement of the coal strike.

The National Transport Workers' Federation, comprising dockworkers, longshoremen and associated trades, is also threatening a strike, but no date has been set by them so far as they have announced.

Late tonight it was ascertained also that practically an ultimatum had been served on the Government by the Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union Congress. The committee urged the Prime Minister to send for the executive of the Miners' Federation and reopen negotiations on the wage claim, giving Lloyd George until midday Friday to agree to their "request." If a reply should not be received by then, the Parliamentary Committee would call a special conference of Executive Committees of all the big trade unions with a view of considering a general strike policy.

This explains the Transport Workers' Secretary's reference to the next twenty-four hours.

Robert Smillie, who is still in Scotland, said tonight he had not yet received any summons to London. He declared in a public speech that if the miners received the wage increase demanded they would increase the output by 200,000,000 tons in four or five months.

While a ray of hope was shot through the gloom by the news that the Cabinet was engaged in a conference with the miners' leaders, it was learned that the Government regards the action of the railway men and Parliamentary Labor Committee as unjustifiably precipitate, and complicating matters to such a degree that a settlement is now extremely more difficult than it seemed yesterday.

Lloyd George Grave in Commons.

Late tonight in the House of Commons Arthur Henderson asked Premier Lloyd George whether any statement could be made as to a summoning of a conference of the parties concerned in the coal dispute. Lloyd George replied that he wished he could give a more satisfactory answer than he was in a position to give. His colleagues and himself had been conducting negotiations with some of the miners' spokesmen in line with last Tuesday's debate, he said, adding:

"We were engaged this afternoon in a full discussion with some of them with a view to finding out whether there were not other ways of reaching a settlement which might be satisfactory to both parties. I think we were making favorable progress, but I cannot withhold from the House the fact that the very precipitate action of the railway executive has embarrassed the negotiations, not merely on the part of one party but of both parties.

"This action was a great misfortune and it has added very seriously to the difficulties. The negotiations, however, have not broken down. [Cheers.] I am very hopeful that the discussions will be resumed later on, but it would have been much easier if it had been left to the miners themselves to conduct the negotiations.

"All I can say is that, so far as the Government is concerned, we shall not cease to seek a peaceable solution of this great and difficult problem which will be satisfactory to all parties concerned and certainly satisfactory to the community as a whole." [Cheers.]

J. H. Thomas, following Mr. Lloyd George, asked the Prime Minister not to allow the decision of the railway executive to prevent peaceful negotiations continuing. "I am anxious," he said, "to find a bridge in spite of the opposition from my own side."

The railway men this afternoon definitely threw in their lot with the miners at the conclusion of meetings occupying two hours in the morning and three in the afternoon. J. H. Thomas then read out to the reporters a statement that the "special delegates' meetings having carefully considered the position created by the miners' strike, and being satisfied that their demands are reasonable and just and should be conceded forthwith, decided to instruct the general secretaries to intimate to the Prime Minister that unless the miners' claims are granted or negotiations resumed on Saturday, Oct. 23, which will result in a settlement, we shall be compelled to instruct our members in England, Scotland, and Wales to cease work."

Mr. Thomas refused to add any personal opinion to this statement, but it is believed that he had against him one section who wanted a strike this week-end and another who would have fixed a time limit of a week as the

BUILDER HELD UP FOR $25,000 IN STRIKE, HE TELLS LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE; PAPERS SEIZED IN LAWYER'S OFFICE

Go-Between in Strike Bribery Wishes Sam Parks, "a Cheap Grafter, Was Here Today"

The following testimony by George Backer was taken by the Joint Legislative Committee yesterday. Mr. Untermyer at this point in the examination interrogated the witness, who previously had testified that he had paid $25,000 to stop a building strike, upon his evidence given a few days ago before Attorney General Newton. The examination proceeded:

Q. Did you give the following testimony: "Now I want to tell you the story about union erectors. Tell your story. A. Fourteen years ago if you remember—if you remember the Parks incident here—that delegate that was finally sent to jail and I think died in jail, today he would be a saint who was only a cheap grafter. He was a hundred dollar grafter. I wish he was here today." Did you say that? A. I did.

Q. You mean you wish you had the cheap grafter to deal with instead of the highbinder, the big grafter; is that what you mean? A. That is what I mean.

Q. Now who are the highbinders and big grafters with whom you have to deal today; you say you wish he was here today; you must have had something in mind? A. That was the Levy incident with $25,000. Parks would have taken $250 for that.

WRIT FOR STUDENT AS DREWES SLAYER

Philadelphia Detectives Hunting for William P. Brines, Pennsylvania Freshman.

HIS AUTO GIVES A CLUE

Abandoned Machine, Spotted with Blood, Contained Pistol Which Had Been Fired Twice.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21.—A warrant charging William P. Brines, a freshman at the University of Pennsylvania, with the murder of Elmer C. Drewes, the Dartmouth College student, was issued today, according to Major Samuel O. Wynne, Chief of County Detectives.

The warrant for the arrest of Brines was the result of clues followed by the county detectives, the finding of a letter in Drewes's rooms which connected Brines with the case, and the discovery, late Wednesday night, of an automobile belonging to Brines.

The machine was found in Germantown. The police believe the owner became frightened on reading about police suspicions regarding the machine used and left the car to be found. Examination of the records at Harrisburg showed that the license number, 513,477, had been issued to Brines.

On the side of the car was a small blood spot and stains on the floor are believed to be those of blood. In the tonneau, it was said, were found two empty whisky bottles. An automatic pistol was found in one of the side pockets. Two cartridges were missing from the clip.

The county detectives refuse to give their reason for directly connecting Brines with the shooting or to explain what they believe was the motive for the crime. They are withholding much direct evidence, Major Wynne said, to learn more of the movements of Drewes and Brines on the night of the murder.

"At the present time we have a large quantity of evidence which directly points to Brines as being responsible for the death of Drewes," said Major Wynne. "This evidence is of such a character that we deem it inadvisable to make it public at this time."

"The automobile found in Germantown," he continued, "was the property of Brines. In a side pocket we found a .32 calibre Colt automatic pistol, with which, we have reason to believe, the murder was committed.

"Brines was in the Marines during the war, we have found; but we do not know what outfit he was in. Brines has not been apprehended, but we have every reason to hope he will soon be under arrrest."

The place where the machine was found, the police said, is in a sparsely settled community, and it was hinted that persons in several houses near where it was left saw a person or persons leave it there just before midnight Wednesday.

Inquiry at the University of Pennsylvania discloses that Brines is on the rolls there as a student of the engineering school. Instructors are not sure as to his attendance at classes last week, but are positive he has not been there this week.

Major Wynne said that Brines had not been at the Chestnut Street house where he lived with his mother since late last week. Major Wynne was unwilling to say whether he connected the death of Drewes with a ring of auto thieves, but that theory has been advanced by dectectives working on the case. It is thought that Drewes came to Philadelphia after receiving a letter from Brines telling of a car to be bought so cheaply that Drewes "could not afford to miss the chance."

One theory is that Drewes found the car had been stolen, remonstrated and possibly refused to take the machine. The sellers, fearing he would reveal the theft, started a quarrel which resulted in the shooting.

Another supposition is that through Brines's letter Drewes was taken to see the car, held by a party of motor thieves; that he discovered the fact of the theft and instead of being accidentally shot was murdered by the gang to hide the secret.

The body of Drewes was buried in Arlington Cemetery today after a funeral at his late home with military honors.

Charles Schloss, the New York friend of Drewes, and Howard L. Heath, his roommate at Dartmouth, were present. A county detective was there to watch for a student friend who, it is believed, can add to the evidence, but he did not appear.

FEED MACSWINEY AS DELIRIUM GROWS

REPORT SCURVY INCREASED

His Whole Body Is Affected, Says a Bulletin by the Self-Determination League.

LONDON, Oct. 21—The prison officials continue to force nourishment on Lord Mayor MacSwiney, who was still delirious tonight, on the seventieth day since he began fasting, according to the late bulletin issued by the Irish Self-Determination League. The Mayor is unable to recognize friends, but the delirium is of a quieter type than yesterday.

The Self-Determination League's morning bulletin gave an account of the feeding of MacSwiney last night, and said that the Lord Mayor, upon regaining consciousness, detected the taste of meat juice and said to a Sister near him:

"They tricked me, and I didn't know it."

MacSwiney was delirious during virtually all last night, the League bulletin this morning declared, the delirium for the greater part of the time taking a violent form. After chronicling the incident of the feeding of the prisoner with meat juice last night, the bulletin concluded:

"It should be made clear that the meat extract given the Lord Mayor during his delirium on the sixty-ninth day of his fast was the first nourishment which had passed his lips since his arrest on Aug. 12."

The noon bulletin said that the prison officials were continuing to put liquid nutriment in the Lord Mayor's mouth during his periods of delirium throughout the forenoon. This bulletin stated that the Lord Mayor continued in a delirious condition all the morning, at times being violent and at other times quieter. His limbs, it was said, worked spasmodically all the time.

The league's mid-afternoon bulletin said: "The Lord Mayor continues in a delirious state, but is calmer. He still fails to recognize his relatives. Doctors who have just visited him say there is a serious development of scurvy which covers the whole body."

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Lord Mayor MacSwiney's sister telegraphed today to friends at Cork: "Terence very bad, in delirium. Dr. Griffiths announced that he had given him food when delirious and shut us out of the prison. This is worse than anything imaginable. Get Cork to pray to God for a speedy death. The delirium is very violent."

The prison doctors gave Lord Mayor MacSwiney a little liquid food yesterday while he was semi-conscious, Home Secretary Shortt informed the House of Commons tonight. Lieutenant Commander Kenworthy asked if that meant that he had been fed forcibly. Mr. Shortt replied that all the "forcible feeding" meant was the holding of a cup to MacSwiney's lips and letting him drink. The swallowing was quite voluntary. Mr. Shortt also stated that there was no proof that any other nourishment had been given him previously during his hunger strike, the doctors before having only administered medicine.

Executioner Peters Said to Have Fled to Germany with His Loot.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 21.—A special to the Berlingske Tidende from Helsingfors quotes the journal Sevodnja of Petrograd as declaring that a large number of Bolshevist commissioners lately left Russia in order to save their stolen valuables.

The notorious Peters, the Soviet's executioner, with his companion, Miss Krause, are thus said to have reached Germany.

Other advices from Helsingfors say robberies in Moscow are of everyday occurrence. A couple of days ago armed men attacked a money transport in mid-day in the street, carrying off 300,000,000 rubles.

BRINDELL NAMED IN DEAL

MONEY PAID TO STRANGERS

SEIZE HETTRICK'S PAPERS

Lawyer's Office Raided in the Search for Evidence—He Is Held for Contempt.

Evidence tending to show the existence of a widespread system of graft levied by labor leaders in the building trades on employing builders and contractors in order to have union men resume work on which they struck without grievance was revealed yesterday at the Joint Legislative Committee's investigation, held at the City Hall. One aspect of the increased cost of building operations in New York City was a tribute paid by constructors to walking delegates for "fixing up" jobs, according to the sworn testimony of witnesses.

Ephraim B. Levy, a builder, of 2 West Seventy-second Street, engaged in an operation involving considerably more than $2,000,000, consisting of the construction of a large sales and office building on the entire block from Thirtieth to Thirty-first Street on Seventh Avenue, told the committee reluctantly that he gave $25,000 which was to be paid to Robert P. Brindell, President of the Building Trades Council of New York, an organization said to include 115,000 workers in the building trades.

The money, he said, was to go to Mr. Brindell "and I think the committee," and the go-between in the transaction was George Backer, a wealthy builder and real estate man of 137 Riverside Drive, who was engaged by Levy to superintend the construction of his building.

Mr. Backer on the stand admitted that he received $25,000 in two installments, $15,000 first and then $10,000, and paid it to "a couple of strangers," men whom he met several times but whose names he did not know. He said they were members of the "grafters' union," that they "might have been burglars" or even "Mutt and Jeff," and looked like "ex-workingmen." Asked by Samuel Untermyer, who conducted the examination, to define an "ex-workingman," Backer said he was a "walking delegate."

The admissions of Backer concerning the destination of the money were made only after Mr. Untermyer had forced him to admit that his first explanation that he lost the money at the race track was not true because there was no race meeting in the vicinity of New York on the day in question.

Mr. Untermyer went at the witness sharply in an endeavor to elicit from him his real reason for giving two strangers $25,000. Backer evaded, made denials and frequently contradicted himself. When he was driven into a corner he explained his testimony by saying he spoke out of friendship for Brindell and because of fear of his power. He revealed only when pressed to do so that the two strangers said they were from Brindell.

Testimony to be Sent to Authorities.

The witness' statements were of such a character that after the session concluded Chairman Charles C. Lockwood of the committee announced that the testimony would be turned over to "the proper prosecuting authorities for immediate action." Backer said he did not mind taking a rest for a few weeks in jail. He is one of the largest building operators in New York City and has erected a large number of skyscrapers.

In his testimony, Backer declared that Brindell was "the absolute boss" in the building trades, that he could "start any job or stop it" and that his word was law.

Backer, who complained of having a "thirty day memory," because he could not recall anything that happened further off than a month ago, was very hazy about his testimony two days ago given in the New York office of the State Attorney General. One of the things he admitted saying there was that Sam Parks, the walking delegate who died in jail fourteen years ago, was a saint compared to walking delegates today.

"Today he would be only a cheap grafter," he said. "He was a hundred dollar grafter. I wish he was here today." Parks, he said, would have taken $250 instead of $25,000 from Mr. Levy on the Seventh Avenue job.

Further testimony he gave before the Attorney General, a transcript of which was read by Mr. Untermyer, showed that Backer was asked concerning Brindell: "He gets his money in cash?" His answer was "Yes." Yesterday Backer qualified this by saying that what he really thought was that "it would be foolish to take anything but cash."

Leonard Wallstein and Deputy Attorney General Samuel Berger questioned

Backer at the first inquiry and Mr. Untermyer, still referring to the stenographic record of the examination, asked the builder:

"Did you tell them—mark this question—that you had paid this money to Brindell, but that you didn't want to put it on the record?"

At first Backer could not remember, but finally he thought that "maybe" the memories of Wallstein and Berger were better than his own, and he did not "want to accuse them of not telling the truth," and he would "take their word for it."

Two Offices Raided.

The sensational testimony of Mr. Levy and his building superintendent, Backer, came at the end of a day which started with a rush for the committee. On search warrants issued by Chief Magistrate William G. McAdoo two raids were made, one on the offices of John T. Hettrick, 165 Broadway, counsel for three associations of building material contractors, and the second on the office of the Cut Stone Contractors, 165 West Thirty-first Street, where Mrs. Mary Annin was in charge.

The raids were the result of the refusal of Mr. Hettrick to turn over to the committee certain documents which he was directed to furnish. He consulted former Supreme Court Justice Clarence J. Shearn, his attorney, and said he refused to answer on advice of counsel, on the ground that his association with the combines in the stone, heating and ventilating and plumbing lines was the relation between a lawyer and his clients and was therefore privileged. He had many opportunities to furnish the documents and was finally declared in contempt of the committee by Chairman Lockwood.

The search warrant was executed by Mr. Berger, accompanied by a party of seven men, including Detective Barton T. Wilson of District Attorney Swann's staff. Only those papers were seized bearing on the housing inquiry. Hettrick's counsel hurried to the City Hall when he heard of the new turn of affairs and had a long conference with Mr. Untermyer and other counsel to the committee. Mr. Hettrick was finally excused.

The testimony of Nathan Goldstein, associated as counsel to the committee, revealed that Mrs. Annin destroyed two letters when he entered the Thirty-first Street office with her in order to take documents asked for by the committee. She admitted destroying the communications and told the committee that they were "personal letters."

The testimony of Mr. Levy concerning the payment of $25,000 to labor leaders was made at the beginning of the afternoon session. Just as soon as it came out Mr. Untermyer announced that he had written a letter to Brindell saying that testimony affecting him personally would be introduced at the afternoon session and he wanted to afford Brindell an opportunity to go on the stand at once and make any denial he wished.

J. J. O'Connor, counsel to Brindell, who interrupted the session the day before, again arose and asked that all the testimony concerning Brindell be stricken out. This request was denied. There was a tilt between Mr. Untermyer and Mr. O'Connor on the question of whether the labor leader's lawyer could make a statement.

Brindell Fails to Appear.

Finally O'Connor said Brindell did not receive the letter sent inviting him and said he would call Brindell on the telephone. He returned in a few minutes and asked that an adjournment be taken until today. The request was denied by Chairman Lockwood. O'Connor promised to have his client at the City Hall this morning. Later he modified this promise by saying that he would produce him if he thought it necessary to do so after reading a transcript of the testimony with which he was furnished.

After the meeting O'Connor dictated a statement to newspaper men in which he said that the newspapers would be held strictly to accountability as to what they published about Mr. Brindell. He also charged that the entire investigation was part of a deep-seated propaganda to discredit organized labor. Assemblyman McWhinney, a member of the committee, overheard the charge and interrupted the lawyer to ask that he furnish proof of his assertion to the committee. O'Connor said that his statement was taken seriously by labor men.

After dictating his statement concerning the newspapers O'Connor remarked, "Newspapers have been known to have labor troubles, too."

"Is that to be considered a threat?" one of the reporters asked.

The lawyer made no reply.

He made public a resolution adopted by the Building Trades Council at a meeting held in its hall, 12 St. Mark's Place, yesterday, demanding of the Legislative Committee that a witness shall have the right to be actively represented by counsel, who shall have the right to ask any question.

Builder Testifies as to $25,000.

Mr. Levy, at the beginning of his testimony, admitted he was appearing under the compulsion of a subpoena. He said he began the construction of his Seventh Avenue building in August, 1919, and that it was not yet finished. He organized the Starboard Realty Company, a corporation consisting of the members of his family, to do the work.

Coming to Mr. Backer's connection with his enterprise, he said that he engaged Backer, a wealthy, real estate man and builder, to superintend the erection of the building. In February of this year, he said, "everybody on the building struck."

Q.—How many people did you have on the building at the time? A.—There were the iron men and the rock men and foundation men and shoring men.

Q.—About how many did you have on the building—a few hundred? A.—In the neighborhood of about 100 or 150.

Q.—Was there any question of hours or wages involved? A.—No, sir.

Q.—You were paying the union wages and keeping the union hours, were you? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And all the people were union men on the building? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—It was a union job right through, wasn't it? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And then everybody struck? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And how long was it before you got them back again? A.—About six weeks or two months.

Q.—Did you get them back by paying $25,000 in money? A.—I did not pay anything personally.

The witness explained that he cashed the checks at the Columbia Bank. One was for $15,000 and the other for $10,000, and he got the money in $500 and $1,000 bills. The first one was drawn on May 1, 1920.

Q.—Before you drew this check, did you have any talk with Mr. Backer about it? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—Had you asked him to try to arrange the strike so as to get your men back? A.—We spoke about it; yes.

Q.—And had he told you that he would make the effort to get the men back? A.—He told me that he could do it.

Q.—Now go on and tell us what took place between you and Mr. Backer that resulted in your drawing that check and handing over those bills to Mr. Backer. A.—There was not very much said about it. Mr. Backer informed me that he might be able to arrange it to get the men to working.

Q.—At what price? A.—At $25,000.

Said Brindell Was to Get It.

Q.—And to whom did he say he wanted to pay the money? A.—He said he wanted to pay it to Mr. Brindell, and, I think, the committee.

Q.—You gave him the $15,000 in bills, did you not? A.—I did. I gave them to Mr. Backer.

Q.—And did he report back to you? A.—I don't know whether he reported back or not.

Q.—What was the arrangement about making the payment of the other $10,000? A.—That was to be paid in about a month or two afterward.

Q.—Did he explain, and if so what did he say as to the reason for that? A.—I didn't want to pay it all at once.

Q.—Go on. A.—I wanted to see the workmen back on the job before I paid the balance, and in a few days they came back after paying $15,000 to Mr. Backer.

Q.—Then you subsequently gave the other $10,000 to Mr. Backer, did you? A.—I did.

Q.—Making the $25,000? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—Look at this check dated May 11, 1920, drawn on the Columbia Bank, to your own order, for $15,000, indorsed by you, marked paid, and state whether that is the check on which you drew up the first $15,000? A.—That is.

Q.—And that is the money you handed Mr. Backer to be handed Mr. Brindell, is it? A.—I handed it to Mr. Backer.

Q.—To be handed to Mr. Brindell? A.—So I understood.

Q.—Please look at this check dated July 14, 1920, drawn on the Columbia Bank to the order of Henry Storck for $10,000, indorsed by Henry Storck, his indorsement marked "correct" by you, perforated marked paid by the bank, showing it was paid over the counter, as was the other—state whether that is the check by which the other $10,000 was drawn out? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—Who is Henry Storck? A.—He is managing clerk.

Q.—In your office? A.—Yes.

Q.—And did he go to the bank and draw the money? A.—He did.

Q.—And handed it to you, didn't he? He said he did. A.—I think he handed it to me; I am not positive.

Thinks Clerk Handed Out $10,000.

Q.—And did you hand that to Mr. Backer, also to be given to Mr. Brindell? A.—I don't think I did. I think Mr. Storck handed it to him, although I am not sure.

Q.—I think you said the men came back within two days after that? A.—A few days afterward. I do not recall how many.

Q.—Two days after the first check? A.—I say I do not know whether two, or three, or four days.

Q.—Now, I think everybody understands, Mr. Levy, that this is an unpleasant job, and you are not doing this of your own free will, but you are compelled to make this disclosure? A.—I did not want to come down here.

Q.—I know you did not, but the law is more powerful than you. Why didn't you want to come down in the cause of justice? Were you afraid of your building operations? A.—I cannot answer that.

Q.—Why? A.—I cannot.

Q.—You say your building is not quite finished yet? A.—Yes, Sir.

Mr. O'Connor interrupted the proceedings at this point and after his tilt with Mr. Untermyer the latter read the invitation extended to Mr. Brindell to appear and defend himself, after which Mr. Backer was called. Part of the time Backer testified he wore a broad grin, which disappeared when Mr. Untermyer called him to task for taking the investigation lightly.

Among his important undertakings in the last 14 years, Backer said, were the erection of the Film Building, 729 Seventh Avenue, the Backer Building, 136 Madison Avenue, and the Hotel Chatham. Questioned as to his relations with Mr. Levy he said he calculated the building on Seventh Avenue, with the exception of the steel work, would cost $700,000, and that his commission for taking care of the operation would be $35,000 or 5 per cent., the money to be paid when the building was completed.

Backer Tells of Strike.

Backer told of the strike on the building which called off all the men affiliated with "Brindell's organization" except the bricklayers who are unaffiliated with the Building Trades Council. Operations stopped for eight or nine weeks, he said, but could not remember whether he went to Mr. Levy and told him that he thought they could be resumed. However, he declared that "Mr. Levy never lies."

Asked how the job came to be started again, he said he went to Brindell, who, he testified, remarked that an example had to be made of the job and he had to know whether it was done by union men or not. Backer said the steel men were not union men. He refused to admit that he knew whether the same alleged non-union steel men returned to work after the money was paid as those who worked on the building when the strike was called.

Backer admitted receiving the $25,000. The $10,000, he said, he got in "soiled bills."

Q.—Did you call it dirty money? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—Who gave you the first $15,000? A.—Mr. Levy, right in my office.

Q.—Well, had you asked him, or told him to give it to you? A.—I told him to give it to me, and I told him it would cost $25,000.

Q.—You mean to stop the strike? A.—Yes, I said I will try to do it for that money.

The witness denied ever having previously paid money for calling off strikes but said he knew of previous experiences, where jobs cost less. Asked as to what was the usual price for such an operation he said prices had gone up.

Q.—What are the things that have gone up? A.—They all claim it costs more money to live, to ride in automobiles and everything else.

Q.—There are other things that are going up? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—Now, you told him it would cost $25,000, or you might be able to settle it for $25,000, did you? A.—It was worth to Mr. Levy $25,000 to settle the proposition.

Q.—Well, he says you said you wanted the money for Brindell; have you changed your mind about Mr. Levy? A.—I changed my mind about Mr. Brindell, not about Mr. Levy.

Says Bribery Could be Avoided.

Mr. Untermyer asked whether the paying of money in that way was one of the evils of the building situation which could not be avoided. Backer said it could be avoided.

Q.—You mean if you stand in with him you can avoid it? A.—In a way, yes.

Probing as to what he did with the $15,000 in cash Mr. Untermyer elicited from the witness the statement that he went to the race track with it and when he came back he "didn't have anything." He said he "lost it," that he "did something with it." He was asked if he took the $10,000 to the race track also.

"I played cards once in a while," he said, smilingly.

He was unable to give the date of his supposed visit to the race track because his memory was "bad," nor could he tell what race track it was. Mr. Untermyer asked him how he could say he went to the race track when there was no racing going on and Backer exclaimed, that if he had known there was no track meeting on he would not have made the statement.

Mr. Untermyer asked Mark Rafalsky, a builder and realty broker, to stand up. Backer could not remember whether he told Rafalsky he paid Brindell $25,000 to call off the strike. The lawyer accused the witness of having repeated the statement to Rafalsky within fifteen minutes of the time he, Backer, took the stand. He made a denial. Mr. Untermyer pressed him closely and plied him with the same question until he finally admitted, "Maybe I did. Maybe he is right."

Met Men in Hotel Lobby.

He met the men in the lobby of the Hotel Chatham between 12 and 1 o'clock on the day he received the money from Mr. Levy. Here Mr. Untermyer forced Backer to admit the race track story was a myth.

The builder said he had an appointment to meet the men, whom he saw quite frequently in the vicinity of the Seventh Avenue building job he was engaged in. He did not know their names.

Q.—These strangers were delegates, weren't they, walking delegates? A.—I believe so. They didn't tell me that.

Q.—From what union were they walking delegates? A.—Well, I suppose the Grafters' Union. They didn't tell me.

Q.—The Grafters' Union. That isn't the union you belong to, is it? A.—No. You try to make me out one.

Q.—I don't think so, Mr. Backer. I think you are trying to make us out for a lot of fools. A.—No, I don't.

Q.—Describe these strangers. A.—They were ordinary men and—

Q.—Now, what union? Of what union were they delegates? A.—I really don't know. That is an actual fact.

Q.—What? A.—I don't know anything about it.

Q.—Don't you know the walking delegates in the different trades? A.—There are 160 of them, and I don't know twenty.

Q.—But these, you had seen them often before? A.—Only—I tell you—I have an explanation.

Q.—Often before? A.—I should say four or five times.

He said he made the engagement to meet them at the Hotel Chatham ten days prior to the actual meeting. He promised the men he would "make good if they keep their promises."

Q.—Now, what promises had they made? A.—They said they will proceed with the work, that the work will start up. I ask them, can you fix up the job, and they says we can if we get paid for it.

Q.—Of what union—you say you don't know what union? A.—I don't know. They are all alike. I said, Now, I am not going to trust you—in fact, it was on Mr. Levy's suggestion.

Q.—Oh, now never mind about that. A.—All right, I will.

Q.—But you are not going to trust them. You told us a while ago that you had previously spoken to Mr. Brindell about this, didn't you? A.—I haven't spoken to him.

Q.—Didn't you testify here on the record that you had? A.—I will tell you—it requires an explanation—I will tell you all about it.

Q.—Didn't you testify you had talked to him before about stopping the strike? A.—Exactly; I did; to please stop the strike.

Backer then changed his testimony on this point and said he spoke to Brindell before and not after he spoke to the delegates. The conversation took place in Brindell's office, and a Mr. Jones, in the excavating business, was with him at the time.

First Price Was $60,000.

Asked whether the two "strangers" to whom was paid the money were Brindell's right hand men, he said that "perhaps" they were, but he did not know. He said that at first the price demanded was $60,000 for calling off the strike, then $30,000, and finally the "strangers" agreed to take $25,000.

Q.—You don't know their names? A.—No.

Q.—You don't know the unions they belong to? A.—No.

Q.—Anything about them? A.—No.

Q.—Where they live or anything about them? A.—No.

Q.—And so you want the committee to believe that you handed over $15,000 without a writing, without a word, to two strange men who had been hanging around the job, whose names you did not know; is that right? A.—I did not care to know them.

Q.—You did not care to know their names? A.—No.

Q.—But you want us to understand that that is the way you did it, that you handed it to these strange men? A.—Not until after they made good. I didn't hand the money over before they made good.

Q.—Isn't it a fact that it was only three or four days after the first money had been paid that the men resumed work? Mr. Levy says so. A.—Mr. Levy don't know what he is talking about. It started ten days before I turned the money over. They made good and I handed the money over.

Q.—Now, as I understand, you knew these two strangers, whom you did not know, whose names you do not know, whose unions you do not know, whose business you do not know—you now say that they told you ten days before you paid the money that they would make good and bring the men back; is that right?

Money Paid to Strangers.

A.—Let me tell you. I want to answer it just the way I think. I know. I said, "How can I trust you with this money" They said "We will see that the work is resumed on that building, and after ten or eleven days or whatever days you pay over to us $15,000, and then a month hence, after we make good, you pay us the balance." and I said, "All right."

Q.—How did they come to fix on $25,000? A.—Because after long negotiations they wanted $60,000, and I cut it down to $25,000.

Q.—How long were these negotiations? A.—Everything began to drop in the meantime.

Q.—What do you mean? A.—A couple of days.

Q.—What do you mean, everything began to drop in May, 1920? A.—In the course of a couple of days.

Q.—You mean all the values began to drop in that ten days, so that $25,000 was worth as much as $60,000? A.—They asked $60,000, and it got down to $25,000.

Q.—Was that all one interview, or how many interviews did you have? A.—Three or four.

Q.—With these two men? A.—Yes.

Q.—And meantime you had seen Brindell? A.—I saw Brindell before.

Q.—You saw Brindell first and told him you wanted the strike stopped? A.—Exactly. I asked him to do it.

Q.—And then he told you to see these men? A.—No, he did not.

When Backer asserted that Brindell told him he could do nothing for him because the job was started with non-union men Mr. Untermyer forced him to admit that no iron erectors did business with a union shop. Backer also confessed that he had non-union men on other jobs and that Brindell did not interfere with them, but that in other cases where non-union men were employed strikes were called.

Q.—Some of them who didn't come across? A.—Well, maybe so.

Q.—Yes, I see. Now, Brindell didn't suggest to you where you could meet these men? A.—No.

Q.—Nor their names? A.—No.

Q.—Nor anything about them? A.—No.

He and Brindell "Good Friends."

Q.—You had never done business with him? A.—Brindell?

Q.—Have you not told a dozen people you have done business with him repeatedly? A.—I have known Brindell; we are good friends—

Q.—Have you not told a dozen people repeatedly that you have done business with Brindell in the way of building structures? A.—I don't think so.

The Seventh Avenue "job went ahead nicely" after he saw the two men, said Backer, and the next time he saw Brindell was about two weeks after the men returned to work.

Q.—And whenever you had any trouble you would go to him? A.—Or call him up on the phone.

Q.—Would you go to him? A.—Very seldom.

Q.—But when you had any trouble you knew where to go; he was the man to go to? A.—He was the man to fix it.

Q.—He was the man to fix it; he was the head of the whole thing? A.—Yes.

Q.—He is absolute boss? A.—The absolute boss.

Q.—He could stop jobs and start jobs? A.—Stop and start any minute. Whatever he said is law.

Q.—Whatever he says is absolute law in the trade, and that being so, whatever he says is absolute law; you gave the money to those strangers, didn't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—How did Mr. Brindell describe them to you so that you would know them? A.—He never did, he never did.

Q.—How did you know they were union men? A.—I didn't care whether they were or not.

Q.—How did you know that they were union men? A.—If they delivered the goods.

Q.—You didn't know whether they were union men? A.—I didn't care.

Q.—Did you know whether they were union men? A.—I didn't know.

Q.—Did you know whether they were union men? A.—I didn't know it, I didn't care to.

Q.—They might be a couple of scabs? A.—They might be a couple of burglars.

Q.—They might be race track followers. A.—Maybe worse than that.

Q.—They might be anybody and they would take the $15,000? A.—As long as they delivered the goods, yes.

Q.—At the first of those talks you say they wanted $60,000? A.—$60,000.

Q.—Both of them? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did they tell you how they arrived at $60,000; what they would have to do with it; how many people they would have to pay? A.—They said they would have to divide it with quite a number of people.

Q.—Did they tell you how many they would have to divide it with? A.—No.

Q.—I understood you to say Brindell was the boss? A.—But they didn't mention him.

Q.—They could not go over his head. Didn't you say that what he said goes? A.—He is absolute boss.

Q.—He is absolute boss; strike or no strike depends on him? A.—Absolutely.

Q.—Going out and coming back depends on him? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you knew that, didn't you? A.—I did.

Q.—And you knew that nobody could fix this strike without his consent? A.—That I did not know; here a couple of men fixed it.

Q.—Oh, no. A.—That shows it.

Q.—You knew he was the absolute boss; he determined when a strike should be called, and when a strike should be called off; you knew that, didn't you? A.—I knew that, and know it.

Q.—When they said they had to divide with quite a number this $60,000, did you ask them how many they had to divide with? A.—I did not care to know it.

Q.—And they did not tell you? A.—They did not tell me.

Q.—Did one man do the talking? A.—One man did the talking.

Q.—One light and one dark? A.—Yes.

Q.—One old and one young, that is the way they were? A.—No, not precisely.

Q.—Can you tell us how they looked? A.—They looked like a couple of ex-workingmen.

Q.—Ex-workingmen? A.—Yes.

Q.—What is an ex-workingman? A.—An ex-workingman is a delegate.

Describing what took place when he handed the money to one of the men, Backer testified: "One of them said, 'I delivered the goods.' I said, 'You did.'"

Backer Apologizes.

Pressed by Mr. Untermyer to explain what he meant by telling the committee a deliberate falsehood concerning the money, Backer tendered an "apology" for telling the untruth. He then maintained that the correct story was the version of handing the money to the "srangers" in the hotel lobby. The way he reconciled the two statements was by alleging that the last story was the correct one. He said he did not want to make any other explanation because "it won't work."

Mr. Untermyer wanted to know if Backer did not tell the race-track story because he was afraid of disrupting his friendship with Brindell, and also for fear of being put out of the building business. He said he was "not afraid of that at all; Mr. Brindell wouldn't put me out of the building business."

He insisted that he was "not afraid of anything at all," and that the story was "just a foolish thing." Mr. Untermyer stuck close to his questioning along this line, and demanded to know why Backer told the falsehood. The lawyer asked him whether it was from fear of Brindell or friendship for him, and Backer quickly answered: "Both, maybe." Hardly had he made the admission before he sought to recall it, and Mr. Untermyer asked:

Q.—But you say it was both fear and friendship? A.—I mean—. In the first place, Brindell is a friend of mine and I would try to protect him if I can.

Q.—I see, and so you would rather pay the money to delegates than to pay it to him?

This question was not answered.

Q.—Now, why did you go back to Mr. Levy and tell him you had paid it to Brindell? A.—I didn't tell him Brindell; I said I paid it; that is all.

Q.—What? Didn't you tell him in the first place you wanted it for Brindell, and in the second place you paid it to Brindell? A.—I said the thing could be fixed up; some men—that they represent—

Q.—Represent whom? A.—That they represent the Labor Council.

Q.—Yes, but didn't you tell him you wanted the money for Brindell? You have said so, sworn to it two or three times; and didn't you also tell him afterward that you had paid it to him? A.—I hold Mr. Levy—

Q.—Yes. A.—I don't know whether I did or not.

Q.—What? A.—Well, if he says so, it must be so.

Q.—Didn't you tell him so? A.—I don't remember.

Q.—Well, you have sworn you told him you wanted it for Brindell—didn't you? A.—Well, I will tell you that this man representing himself to be a head of the ——

The Chairman—Answer the question, Mr. Backer, please.

A.—I don't know whether I mentioned Brindell or not. If I did, well I did; if I have sworn to it it is so.

Q.—Now, what men told you they represented Brindell? A.—These men said they represented the union men that worked on that building, and if I pay them they will clean that up.

Says They Represented Brindell.

Q.—What men told you they represented Brindell? A.—These two men that I handed this $15,000 to.

Q.—When did they tell you they represented Brindell? A.—They didn't say Brindell.

Q.—You just said so. A.—They said they represented this organization; I mean the labor—the Builders' Council.

Q.—You told us a few moments ago they said they represented Brindell? A.—Well, I used it in that way. We always call it that. We don't call it the Builders' Council. We call it Brindell's organization.

Q.—Because he is all there is of it? A.—He is the head of it.

The following record from Backer's testimony before the Attorney General was read by Mr. Untermyer:

"There are a number of buildings that are absolutely completed, and the people will not build any more either than they are building, because under present conditions anybody that goes into building is a lunatic, because he is absolutely at the mercy of the business agents called delegates."

"Is that right?" Backer was asked.

"Absolutely, that is true," answered the witness.

Q.—That is the same kind of people to whom you paid this money? A.—The same class, I think.

Mr. Untermyer read from the witness's testimony before the Attorney General a statement that he declined to answer questions because "It is a question of whether I am going back on a man or not." He said that Brindell might or might not have been the man he had in mind when he made the statement. He declared it was rumored that other builders had to give money to walking delegates before their jobs were completed.

The Building Trades Employers' Association and the Building Trades Council work in harmony, he said. Asked whether the head of the Employers' Association was "the only boss that Brindell has," the witness replied in the affirmative.

Says Brindell Gets Cash.

Mr. Untermyer went over some more of Backer's testimony before the Attorney General, and when questioned concerning Brindell's bank account this query appeared:

Q.—He gets his money in cash? A.—Yes.

Backer quickly interjected, "I didn't know it." Then he said that he meant Brindell "would be foolish to take anything but cash."

Backer was asked whether he told Rafalsky that he paid Brindell, and answered, "No, he told me."

Q.—That you told him about having paid Brindell on this job; the same man, isn't it? A.—Yes.

Q.—"I guess Rafalsky can tell you that; he can tell it better than I can. At night there are certain things to be done; for instance, you have a shaft to an elevator, and you have to take your men up and down in the building in the daytime, and the plastering of the shaft will be at night. He told me they had two men working at night; that was on Sunday, not on Saturday night, and on Monday the delegate came up and saw them do a little more work than they should, and he reprimanded them, and wanted to fine them $50 each. There are tile layers tha can easily lay 75 to 90 feet of tiling a day, and the union will restrict them to 40. Anybody that lays more than 40 they kick out of the union." All that is true? A.—That is my opinion.

Q.—"All these properties—people don't really get enough for what people have to get today. For instance, if I have a piece of scrap iron to be loaded on a wagon, to be taken away from the building, there will be a strike called if I do not get a union man to handle the scrap?" A.—That is right.

Q.—"Conditions are awful. People that build for investment or building to sell, it does not hurt the building contractors because they have cost plus, and the more it costs them to build the more they are all right." That is true, isn't it? A.—Yes.

Q.—That is your testimony, isn't it? A.—Yes.

Q.—You knew that those two ex-workingmen who were getting $10 a day were not going to get that $25,000, didn't you? A.—I didn't care what they did with it.

Q.—You knew that? A.—I am almost sure of it.

Q.—And you had your pretty keen conception as to where it was going, didn't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you say he (Brindell) would be a fool if he took it direct? A.—I say if he would not fear me, would not take it direct, then why should I deal with other people?

Q.—That is not the point now; the point now is, and I will ask it again, didn't you tell these gentlemen (Wallstein and Berger) that this money was for Brindell and that Brindell got the money? A.—I told you if I said it—it is two against one—I suppose I did. But I give you my word of honor I don't remember.

Q.—We don't want any words of honor; you are under oath. A.—If they say so it is so.

The witness said that the day after his appearance at the Attorney General's office he called Brindell on the telephone because he wanted "a little strike called off," but that he was unable to talk to Brindell, as he was busy "indorsing Judge Swann."

Q.—You just had a little strike and you just wanted him to call it off? A.—Yes.

Q.—That is the way it is done, over the telephone? A.—Over the telephone.

Q.—You do things for him and he does things for you? A.—Sure.

As to the Building Trades Council and Brindell, Backer said that they did just about as they pleased, as they were "the District Attorney, the Supreme Court, the jurors and everything else."

After Backer's testimony Chairman Lockwood announced that the testimony of the witness was just the kind the prosecuting officers should have for action very promptly, and said it would be turned over to them.

The investigation will continue at 10:30 this morning.

OFFER NEW HOUSING PLAN.

Civic Federation Suggests Government Guarantee Investments.

A tentative financial plan involving national, State or city aid was suggested last night by the National Civic Federation as a solution of the housing problem throughout the country. The federation's Housing Committee declared in a statement that no individual or group of individuals was powerful enough to meet the conditions.

The suggestion is made that the element of risk in possible depreciation of investment in building ventures for housing be assumed by the State, virtually insuring the investment against depreciation up to a fixed percentage subject to contingent provisions. It also is suggested that certain income tax provisions be lifted on building securities.

"The municipality, the State or the Federal Government should avoid entering the building business in competition with private capital," the statement added, "as any subsidy by the State or deliberate competition of the State with the individual will force all independent capital into other channels, and thereby place the whole burden of housing problem on the State."

Guarantee by the Government of a fixed return on railroad securities during the war was cited as a precedent for the Government guaranteeing a private bond or security. While it is admitted this guarantee was given for a limited time and only as a war measure, it is asserted that the needs of reconstruction are very pressing also.

SEES SAFETY IN ARTICLE X.

Hitchcock, in New Hampshire, Likens It to Monroe Doctrine.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 21.—Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock of Nebraska, in a speech here tonight, appealed to New Hampshire voters to support Cox on the basis of a desire for world peace. He spoke in the auditorium of Dartmouth College.

"If Cox is elected President," he said, "the United States will go into the League of Nations because he has said that he will accept such reservations as are necessary to secure the assent of two-thirds of the Senators to ratify the pending treaty. We will not only have peace with Germany, but we will be the leading member of the League of Nations. If, on the other hand, Harding is elected we will not go into the League. The treaty of peace will not be ratified, and we will be in a state of uncertainty and doubt for a long time to come."

NEGRO VOTE GIVES OHIO NEW PROBLEM

Thousands "Imported" for War Work May Cut Big Figure in the Election.

EXPECT SOCIAL EQUALITY

Their Newspapers Say Harding Will Espouse Their Cause—Democrats Issue Warning.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 21.—Ohio has a race problem and out of it has grown an issue which is beginning to cut considerable figure in the Gubernatorial campaign in this State. Political observers express a belief that it will weigh even more heavily in the State campaign two years from now.

The situation is due directly to the great influx of negroes from the South during the war, when they were "imported" to take the place of white unskilled labor which, under war conditions, had taken advantage of opportunities that opened for employment at higher wages in the war industries and graduated from the pick and shovel or other branches of less well paid work. Railroads and large industrial plants brought the black workers from the South by the carload and many thousands of them landed in Ohio and apparently are going to stay.

These black immigrants from south of the Mason and Dixon Line do not begin to compare in intelligence with the Northern negroes. Many are illiterate, but they are being coddled by the Republicans, who have had them and their women folk heroed to the registration places to qualify for the right to vote, because without exception they can be depended upon to vote the "straight" Republican ticket.

There were approximately 80,000 negro votes in the State before the women were enfranchised. This year, as a result of the Nineteenth Amendment, this vote if not doubled will be very largely in excess of what it has been. The Democratic State Committee has taken such a grave view of the situation that in a circular letter recently sent out it warns the white voters against the menace of "negro domination."

Quotes Their Newspapers.

In this circular letter recent utterances in negro newspapers in the State are recited to show that the negroes in Ohio, including the largely illiterate newcomers, are haunted by aspirations for social equality as well as equality before the law, and in the hope of attaining the goal of their ambition are making more of an effort in their common cause in this than any other campaign. The Toledo Pioneer and The Cleveland Advocate, two publications edited by negroes for negroes, in recent editorials have placed on some utterances of Senator Harding in his speech of acceptance and in a later speech delivered in Oklahoma an interpretation which would lead their readers to believe that the Republican nominee for President, if elected, would make himself a champion of that cause.

The most bitter attack in the circular issued by the Democratic State Committee, which has for its heading, "A timely warning to the white men and white women of Ohio," is directed against Harry L. Davis, the Republican candidate for Governor, who was praised in The Cleveland Advocate for appointing twenty-seven negroes members of the Cleveland police force and for placing many other negroes in lucrative positions, the annual salaries of the negroes who got jobs from him aggregating $350,000.

The circular letter closes with this call:

"An ominous cloud has risen on the political horizon which should have the attention and consideration of all men and women before casting their ballots. That cloud is the threat of negro domination in Ohio.

"We see negro newspapers in the State boasting loudly of the increased balance of power held by their race through the enfranchisement of their women. We find them openly predicting that full social equality will be insured them by the election of the Republican candidates.

Accuse Selfish Employers.

"It is a well-known fact that the influx of negroes from the South into the industrial centres of Ohio during the past years has been of such proportions as to give rise to a real race problem. Herded together like cattle and brought here by selfish employers to work in our industrial establishments, their presence has brought about serious consequences in many of our cities.

"White workingmen in many communities owning or paying for homes in factory districts can testify to the effect which the importation of these negroes into the community has had upon the value of their properties. In many of our cities it is well known that the best residential districts have not been free from invasion of negroes. It naturally follows that the efforts upon the part of Republican candidates and leaders to further intensify negro ambitions can only result in greatly magnifying the evils we are already facing.

"Ohioans should remember that the time has come when we must handle this problem in somewhat the same way as the South is handling it, and in such a way bring greater contentment to both whites and negroes. We should remember what history tells us of the dark days when negroes controlled the Government in the South, the enormous expenditures and debts incurred, the indignities heaped upon the white women and children, the vicious attempt of the South Carolina negro Legislature to give every negro forty acres of land and a mule.

"Men and women of Ohio, rally to the ballot box and give such a verdict as will forever rid Ohio of this menace to yourselves and your children."

Feeling on this subject has been intensified by the fact that a negro was candidate for the nomination of Secretary of State in the Republican primaries and, while not successful, got more votes than some white candidates. Six negroes were successful in the Republican primaries, where they won nominations for the Ohio Assembly.

The Toledo Pioneer, in an editorial published on Sept. 11, called upon negroes to make sure that these candidates were elected and predicted that their election would mean the enactment of a law making it a felony to discriminate against a negro on account of his race. A measure of that character, the Beatty bill, was introduced at the last session of the Legislature. It passed the Assembly, but was beaten in the Senate, due largely to opposition of the hotel men.

GOV. COX HERE TONIGHT 5 SPEECHES TOMORROW

Governor Cox is scheduled to arrive here tonight from Jersey City after a day of campaigning through New Jersey. He will make his principal speech in New York City at a mass meeting in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Saturday will be a busy day for the candidate. At 9:30 o'clock he will receive delegations of college men and women at the Waldorf. He will hold a conference with his managers, and at 1:30 P. M. will make a short talk at a women's luncheon in the Hotel Astor. At 2:15 he will talk to the Marquette Club in the Waldorf. At 3:15 he will address the teachers of New York at the Washington Irving High School, 40 Irving Place. Plans for Mrs. Cox's entertainment were announced by the Women's Bureau of Democratic National Headquarters. They include a dinner at the Waldorf this evening and a private box party at the Astor Hotel luncheon on Saturday, where Governor Cox is to be the principal speaker.

GOV. COOLIDGE DENIES INDORSING LEAGUE

In North Carolina Speech Says He Only Lauded Wilson's Peace Efforts.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 21.—Governor Coolidge, who spoke here tonight after a tour of the State from Asheville, referred to recent charges that as the Republican candidate for Vice President he had changed his position on the League of Nations issue. He denied that he had indorsed the League in an address of welcome to President Wilson at Boston in February, 1919, on the return of Mr. Wilson from his first trip to Europe.

The Republican nominee said that as presiding officer of the meeting at which the President spoke he lauded the President for his efforts in behalf of peace.

"Nothing has ever been said or done by me," said Mr. Coolidge, "inconsistent with that welcome, which the proprieties required and which Massachusetts was pleased to give to the Chief Executive of the nation. It had no reference to the League of Nations. Nobody knew at that time what the League of Nations contemplated."

Governor Coolidge was welcomed at Hickory, N. C., by J. D. Elliott, the Democratic Mayor, and received a bouquet from Miss Esther Ransom, daughter of the late United States Senator Ransom of North Carolina.

Addressing a large audience from a stand in Park Square, Governor Coolidge declared the Republican Party was "attempting to bring the people back to the Constitution." Referring to the industrial development of the South and to what he asserted was its need for adequate tariff protection, he declared:

"These are American principles and they rise above party distinction."

GOV. COX RECITES 'FOURTEEN WABBLES'

thing good in the Lodge reservations we'll never carry them into the League under that name. In any event you know, and if you don't every other man and woman in the audience knows, that the Lodge reservations never were offered in good faith. If they were, Lodge would have written them into the Republican platform. If they have been disowned by their own father, I'm certainly not going to become sponsor for them."

The Governor came from Wilmington, Del., where he spoke in the morning before a large crowd in a theatre.

Enumerate Fourteen "Wabbles."

In the course of his talk tonight he said in part:

"Senator Harding complains bitterly again that he has been misunderstood and that the papers have misrepresented him. He offers a reward to any one who will show that he has changed his attitude at any time on the League of Nations.

"Now I am here to show how he has attempted to 'wiggle and wabble' his way into the Presidency and to claim that reward, not for myself, but for the people of America. In my campaign from the Atlantic to the Pacific and back again I have found a reawakening of the American conscience and a resentment at the deceit which has been practiced by the senatorial oligarchy which has taken charge of, and run away with, the management of the Republican Party.

"After complaining that he has again been misunderstood and asking the evidence to show his changes he admits those changes by the ironical assertion that he is entitled to one more in order to make it fourteen. Now the only trouble with the Senator is this: his arithmetic is at fault. He already has had fourteen changes, so far as I am able to know, because I have not yet had opportunity to read the evening papers.

"Now let me enumerate the wabbles of which we know:

1. First he voted for the mild reservations.

2. Then he voted for the Lodge reservations.

3. Then he said a short time ago that if he had to do it over again, he wouldn't have voted even for the Lodge reservations.

4. Then he voted for the Knox resolution providing for a separate peace with Germany.

5. Then he accepted the nomination on the platform which said, "the League of Nations has signally failed." The answer to that is that forty-one nations have joined it and that the organization is now functioning.

6. Then he made a speech one morning and he said: "I have made a great discovery; I have found something that will take the place of the League—the Hague Tribunal." Somebody had sense enough to lock it up during the war. Under it within a period of fifteen years, the four greatest wars in history occurred; the Boer, the Balkan, the Russo-Japanese and the great European war of 1914-18. Theodore Roosevelt, that great American, said in his speech at Christiania in 1910 that the Hague Tribunal was a failure because there was no police power behind it.

7. Then he rejected the Hague Tribunal.

8. A week later my opponent offered a new plan. He said: "I have something better, and I am going to tell you what it is—the International Court of Justice. Elihu Root is working on it.

9. Then he found what every one had known but him, that Mr. Root had been called overseas by the statesmen of forty-one nations, now in the League, and that the International Court of Justice, which he would substitute for the League, was nothing more or less than the Internal Supreme Court of the League of Nations. And so he backed away from it and said he was through with the whole thing.

10. In his speech of Sept. 6, he said, and I quote him literally: "Amendment or revision or reconstruction of the League covenant is still among the possibilities."

11. In the same speech he also said, and again I quote him literally: "The League has now passed beyond all possibility of restoration."

12. At Des Moines, after Senator Borah had waved his Idaho club in the air, the reactionary candidate used plain words. He said: "Cox favors going into the League. I favor staying out, I am not interested in clarification. I am interested in rejection."

13. He returned to Marion from Des Moines and by that time a great storm of resentment had broken out all over the country, and then he said: "I can't understand why it is that the people of America don't understand what I have said out at Des Moines." And that he wasn't to be taken to mean what he said, when he said it and if he said it; and

14. Then he announced the formation of a new association of nations. But he failed to read the morning papers that very day because Judge Taft announced that the new Association of Nations which some people were talking about, was out of the question, impracticable and could not be thought of.

Cites Republican Divergences.

"And now," added Governor Cox when the applause and laughter had subsided, "he restates his position as that of the day on which he accepted the nomination on the platform, which said: "The League has signally failed."

The answer to that is that more than forty nations are already members of the League, and that it is an organization which is functioning.

"This pronouncement seems perfectly clear to Senator Johnson, who is able this morning to state in emphatic terms that 'there is nothing ambiguous or uncertain in our candidate's declaration. He has courageously taken his stand. He has put the League behind him. He wants neither interpretations nor reservations, but outright rejection.'

"This ought to define the issue in this campaign. Every one who is against the League of Nations is against me. That is one thing about which there can be no doubt. A few days ago at Columbus I called the roll of the groups which had been arrayed under the reactionary banner and defined the prejudices which had been played upon in an attempt to divide the friends of peace. Among them we have a group of Republicans, eminent men who in their hearts and by their voices approve the League of Nations and still try to justify their support for the candidate, who reiterates the statement that 'the League has signally failed,' and of whom Senator Johnson says 'he has put the League behind him. He is for outright rejection.'

"Senator Johnson and Senator Borah are men of independent mind and independent action. They are against any association of nations, and they are supporting Senator Harding because they know that with his election the League of Nations or any league can never be ratified.

"It is amazing that men like Elihu Root and William Howard Taft and their associates among the eminent pro-League Republicans can longer justify their support of Senator Harding in the face of the facts, unless they will frankly say that they put party obligations ahead of their duty to conscience.

"On the same page of The Philadelphia Public Ledger today are carried accounts of Senator Johnson's meeting at Hoboken and President Taft's meeting at Bloomington, Ind. The headline over the Johnson meeting says, 'Insists Harding Rejected League.' The headline over the Taft meeting says, 'Harding Favors League, says Taft.' Either Johnson is wrong or Taft is, and only Senator Harding can tell the American people which one is wrong. If Senator Harding has not given a private assurance to both men, then his declarations are so ambiguous that Taft interprets one way and Johnson another. It is the duty of Senator Harding to advise the American people frankly who is right—Johnson or Taft. If he fails to do it, he may be regarded as an impostor, deliberately seeking to deceive the American people.

When Taft Indorsed Covenant.

"No longer than May 2, 1919, at a meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce in St. Louis (and I quote from the leading reactionary newspaper of that city) a telegram was sent to Herbert S. Houston of the League to Enforce Peace by A. P. Ames, Chairman of the Committee on Information, which was in the form of a statement, prepared by ex-President Taft and President Lowell of Harvard with other members of the Executive Committee of the League to Enforce Peace, and which read:

"'The covenant for a League of Nations in amended form, adopted by the Paris Peace Conference, should satisfy all those who oppose any league whatever. It is now a thoroughly American instrument, thoroughly American and thoroughly non-partisan. Recent amendments include more important changes proposed by the leaders of the Republican party. The covenant asks the American people to surrender neither their honor nor their independence nor their dominant position in the New World. It involves no obligation that we should not be ready to assume to lessen danger of future wars. Opponents must now show their true colors. The old argument, 'We are for a league, but not the League,' will no longer serve. The issue now is, 'This League or none.'

"The fate of the covenant rests with the American people, while the Senate has the power to ratify it, to amend or reject. To amend would require reconsideration by all the Powers to it and to postpone peace indefinitely.

"Now let us see what would happen to the League should Senator Harding be elected. In the first place, he is definitely against it. Therefore, the mandate of the people in his election would be to reject the League were it not to be thought that Senator Harding was fooling Borah and Johnson instead of Taft and Root, and that he would in the final analysis turn to the latter.

"Even then there could be no ratification. Certainly Senatorial candidates—elected co incidentally with Senator Harding, would recognize the people's mandate for staying out of the League. With his election he would have within his own party two distinct and warring groups, each of which would be fighting for domination and each of which would have an irreconcilable attitude toward the other.

"Senators Borah and Johnson have nothing in common with Mr. Taft and Mr. Root. Nor could Mr. Taft be expected to exercise influence and leadership over the Senatorial oligarchy, which nominated and controlled Senator Harding. This group of Senators is the same, man for man, which helped to drive Judge Taft out of the Presidency.

"Therefore, the election of Harding could under no circumstances and by no means assure or even promise ratification of the Treaty and the League, and I want to emphasize Judge Taft's own expression that a new association is unthinkable and impossible and that 'it is this League of Nations, or no league of nations.'

Our Duty to the World.

"Now in the Des Moines speech Harding also said that 'we should consecrate ourselves to the welfare of America and not to the welfare of the rest of the world.' I am sure I quote him literally on that observation.

"Now reflect upon that. Are we going to build a world of our own on this hemisphere or are we going to remain subject to the dominion of Almighty God, who intended that we should be a part of the world that he created? Now, suppose we cut our cloth to the limits of the civilization on this hemisphere, and we close our eyes to trade with the world.

"Then we will be impelled to produce only what we consume. If that be done, 30 per cent. of our factories will be closed and 20 per cent. of our soil, now tilled, will not be cultivated at all. If we are to be a great nation, we must develop commercially; but we cannot unless we trade with the world.

"Now there is evidence of a business recession. Why? Because the market, the outlet for American goods, is almost disappearing. Why? Because Europe can't buy. Why? Because she hasn't credit. Why? Because the agencies that establish credit say to the nations of Europe. 'We can't give you credit until we know that you can pay your existing national debts, and we won't know that until we are convinced that you are going to stop wasting hundreds and millions and billions of dollars in the mintenance of large armaments.'

"The nations of Europe say, 'We can't stop it unless America stops.' And America can't and will not stop unless Europe stops. Therefore, we must all stop together and we have the chance by all of us together signing the covenant of the League of Nations, which will reduce, if not in time absolutely do away with, national armaments in the world.

"How any business man who knows full well the meaning of establishing the financial stability of the world, can oppose the League of Nations is past my understanding. I am going to sit down with the Senate and I am going to consult with organized statesmen, and I believe we can agree with the Senate.

"I have confidence that an American mandate will have proved a very potential remedy, and then we will go into the League of Nations and join her flag with the other flags of the League. That is based, however, on the presumption that every nation must subscribe to the conditions of the League. When the flags are all assembled at the headquarters of the League, then the angels can look down from heaven and sing again, 'Peace on earth, good will to men.'"

Denies League Can Coerce Us.

The reception to Governor Cox at Wilmington was a warm one. The streets were lined with men and women and the Governor was cheered almost continuously as his automobile proceeded to the theatre. There was a great jam about the building and only a few of the crowd were able to gain entrance.

In his address the Governor replied to the charge of the Republican leaders that the League was an instrument of war and would result in American soldiers being sent abroad whenever there was a squabble over a boundary. When he named Senator Lodge as the "arch-conspirator of the ages" there were "boos" and "hisses." Mention of Harding as one of the Senators who signed the "infamous round robin" caused more "boos."

In the course of his speech Governor Cox said:

"You have been told repeatedly that the League had power to declare war. Now everybody who knows anything knows that Congress, and Congress alone, under our Constitution, has the power to declare war. Therefore, this assertion could mean only one thing; namely, that the covenant of the League was in contravention of our Constitution, and not only of our own Constitution, but of the Constitutions of most of the forty-three nations that have already joined the League. To make such an assertion is to insult the intelligence and deny the patriotism of the leading statesmen of the world.

"A prominent Republican jurist, Judge William H. Wadhams, served as Chairman of the Special Committee of the American Bar Association, that reported in precise language, 'Article X. is not in violation of the Constitution of the United States, for power to declare war is not delegated to the League.'

"Within a fortnight one of the principal editorial advocates of the reactionary candidate went out of the way to answer the maliciously false interpretations being made by the supporters of the reactionary candidate of our obligations under Article X., in these words, 'That claim has been one of the most meretricious and demagogic lies of the campaign.'

"Recently, on one of those rare occasions when the reactionary candidate has been permitted to stray from the front porch, he was confronted with the question, 'Could the League of Nations, if the United States were a member of it, call this country into war without the consent of Congress?' Indiscreetly falling into an unequivocal reply, he said, 'Certainly not.'

Course of Disputes Under the League.

"In the event of a serious situation developing between two or more nations of the world, what will happen under the League? First, it will be brought to the attention of the Council of the League. Whenever the nature of the case permits, the Council will undertake to have the parties to the dispute present their cause before the Permanent Court of International Justice, agreeing in advance to await arbitration and abide by the decision of the court. But if the matter is immediately urgent, and decisive action is imperative, then the Council will make an effort to bring the parties together by conciliation, the Council acting as mediator. If they should fail in this effort, then all the members of the Council, except the parties to the dispute, would try to reach unanimous agreement as to the course of action to be recommended. No action can be recommended except by unanimous vote, which means that if the action contemplated is not approved by our representative on the Council he would cast his vote in the negative and thus exercise the power of veto.

"Not until every other method has failed would there be any need for ever considering drastic measures. But if it be contended that a desperate crisis might arise, such as that which threatened the world in July, 1914, then the Council would sit in special conference. If all the representatives on the Council were agreed that to meet the situation it was necessary to employ other means, then it would be empowered to make such recommendation.

"We should never, in the maze of wiggling and wabbling pronouncements, lose sight of the uncontrovertible fact that under Article X. the Council can render only advice, and that even this action cannot be taken unless every representative, including our own, votes in the affirmative.

"Furthermore, and this cannot be said too plainly, in view of the nationwide misrepresentation, one of the five Hitchcock reservations, approved by President Wilson and voted down by the treaty wreckers in the Senate, clearly says that in signing the covenant, including Article X., we do not in any degree relinquish our sovereign rights to determine what is our national duty. The exact language is as follows:

That the advice mentioned in Article X. of the covenant of the League which the Council may give to the member nations as to the employment of their naval and military forces is merely advice which each member nation is free to accept or reject, according to the conscience and judgment of its then existing Government, and in the United States this advice can only be accepted by action of the Congress at the time in being, Congress alone under the Constitution of the United States having the power to declare war.

"I want to state very emphatically what I have repeatedly said: I am in favor of that reservation, or any similar reservation that will tend to reassure the American public, and at the same time remind all other members of the League of our constitutional limitations."

Speaks in New Jersey Today.

HARDING CHARGES DEMOCRATS EVADE

SAYS WILSON PLAN IS DEAD

Nominee Appeals for Miller and Wadsworth in Visit to Buffalo and Rochester.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, Oct. 21.—Devoting a day of his Presidential campaign to New York State, Senator Harding confined himself mainly to a discussion of the League of Nations in his addresses here tonight and at Rochester this morning.

Before an enthusiastic and noisy crowd in the Broadway Auditorium tonight, at a meeting where Judge Nathan L. Miller, Republican candidate for Governor, had spoken before him, Senator Harding referred to his qualifications for the Presidency and intimated that his front porch study of national problems during the Summer had added to his capabilities for the office which he seeks.

"I have myself had a wide experience with mankind," he said. "I have been an employer of labor; I have been able to maintain peace with labor. I have worked shoulder to shoulder with labor, and in the quarter of the country where I was born I have had wide opportunity to know many kinds of men and women. I have had positions of responsibility in my State and in my nation. I have come in contact with problems which concern the humane administration of society.

"I believed when this campaign began that I knew full well the needs of Americans. Today I believe I know more fully their needs. Today I know them more deeply and more intimately. As any man who is to be charged with grave responsibility must always learn the hearts of our people, I always want to learn. I seek understanding, and above all I seek understanding of the necessity for conservation of our human resources."

Charges Evading Home Issues.

Concentrating upon the League issue at Buffalo, Senator Harding said that the "American people, as well as the Senate of the United States, long ago rejected the President's plan, which my opponent is now trying to keep alive."

The reason for keeping this issue alive, the Senator said at Rochester in the morning, was that "it is designed to divert the attention of the American people from the unhappy failure of domestic administration."

Nevertheless, the Republicans accepted this issue, Senator Harding said, because they had confidence in America's future.

"If nationality is to be merged in internationality," he said, "if barriers of trade are to be swept away, if supergovernment is to decide our fate, if the aspirations of peoples are to end in the existing order of 1919, if a world council of labor is to make one standard for all mankind, if all we have striven for and gloried in accomplishing is to be forgotten in some dream of universality, it doesn't matter much what we do about our domestic affairs."

Leaving Rochester early in the afternoon, where he spoke to 5,000 in Convention Hall and at two overflow meetings, Senator Harding was joined by Charles D. Hilles, Republican National Committeeman for New York, and received a noisy greeting from crowds on Buffalo streets on his way to the Hotel Iroquois, where he and Mrs. Harding shook hands with several hundred people. Later Judge Miller joined the receiving line.

"Don't Pussyfoot," Note Urged.

At Rochester Senator Harding received a note asking him to state his position with regard to the League. "Don't pussyfoot any more," it concluded.

"No, no, no," a man in Convention Hall shouted when Senator Harding termed the League Covenant as now constituted the "first surrender of constitutional integrity in America." A part of the audience hissed the interrupter, while others applauded Senator Harding. Referring to the hisses, Senator Harding pleaded:

"No, no, Sir. I want to talk to this fellow-countryman; I want you to let him listen to this statement: 'More than that, when the Council of the League of Nations, noting a member of the League threatened from without, calls upon America for her boys for war, either the Congress of the United States of America must respond or you have stained this fair Republic with the grossest of dishonor.'

"I do not propose, my countrymen, to make any promise to other nations of the earth that the United States of America does not intend to keep. I do not make a proposal to the world in campaign times that we are going to change as soon as the campaign is over. I am in favor of keeping out of war in Presidential years as in off years, precisely the same way."

Plea for Miller and Wadsworth.

Senator Harding, his voice husky with a cold, put in a good word tonight for Judge Miller's candidacy. He then spoke in behalf of Senator Wadsworth's re-election.

"There isn't a better candidacy in America," he said, "than that of my devoted friend, your able Senator, Jim Wadsworth. There isn't a young man in the United States Senate today who gives so much promise of eminent public service as your own Senator Wadsworth.

"I have sat by him during five years' service. We have exchanged opinions, and I know his capacity and his courage, and I don't know a finer man in public life.

"I don't think all of you in Buffalo were for my nomination at Chicago."

"We're all for you now," came from the back of the hall.

"Senator Wadsworth and I never had a word about the Presidency until I was nominated," Senator Harding continued, leaning over the speakers' platform and emphasizing every word. "I don't think he was for me, but that doesn't mar my estimate of him, and I want him to have a plurality that speaks the confidence of the great Empire State.

"Don't be distressed about a Senate cabal. There isn't any. But I wish there was some method of harmonizing the Senate as an effective agency. It might have been done last year but for the interference of an Executive who wasn't satisfied with his end of the Capitol."

Nominee's Speech at Buffalo.

John Lord O'Brian presided at the Buffalo meeting and introduced Senator Harding. The Senator said in part:

"I realize the difference between my position and that of my opponent when either of us deals with the League of Nations. We have no differences in our realization that the American people with the generosity and conscience which has always characterized them, desire to enter into some kind of an association of nations which will prevent war and interweave all peoples with the bonds of peaceful co-operation.

"But there are two marked differences between us. The first of these is to be found in the fact that my opponent is insisting upon the adoption of the unchanged Paris League of Nations. I insist that that adoption not only would be fatal to our nationality, to the preservation of our Constitution, to the freedom of our conscience and to the sanctity of our flag, but that it means not an association based upon justice but an association whose very soul is militarism.

"The Republican position is the exact opposite of that position. I, on my part, not only know that it is unwise and indeed fatal to American independence to put our head into the noose of Europe, but that it is wholly impossible. The American people, as well as the Senate of the United States, long ago rejected the President's plan, which my opponent is now trying to keep alive. Even if my opponent were elected he would be unable to put his program into effect, and America would have to wait, for many years, perhaps, before she could be united upon any policy.

"For my part, I consider it much more constructive to refrain from dictation of any inflexible policy. I consider it more constructive to show a willingness to consult America, to harmonize America, to consult the best opinion of America, the Senate of the United States, and the will of the people.

"I do not find any inspiration in carrying on this campaign so as to maintain a hopeless division of opinion. I want to look forward to creating a harmony of opinion. The only way in which we can participate in an association of nations is by a United America, and I believe that it will be my task to unite America behind the part which she will play in an association of nations.

"But, my countrymen, do not be deceived by any emphasis which is placed upon our obligations to the outside world unless that emphasis is given with the best of faith. Do not let yourselves be deceived by those who would turn your attention away from the fact that mismanagement of our own affairs at home has done more than any other one thing to prevent us from doing our duty to the world.

Says Bad Example Is Set.

"I have said during all of this campaign that we must pay more attention to example than to preaching, and I want to point out that we are not fulfilling our greatest duty, even to the outside world, by allowing gross mismanagement of our own affairs to set a bad example to everybody.

"As a mere matter of setting a bad example to others, we would be blameworthy indeed as a nation if we allowed the prodigality and waste and bad general management which have brought us to the verge of disaster to continue. We would be blameworthy indeed if we, a people proud of our business ability, should allow the grotesque inefficiency of the last eight years to continue a day longer than is necessary.

"Our Government is our most important business, and we have had the humiliation of seeing it waste the taxpayers' money in terms of billions of dollars. We have seen it pervert our constitutional practices, and we have seen it set up a one-man democracy. We have seen it waste more than the entire cost of the civil war on an experiment in administering our railways. We have seen it continue to overload the Government with useless employes, who ought to be in productive occupations. We have seen it impair our postal service. We have seen it meddle unnecessarily and with withering effect, in American business and American prosperity, so that its bane has been felt by all of us, by the investor, by the professional man, by the laborer, the farmer, and, indeed, all Americans.

"I believe that the American people long ago made up their minds that we had had enough of mismanagement, and I only want to point out now that mismanagement of our affairs at home not only has been bringing us toward a point where factories would be closed, industry shut down, agriculture hampered and unemployment on every side, but it has been bringing us to a point where we have shirked our very first duty to the distressed foreign nations by failing to set a good example.

Hopes for Unity on Plan.

"We have been right in discussing America's relationship to the affairs of the world. I have taken my willing part in that discussion. I have been unwilling to accept the Democratic program because it is not only un-American and unwise, but because it is wholly impossible of fulfillment and simply tends to keep the American people in a ferment of useless controversy.

"It is my duty to turn my back upon the impossible and, with my fellow Americans, to set my face toward the future with full hope for a united and constructive plan in our world affairs. It is in this same attitude that nations of Europe are now found, and it is in this attitude that the overwhelming majority of the American people have fixed their determination. But I have been unable to allow my opponents to blind me, any more than they have blinded any other Americans of good common sense, by endeavoring to make their impossible program crowd out our consideration of our domestic problems and the major contribution of example that we can make to the world in their wise and proper solution.

"To me it appears that it is the duty of America and Americans to set a good example to the world. Accordingly, I have conscientiously suggested measures for the restoration of the constitutional Government of the Republic to replace the false label of democracy which has masked an unparalleled centralization of power in the executive. We have talked democracy to the world so much that it is our duty to put the real article into our own practices and into our own Government.

Social Justice Plan Urged.

"Perhaps the most benevolent thing that we can do for the suffering peoples of the world is to maintain a model social justice in America. I seek understanding, and, above all, I seek understanding of the necessity for conservation of our human resources.

"It is the understanding which has made me declare for new standards in America of health, new inspiration for education, new organization in government, so that the problems of our human resources can be dealt with and with something more than words. I have taken a step in advance by suggesting that we create a department of public welfare under our government. I have urged, as all good Americans, even though foresight of our future is not accompanied by any impulsive sentiment must urge, that full protection must be given to our maternity and our childhood. I want protection for our women in industry. I want representation of women in government to protect the interest of the American woman and the American child. I want a proper administration of the full measure of care and recompense to the soldiers and sailors who have suffered in the defense of their country's ideals.

"I want the Federal Government to act to standardize as much as possible the State laws which are humane and based on social justice so that the States which are most liberal shall not be penalized for their progressive awakening.

"It has been the Republican Party which has served social justice with deeds rather than with words. I want it to always serve in the maintenance of our national health, the welfare of our homes, and the protection and care of those who are in brotherhood with us and need our loyalty. I want it to serve the whole of the American people, so that there shall be recognized the duty of one to all and the duty of all toward one.

"I want to abolish terrorism in America, and the raid with brutal night sticks and Czarism. I want an America that is never flabby nor supinely sentimental in the enforcement of our laws, or in a lax protection of our institutions.

"I want an America to continue, where childhood has a right to happiness, motherhood to health, every one to education and all Americans the right to our equal opportunity. Only with such an America can we serve the world in the way we can serve best—by the example of a Government always responsive, always understanding, always humane."

Immediately after his speech at the Auditorium here Senator Harding left for Marion and is scheduled to arrive there early tomorrow morning. He will direct a large part of his attention to the Ohio campaign and the preparation of four speeches to be delivered in large Ohio cities next week.

GOV. SMITH WANTS DRY LAW ENFORCED

But Would Amend Volstead Act to Allow State to Fix Alcoholic Content.

SAYS MILLER SHIRKS DUTY

Calls on Him to Define His Platform on the Primary Law and on Control of Water Power.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Governor Smith, in an address in Convention Hall here tonight, declared himself in accord with the State Democratic platform on the liquor question, which he said provided for an amendment to the so-called Volstead act that will make operative the act passed by the State Legislature and signed by the Governor defining non-intoxicating beverages and providing for the regulation of their sale.

"I am convinced by Judge Miller's Jamestown speech," he said, "that he is in a desperate position because of his lack of an issue against me or my administration. He speaks of the man who is whispering around that the election of Governor Smith will mean wine, beer or whisky.

"I hope that the Judge is not turning demagogue. He is too good a lawyer to believe that the election of anybody to the Governorship of New York can bring about any amendment of a Federal statute. That is a cold-blooded and deliberate misrepresentation for the purpose of capturing votes. Why doesn't the Judge keep the campaign on the high plane on which he promised the people of this State he would keep it? Why doesn't he make an honest appeal for votes?

"The way to do that is to answer honestly the questions I have asked him. The way to do that is to tell the people of the State where he stands in regard to the Republican Saratoga platform adopted by the unofficial convention which named him as its choice.

"I have repeatedly asked him what his attitude is on direct primaries. It seems to me that the manner and method of nominating candidates is a matter of great interest not only to the members of the political parties, but to all citizens of the State. He seems unwilling to answer. He finds himself standing between love and duty. He would love to get the votes, but he shirks the duty of defining his own platform.

"The same thing applies to water power. The same thing applies to the executive budget and to reorganization of the State Government. The same thing applies to daylight saving. The Judge seems unwilling to interpret the hypocritical planks of his party's platform.

"I have made known my position on the dry law in language which nobody can misunderstand. Every law should be enforced by the Governor. But I stand squarely with the Democratic platform, which says: 'We favor an agreement to the so-called Volstead act which will make operative the act passed by the Republican State Legislature and signed by Governor Smith defining non-intoxicating beverages and providing for the regulation of their sale.'

"If Thompson were not in the race, what would the Judge's attitude be?

"In a statement made early in the campaign I said that I believed, as I still believe, in the enforcement of every statute once it is passed. But I repeat that I do not approve passing a law which will create a State spy system, that will put a heavy burden upon the taxpayers to pay for a great State machine and duplicate functions already being performed. We had a sample of that in the Excise Department, where political pull and political favor were predominating factors.

"I find no fault with the Judge's catering to the dry element in order to get votes. But he should not deceive the great rank and file of the people of the State.

"It is impossible for me to take a hypocritical attitude on this or any other question. I cannot be wet in a wet territory and a dry in a dry territory. I would sooner declare for the principle that I believe in and stand on it, no matter where I may be.

"Judge Miller will be in the city of Rochester tomorrow night. Let him stop quibbling and wriggling and wabbling and discuss the Republican Saratoga platform. That platform is the declaration of political faith on which he is standing. It calls for the destruction of direct primaries and the return of the 'bossed' convention. It calls for turning over our great water power to private corporations. He is either for it or against it.

"Let him speak up."

MILLER DERIDES SMITH AT HARDING MEETING

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, Oct. 21.—Ex-Judge Nathan L. Miller, Republican candidate for Governor, shared the Broadway Auditorium platform here tonight with Senator Harding. He spoke before the Senator.

"Already in the canvass there are signs of distress from the enemy," ex-Judge Miller said. "Indeed, the standard bearer of the Democratic Party in this State struck his colors before the canvass began, for, although he had a conspicuous hand at San Francisco in the selection of the candidate and in the adoption of the platform, since the canvass started he seems to have been struck with a sort of aphasia, and he has been unable to pronounce the name 'Cox.'

"He has been going over the State begging me to talk about State issues. And he is in such stress to find something to talk about that he seeks to make an issue of the public health, of State prison reform, of the care of our insane and charitable institutions, and he is asking me to debate with him his proposal to establish a minimum wage commission, in this year, when our troubles are not from minimum wages, but from the maximum costs of everything the people have to buy, occasioned by the extravagant cost of both State and National Government.

"Now, you cannot fail to have observed the significance of this. It is a confession of defeat. It is a surrender. It is a plea of guilty to the indictment which we bring against the Democratic National Administration.

"Before the campaign started, Governor Smith hauled down the national colors of his party, and he has been begging me ever since to do the same to mine, but I propose to keep them flying until the polls close on election day. The Governor, so far as I have been able to observe, has made just one contribution to national issues. He set aside next Sunday and has asked the people of this State to devote that day, not to reading the Bible, but to reading the wonderful covenant of the League of Nations.

"Well, I hope that all the people of the State will follow the Governor's admonition. I hope especially that they will read Article X., and I am sure that when they do they will all devoutly thank God that we had in the Senate of the United States men of the Americanism, the courage and the patriotism of Warren G. Harding to save us.

"And you have observed the signs of distress which the National Democratic standard bearer is flying, for only this morning you doubtless read a letter from Candidate Cox to a distinguished American citizen in which the candidate says that he is ready to consult. What heresy! The disciple of Wilson, ready to consult! The man who in that famous interview, according to the testimony of himself and Mr. Wilson, found themselves as one, now in the closing days of the canvass says that he is ready to consult."

Before his arrival here tonight Judge Miller addressed eleven meetings and to get to some of them he had to ride ninety-one miles in automobiles. He spoke in Falconer, Fredonia, Westfield, Dunkirk, Mayville and made six speeches from the rear of his special. A plea for law enforcement and a pledge to conduct "the affairs of the State economically," were the themes of his talks.

LA FOLLETTE TAKES STUMP.

Assails Lenroot and the Democrats in Milwaukee Speech.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 21.—Showing signs of his recent illness, but employing all his old-time vigor, Senator La Follette made his first campaign speech in four years tonight before a crowd which packed the Auditorium.

Though confining himself mostly to State issues, he devoted part of his address to national politics, attacking the Wilson Administration as a failure, the League of Nations as a bargain in which the independence of the United States would be bartered away, and the Esch-Cummins bill as the greatest setback to the solution of the national transportation problem.

In part he said:

"We are at the crisis of the history of this country. The Democratic Party has failed to give the people relief from the problems affecting their daily life. The Republicans will undoubtedly enter into power on March 4. I warn you that the same sinister forces which gained control of the present Administration will seek to control the Republican. Just as the reactionaries controlled Taft, they will seek to control Harding.

"The only hope of the people lies in that small group of independent Senators and Congressmen who, regardless of the press and money power, will refuse to bow to the party lash."

Of Senator Lenroot he said: "I cannot support a man who voted for the Espionage law, by which hundreds of loyal citizens were persecuted—a man who won his nomination by deceit and duplicity."

ROOSEVELT REPORTS WEST GOING TO COX

Last Two Weeks, He Says, Have Seen Great Quickening of Pro-League Sentiment.

PREDICTS SURPRISE NOV. 3

Puts Change to Harding's Speech Scrapping Covenant—Returns to New York to End Campaign.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 21.—Before leaving for New York, where he is to wind up a campaign in which he has visited practically every Western State north of the Mason and Dixon Line, Franklin D. Roosevelt said today that the last two weeks have witnessed a remarkable quickening of Democratic and pro-League sentiment in the West and Middle West.

"If this movement continues to gather momentum, as it has during the last two weeks," said Mr. Roosevelt, "those who predict a Republican landslide have a surprise coming to them on the day after election."

Mr. Roosevelt, during his trip through the West, has spoken at upward of 150 meetings, big and small. There have been days when he has addressed as many as ten audiences. Delivering his first speech in the early morning hours he has spoken to huge audiences in large cities and addressed little groups of farmers at cross roads miles and miles away from the main arteries of travel.

"I have learned a great deal since I started out campaigning," said Mr. Roosevelt. "I regard as a great privilege the almost unlimited opportunity I have had to come in close contact with the people of practically every Northern State. I dare say I have received more inspiration from my audiences than they have from my talks."

Mr. Roosevelt said that the League of Nations covenant had been the text of every speech he had made and that as far as his audience were concerned they appeared to be interested in no other topic.

"I have marveled at the interest displayed among audiences I have addressed which were made up of people who live far away from big cities and daily newspapers.

"We had a typical demonstration of this at a meeting I addressed recently at Ridgeville, Indiana. This is a very small community. We were roused out of our berths at 5 in the morning. After a hurried early breakfast in a small private house in the town I was rushed to a stand in the open air and began speaking at 6 o'clock or shortly thereafter. One might think that hour too early for a campaign meeting, but there was a crowd of automobiles and horse-drawn conveyances through which we could make our way to the platform only with the utmost difficulty. Something like 400 farmers had driven to this meeting, many starting from their homes long before daylight in order to hear the League of Nations explained. They listened patiently, asked a good many questions and were most generous with their applause."

At Butte, Mon., Mr. Roosevelt had another odd campaign experience when he addressed an audience which had waited until after midnight in order to hear a speech on the League covenant.

Mr. Roosevelt said that, according to his observation and that of other Democratic campaign speakers with whom he had compared notes, this tide setting toward the Democratic candidates had become fully manifest only after Senator Harding had delivered his speech at Des Moines, Iowa, advocating that the League be scrapped.

"I do not think, necessarily, that this new hopeful outlook is due to voters who have shifted their allegiance from the Republican to the Democratic candidates," said Mr. Roosevelt. "At least my observations have not led me to think that this view would apply generally. I believe a majority of the voters have waited to make up their minds until they had received all the light they possibly could get on the League, and that this eleventh hour crystallization of sentiment is due to widespread processes of deliberation of that character from which there is not likely to be any sudden reaction."

Roosevelt Campaigns in New York.

NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic Vice Presidential nominee, in a series of speeches through Northwestern New York today carried the League of Nations issue before the voters of his home State, in a final effort to place New York in the Democratic column in the Presidential election.

Touching but briefly on subjects other than the League, Mr. Roosevelt declared the League should never have been made the "football of politics" and that it was the greatest issue that has come before the American voters since the civil war.

to declare war and that there are limits to legislation and treaty-making power. All Governments of civilized nations know it. You accomplish nothing by telling them of it again.

"The trouble about giving the guarantee provided in Article X. is that the making of a treaty containing it is a solemn assurance to all the nations that it is within the treaty-making power and that the promise to make war binds Congress as fully as it binds all other members of our Government to maintain the plighted faith of the United States. In all Governments the power to declare war rests somewhere, and an agreement to make war is an agreement that that power shall be so exercised by the officers in whom it rests. A refusal by Congress to pass the necessary resolution would simply be a breach of the treaty.

"An analagous case is the power of Congress to appropriate money. There is no other power in our Government to do that, but, if the United States makes a treaty agreeing to pay a million dollars to another country, would any one say that the obligation could be cancelled by a refusal of Congress to appropriate the money? Certainly not; the only effect would be that the United States would have broken faith. The real question is whether we shall enter into a guarantee under which the faith of treaties will require Congress to pass a resolution declaring war. That is what the President proposed. That is what your telegram makes it clear you propose.

"On the same day you sent the telegram, according to the press reports, in a meeting at Providence some one in the audience asked you 'would you accept the Lodge reservations to the League of Nations?' There was your opportunity. Among those reservations was one which said: 'The United States assumes no obligation to preserve the territorial integrity or political independence of any other country by the employment of its military or naval forces, et cetera, unless in any particular case the Congress, which under the Constitution has the sole power to declare war or to authorize the employment of the military or naval forces of the United States, shall in the exercise of full liberty of action by act or joint resolution so provide.'

"That reservation would leave Congress free whenever the time came to act in accordance with its judgment and conscience and the judgment and conscience of its constituents regarding the merits of the controversy at that time.

"Your position, as you now state it, would leave Congress bound by the solemn pledge of faith of our country to pass the resolution for war, no matter what the merits of the controversy might be.

"If you did not mean that Congress should be bound, you had an opportunity at that meeting in Providence to say, 'I agree to this reservation or to this part of this reservation.' Your answer is reported to have been, 'The Lodge reservations never were seriously suggested. If they had been Senator Lodge would have declared for them in the Republican platform adopted at Chicago.' And thus you sidestepped the question, and you state in your telegram to me the perfectly futile thing you are willing to do upon the subject of Article X.

"Your telegram to me undertakes to state your case, and both what you say and what you refrain from saying confirm the understanding I expressed in my speech that your position and purpose are to impose upon the United States the covenant negotiated at Paris without any real change whatever.

"ELIHU ROOT."

DR. HILL DISPUTES COLBY.

Says Harding Can Call Hague Conference and Propose Court of Justice

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—Dr. David Jayne Hill, former Ambassador to Germany, speaking at the City Club tonight, attacked Secretary Colby's statement in an address at Springfield, Ill., on Oct. 15, that members of the League of Nations were "bound not to enter into discussion" with Senator Harding, if he should be elected President, with regard to any other association of nations.

"Article XX. of the covenant prohibits only such engagements as are inconsistent with the terms of the covenant. Are the Hague conventions inconsistent with the terms of the covenant? Is any future development of the universal society of States which framed those conventions inconsistent with the terms of the covenant?"

Dr. Hill pointed out that the draft of the court of international justice, proposed by the League, recognizes the results of the Hague conventions and makes the members of the Hague Court of Arbitration the nominating body for the new court.

"President Harding," he added, "would probably call a third conference of the members of the Hague convention. He would propose a court of justice to which all nations might appeal on equal terms, with provision for the revision and amplification of international law. Would any nation venture to say that such a universal society of States should not exist?"

GLOOM IN BRITAIN OVER RAIL STRIKE

utmost delay allowable. In the end the extremists won.

The transport workers will undoubtedly follow the example of the railway men.

Robert Williams, Secretary of the Transport Workers' Federation, issued a statement to the effect that "unless something tangible happens between the Government, which was responsible for negotiations on the owners' side, and the Miners' Federation in the next twenty-four hours, the issue will have to be joined between the whole of the working classes and those who support the Government in their obduracy." Williams's ultimatum was a serious symptom of the spirit dominant in many labor quarters, but its point was blunted by the fact that the transport workers' executive adjourned their meeting this afternoon, not to meet again this week "unless the situation assumes a graver turn."

Informal parleyings which had been afoot since Tuesday's debate, with a view to renewing formal negotiations between the Government and the Miners' Federation, tonight had advanced far enough for the miners' officials to summon their executive back to London. If a meeting between the Government and the miners' executive is arranged, it is stated by the political correspondent of The Daily Chronicle that an entirely new method of adjusting differences would be put forward.

Editorially The Daily Chronicle believes that with continued patience and reasonableness, despite the untimely resolution of the railwaymen, "we may even yet reach an honorable settlement before many days are over."

Among those in the employers' camps who hold that the great supreme conflict has yet to come, and had better come now than later, there is some jubilation over the fact that the railway-men's action is bound to harden the feeling of the general public against the strikers. The strike which the railwaymen threaten, unless the coal dispute is settled, would be the most extreme development of a sympathetic strike yet witnessed in Great Britain, for the railwaymen have no grievance of their own and no more concern in the miners' demands than other sections of the community. The general public, it is believed, will see in this instance of the "solidarity of labor" a convincing proof that an attempt is being made to set up a dictatorship of labor. That, if the worst comes, the Government, representing the nation, will prove more than a match for any number of unions is confidently believed.

Opinion tonight appears to be that a great disastrous conflict cannot be averted now. "It is a thousand to one against settlement," says one authority. "With ultimatums hurled at the Government's head, it can less than ever afford to make any move which would be construed as giving way. It has got to take up the gauntlet thrown down by the unions."

Even the probability that the miners' executive will be requested by the Government to consider whether the miners' executive could not offer some definite guarantee of increased output which would justify the Government in granting an immediate increase in wages is not believed to hold out much hope of an arrangement being come to.

Further, the railwaymen have greatly increased the Government's difficulties by thrusting in with the threat of a railway strike on Sunday unless the Government yields or settles matters which may not be in its power to settle. Already this resolution, forced by the extremists among the railwaymen, has embittered the informal talks which began today. This threat, while the miners themselves, it is stated, did not want the railwaymen's intervention, is likely to stiffen up opposition in unfriendly quarters on the employers' side.

The Daily News says editorially: "Williams [the transport workers' leader] and those who think with him may imagine that the way to lasting peace lies through rallying the whole of the working classes against the Government. Lloyd George and the interests behind him may be convinced that there are advantages to be gained by a fight to a finish with trade unionism. If this is the temper of the two sides, whatever the immediate future may produce, the gravity of the country's peril is evident. There is an obvious and grim resemblance in the situation to that which led up to the catastrophe of 1914."

Describing the attitude of the employers who welcome a strike to end strikes as sinister, the radical organ continues: "Their secret—almost their avowed aim—is now the destruction of trade unionism. Lord Weir has expressed the philosophy of this movement in his demand that industrial unrest shall be treated as a definite political issue, and his suggestion that the community would be better for a period of sharp but temporary privation and trial as a means of escape from a decade or two of continuously increasing discontent, unrest, and possible destitution.

"Is it certain," asks The News, "that the destruction of trade unionism would lead to even a relative industrial peace? Is it not certain, on the other hand, that unorganized industry would be more discontented, more ready to strike, more irresponsible and violent than any trade union can possibly afford to be?"

LONDON, Oct. 21 (Associated Press).—Two grave questions are exercising the political and industrial world; the first, to what extent the labor leaders are losing control of the workers; second, whether a political crisis and an appeal to the country will develop out of the miners' dispute.

Premier Lloyd George was in informal conversation with some of the labor leaders today, but little hope seems to be entertained that the Government will recede from its position of insisting upon an increased output, or submission of the dispute to an independent tribunal as a condition for an increase in wages.

Even had the Government been inclined to recede from this position, it is felt that it could hardly do so now in the face of the railway men's threat. Undoubtedly the solidarity of the workers, as shown by the action of the railway and transport men, comes somewhat as a surprise to the public, because the miners' strike is unpopular with almost the entire community. The seeming inconsistency is explained by some of the labor leaders as due to the universal belief among the workers that the Government, under pressure of big business interests, has decided that a halt must be called to the continual increases in wages.

The effect of the coal strike is appreciably felt by the various unions affiliated with the National Transport Workers' Federation, the members of which are being thrown out of employment in increasing numbers by the coal stoppage.

The reports of the stoppage of work from various branches, which were laid before the Executive reassembling today were serious. From 50,000 to 100,000 transport workers are idle, and hundreds of thousands of other workers in other callings have been obliged to remain idle, according to Secretary Robert Williams, who declared: "It would appear better to widen the issue instantly and get the dispute settled, in preference to allowing ourselves to drift without either compass or rudder."

At midday thousands connected with the shipping industry were idle. The Clyde area was especially affected. At Newcastle, Hull, Cardiff and other coal ports the work of loading vessels decreased, and it is expected that unemployment will be intensified as the supplies of fuel diminish. Many steamers are lying idle for lack of cargoes and the seafaring community on the northeast coast is already beginning to suffer hardship. In northwest Durham several burglaries have occurred.

Feeling has become acute in various places, and some branches of the Transport Federation have adopted resolutions urging the federation to take sympathetic action with the miners. The Executive Committee of the Liverpool and North Wales Council of the National Union of Railway Men has adopted a resolution recommending that immediate instructions be given to members to refuse to handle coal of any description and in the event of failure to reach a settlement before Oct. 24 that a national strike shall be called.

Reductions in the number of trains have already been made on all the principal English lines, and a drastic curtailment was made today on the Irish railways and Dublin train services to conserve the coal supply.

No change was reported in the situation in South Wales, where the attitude of the miners is still a determined one. The only trouble chronicled was another small disturbance in the Ton-y-Pandy area last evening.

Belgian Strikes Begin.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 21.—The suspension of the export of British coal will be felt here first in the shipping and gas industries, which use large quantities of the British product. But no serious difficulty is expected before December unless the proposed Belgian miners' strike become effective, as local needs are being filled by Belgian coal.

It is feared that the Belgian miners will strike on Nov. 2 in the Mons collieries. Two thousanad men in the Charleroi collieries struck yesterday as a protest against a tax on their wages.

HAND-MADE PAPER

THE old way of making paper was to shake the liquid mass of paper pulp in a flat, fine-meshed screen, called the "mould." The water drained through the screen and the fibres of the rag pulp were felted together into a sheet of paper. The sheet was just the size of the "mould," and the rough edge all around was the natural deckle edge.

In the Crane Mills paper is made by machines which do on a large scale what the hand "mould" did on a small one. The machines make paper of a more even weight and quality, and in larger pieces—in a continuous web, in fact; but the quality that was gotten into the paper by the hand "mould" is maintained. And the practice of making paper wholly of rags is maintained.

HARDING LEADS COX IN POLL OF COLLEGES

COLUMBIA GOES 760 TO 642

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 21.—Senator Harding was an easy winner in the intercollegiate straw vote for President which was held Wednesday in sixteen of the leading Eastern colleges. The results, which were announced tonight by Foster R. Dulles, Secretary of the Eastern Intercollegiate Newspaper Association and editor of The Daily Princetonian, gave the Republican candidate 8,318 votes to 3,888 for Cox.

Harding carried not only the general total, but also polled the greatest number of votes in every university with the single exception of Richmond College. The other candidates in the field were on the ballots prepared by the association, but they polled a total of less than one-tenth the ballots cast for Harding alone.

Richmond College, where the undergraduates held true to the traditions of the "Solid South," rolled up a majority for the Democratic candidate of 171 out of a total of 207. Columbia also brought out a large poll for Cox, and instead of the overwhelming majority that was predicted for him the vote stood 760 to 642 for Harding.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21.—Harding will get the bulk of the farmer vote of the country if the returns in The Farm Journal straw ballot tell a true story.

In Minnesota 93 per cent. of the votes are for Harding, and only in Indiana and Illinois does there appear to be any considerable division of opinion. Cox has polled 45 per cent. of the ballots in Indiana to date, and 46 per cent. of the votes in Illinois.

Many Small Contributions Add $29,000 to Democratic War Chest in a Day.

Contributions in small amounts, mostly under $5, and totaling $29,000, were received yesterday by Wilbur W. Marsh, Treasurer of the Democratic National Committee. Checks and currency came from men and women in all parts of the country. Both Maine and Texas were represented. The "Match the President" fund, made up of $500 contributions for the spread of League of Nations propaganda, was increased by $8,000, sending the total amount so far received to $104,000.

Frank L. Polk, former Under Secretary of State and counsel to the State Department, sent $500, as did Bert Hanson, former Deputy Police Commissioner of New York, and R. H. Mueller of Jefferson City, Mo.

R. B. Thomas of 906 Broadway, a former member of the Board of Education, handed Treasurer Marsh his check for $300. His son, Second Lieutenant Gerald Provost Thomas, was killed in action near Cambrai, France, and was awarded posthumously the D. S. C.

The Women's Bureau received several hundred dollars in small amounts during the day.

FORMER SERVICE MEN QUIT HARDING'S PARTY

Eight Republican Veterans Announce They Will Vote for Cox This Year.

Eight former service men, all Republicans, yesterday notified Hamilton Holt, editor of the Independent Magazine and member of the Pro-League Independents, that they intended to vote for Cox and Roosevelt this year.

"As ex-soldiers who served many months of active service with the American and French armies," said their letter, "we believe that the League of Nations is the only sure means of preventing the young manhood of America and of the world from being again stifled in a war of blood and mud."

Other Republicans who yesterday announced that they would support the Democratic ticket on the League of Nations issue included the Rev. Charles Francis Potter, West Side Unitarian Church, New York; Edwin S. Tupple, Field Organizer, American Red Cross, Boston; Henry Wharton, Philadelphia; Oswald E. Knauth, New York; Joseph Misbach, and O. W. Stevenson, of the Iowa State Progressive Committee; J. W. R. Smith, Xenia, Ohio; Prof. W. S. Hecking, of Harvard University; the Rev. Arvin S. Bacon, former Army Chaplain, Minneapolis, and Ralph Davol, Taunton, Mass.

It was announced that the Putnam Patriot, a Republican newspaper published in Putnam, Conn., by J. J. Whitehead, Jr., had come out for Cox.

Warns of Roosevelt Fund Impostors.

Warning the public against impostors, the Woman's Roosevelt Memorial Association stated yesterday that it had authorized no persons to solicit funds in the subway or other places, and that the cardboard banks were intended only for use in the schools. The request was made that all persons solicited should demand to see the impostor's credentials and report the cases to the headquarters at 1 East Fifty-seventh Street.

GOMPERS ANSWERS SHEFFIELD ATTACK

Denies That Democratic Party Has Surrendered to Labor, as Speaker Charged.

PRAISES LEAGUE PURPOSES

Humanitarian Aims Make Ratification a Vital Necessity, He Says—Deals with Shantung Reference.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, issued a statement tonight in response to an assertion by James R. Sheffield in the New York meeting addressed by Elihu Root that the Democratic party had surrendered to labor and also Mr. Sheffield's reference to the Shantung clause.

In his statement Mr. Gompers denied that labor had asked surrender of any one and said that in the Shantung decision the labor leaders knew nothing of the proposal until the treaty was published. Mr. Compers's statement follows:

"In an address in New York at the meeting addressed by Mr. Elihu Root, the chairman, Mr. James R. Sheffield, is quoted as having said that the Democratic Party had blindly and servilely followed an autocratic leader. He is quoted as having gone on to say, 'It followed it in surrender to labor at the request of the Brotherhoods for votes at home, and it followed it in surrendering Shantung to Japan for a vote in Paris.'

"It is difficult to understand what Mr. Sheffield is talking about. It may be that, like Senator Harding, he means 'this' when he says 'that,' but whatever he means he is nothing short of ridiculous when he talks about any surrender to labor. If there had been such a surrender labor might be expected to be aware of the fact, and labor is aware of nothing of the kind.

"Labor has asked no surrender of any one. It has at times been compelled to ask, and frequently with much emphasis, for fair and just treatment, but it never has asked of any one anything more than justice nor anything more than the ordinary rights of American citizenship and the right of equal participation in the functions and decisions of our Republic.

"The strained effort to involve labor in the Shantung decision is ludicrous. The men of labor had no more to do with Shantung than had Mr. Sheffield, and perhaps not as much. In fact, labor had no knowledge that the Shantung decision had been reached until after publication of the treaty.

"In any event, the point which Mr. Sheffield evidently intended to make in antagonism to the treaty was that a commission was created for the purpose of drafting humanitarian propositions for the protection of the life and health and well-being of the masses of the people in the more backward countries, and for the protection of the superior standards already established in our own country. The appointment of this commission, of which I had the honor to be the Chairman, was in response to the deep humanitarian feeling of the whole world at the time, and its work is a great mark of world progress. It is one of the great points that make the ratification of the treaty a vital necessity and that justify the confidence of the forward-looking people of the world and of our own country in the League of Nations.

THE REDEEMING TRAIT

Many centuries ago, Sallust, the Roman historian, wrote: "The poor Britons—there is some good in them after all; they produce an oyster."

Today, some British historian might retaliate by writing: "The poor Romans—there was some good in them after all; they appreciated an oyster."

JOHNSON SUGGESTS 'FORUM' SUBSTITUTE

Says He Would Be "Delighted" to See International Body to Discuss Problems.

BUT IN NO SENSE A LEAGUE

Senator Insists Harding Has Never Wabbled and That Cox Will Be Overwhelmed.

Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California, who stopped in this city yesterday before making a few more speeches in the interest of Senator Harding, said in a statement at Republican National Headquarters that he would be "delighted" to see established an "international forum" where, in the open, there would be a full discussion of international problems which might form public opinion and thereby tend to prevent war.

"I do not at present see how it is possible to go beyond this," said the Senator. "The issue of this campaign is the League of Nations, a specific, concrete contract, and not the efforts and endeavors of civilized people to end wars."

Lest his reference to an "international forum" be misconstrued, Senator Johnson brought up the subject again last night in a speech he made at Perth Amboy, making it clear to a large audience that he did not refer to a new League of Nations.

"I am taking no stand on any new league," the Senator declared. "Every man and woman detests war and will do everything in their power to promote peace. I would be glad if there were an international forum where opinions might be debated on matters affecting the world. Beyond that I cannot see where it would be safe for our nation to go. I want to make my stand on that issue clear."

"There is a disposition on the part of some persons to tie up the Republican candidate with some new scheme which no one can express an opinion about before its details are known," said Mr. Johnson. "No man with any reasonable caution of the characteristics of a statesman could entertain any such scheme until he knows what it is.

"When you read that Senator Harding is in favor of going into the League of Nations with reservations, remember he has turned his back on it. He wants only absolute rejection. This League cannot be amended by any number of reservations. It contains menacing clauses in nearly every paragraph. There is only one course to pursue, and that is to keep out of it altogether.

"It is said that we are ungrateful and selfish and do not want to do our part. We have played our part. We have done, and will do again, what is needed when humanity calls and civilization cries. Until then the American people will decide what to do, and no European nation will tell them."

In a talk with newspaper men at the Hotel Belmont in the afternoon Senator Johnson said he was satisfied the contest was all over and that the Republicans would win overwhelmingly everywhere.

"If this were a prize fight the police would interfere on the ground of brutality," the Senator remarked in explaining how thoroughly Cox was going to be beaten.

The Senator declared he had never found any indication of wabbling by Senator Harding. The most determined irreconcilable, he said, never said anything worse than Harding said against the treaty. The Republican candidate, he added, had gone the whole limit against it.

"Didn't Senator Harding change his position after he had talked with you or Senator Borah?" Mr. Johnson was asked.

"I never talked with him," he replied. "His position has been thoroughly consistent throughout. It has always been perfectly satisfactory to me."

"How do you square his attitude with that of Senator Root and others?" was asked.

"You will have to square it yourself," was all Mr. Johnson would say.

Mr. Johnson read parts of Senator Harding's speech of acceptance to show that he had never changed his opinions of the treaty.

"Governor Cox has said that he is in favor of going in and Senator Harding has said he is not. That is the only difference," said Senator Johnson. "There has never been any intention on the part of Senator Harding to go in with reservations, interpretations, or anything else.

"This election is going to be the solemn referendum that President Wilson wanted. He is going to get it, and we are going to bury the League beyond all redemption.

"I do not pretend to say that the United States will never enter any League or an association of nations of any kind, but I do say that the United States must not, and will not, go in the League as we know it today. That thing is the only thing we know anything about."

Senator Johnson was asked what his attitude toward Senator Harding or the Republican Party would be should Senator Harding after his election take a different view and favor going into the League.

"I will cross that bridge when I come to it," replied Mr. Johnson. "Certainly I won't change my views. My position will be the same as it has been for the last year and a half. See the great change that has come over the spirit of the dreams of some of these people who were originally for it since Senator Borah and I started out on this fight. We were mighty unpopular when we started, but we have lived to see all these distinguished men come around to our way of thinking."

Mr. Johnson said that if Harding was elected it would be substantially because of his attitude against the League. There would be other determining reasons, such as the general opposition to the Wilson administration and the desire for a change, but his position on the League would give him the overwhelming victory.

"Chairman Hays says the West is not interested in the League," the Senator was reminded.

"That is by no means the case," Senator Johnson replied. "We fought our great fight out West. That is what the people out there are interested in. I fought it out there long before it was an issue anywhere else."

The Senator again referred to Senator Harding's speech of acceptance, in which he used such terms against the League as "Supreme blunder" and "Menace to the people," and said:

"Can you imagine a man who is a candidate for President using these words and making a pledge, on which he is elected, leading the United States into any such League? The thing is absolutely unbelievable."

Asked why there was a general feeling that Senator Harding had taken many stands on the League and that people were still asking him where he stood, Senator Johnson said:

"They are paying a sorry compliment to him to question what he has said. I wouldn't want any friend of mine to pay me such a compliment. The language of Senator Harding scraps the League if one believes his words, and I, for one, do believe them."

"The great fault of the League," the Senator went on, "is that it is not based on idealism. No greater blow was ever struck at idealism than when this League was negotiated behind closed doors in Paris. The sordidness of that compact did more to kill our idealism than anything else in a generation. It was like the recent baseball scandal. It was not the selling out of the national game and cheating the people for money that was resented. It was the striking at the intangible something in our American life. The real offense was that it destroyed American confidence. In the same way President Wilson destroyed the idealism of the American people, the idealism which he and they had regarding peace before he went to Europe."

"Do you think Governor Cox has changed his position regarding the League?" Senator Johnson was next asked.

"Cox?" he asked. "Why, Cox is out of it."

Senator Johnson declared that California would go Republican by between 100,000 and 200,000 and predicted that the next Senate would be Republican. As soon as he returned to the Senate, he said, his first duty would be to begin an agitation for a Federal Presidential primary law.

CARDINAL GIBBONS FIRM FOR LEAGUE

Delay Imposed Alone Will Reduce Wars to a Minimum, He Says.

QUOTES POPE BENEDICT

"I Know We Will Accept Our Responsibilities in the World Situation," He Declares.

The Democratic National Committee in a statement yesterday announced that His Eminence James Cardinal Gibbons had added his name to the list of "15,509 American clergymen who have taken a firm stand for the League of Nations." The statement declared that Cardinal Gibbons based his support chiefly upon the Encyclical of Pope Benedict declaring that all States "should unite in one league." The statement, based upon an interview with Stephen Bonsal of the Baltimore Sun, published yesterday, says the Cardinal declined to discuss political conditions, but talked freely about his earnest desire for world peace.

At the outset of the interview Cardinal Gibbons asked Bonsal to read aloud to him two paragraphs of the Pope's Encyclical, as follows:

"Things being thus restored, the order required by justice and charity reestablished and the nations reconciled, it is much to be desired, venerable brethren, that all States, putting aside mutual suspicions, should unite in one league, or, rather, in a family of the peoples, calculated both to maintain their own independence and safeguard the order of human society.

"What especially, among other reasons, calls for such association of nations is the need, generally recognized, of making every effort to abolish or reduce the enormous burden of the military expenditure, which States can no longer bear, in order to prevent these disastrous wars, or, at least, to remove the danger of them as far as possible. So would each nation be assured not only of its independence, but also of the integrity of its territory within its just borders."

"Noble Words," Says Cardinal.

After hearing these sentences, the Cardinal is quoted as saying:

"Noble words! The Holy Father was indeed inspired with the spirit of righteousness when he proclaimed them to the Everlasting City and to the world that is in such grave danger. I subscribe to them absolutely and without reserve, as an American citizen and as a son of the Church—as well nigh the eldest son of the Church.

"Yes, I am in favor of very different world arrangements and of 'checks and balances,' to use the words of our political fathers, from those that made possible what happened in 1914. Do you recall how it came? There were a few letters from Foreign Ministers, half published, or not at all. A few telegrams exchanged between Emperors and Kings, and then rivers of blood began to flow to the Niagara of suffering at which we, dumfounded and almost helpless, still assist.

"What I most like and highly value about the proposed League is, first, the delay which it imposes upon any and all nations—you must not rush headlong into this thing in which we all run the danger of being involved. We say you must be frank, open and above board; you must place your plans before the world and they must and shall be carefully weighed. Why, in my judgment, this single new world regulation will reduce wars to a minimum. Second thought and careful consideration of steps to be undertaken is imposed, and on second sober thought few will draw the sword.

"And then I like and value that phrase and declaration, 'That it is the friendly right of each member of the League to bring to the attention of the Assembly or of the Council any circumstances whatever affecting international relations which threaten to disturb international peace or the good understanding between nations upon which peace depends.'

Hopes It Will Come Soon.

"It shall be the friendly right—I like that immensely. In the next decade—better in the next ten months—I hope it will become the friendly right and the inevitable duty for all nations to combine for the preservation of peace. How often would wars have been avoided if in the past we had acted in this way and under these prescriptions!

"I like the plan for delay. I like the solemn agreement for the prevention of international war which the covenant stands for and of which, in the words you have just read, His Holiness the Pope expresses his warm approval. So with the great disaster behind us, although we still sit in its dark shadow, we should, and I believe we are, determined to safeguard the order of human society which is in danger, to maintain the independence of the peoples within their just borders, and to reduce, if we cannot wholly abolish, the burden of military expenditure. Sitting as a council of brethren, with the shadow of the great catastrophe still upon us, we should, and I have no doubt we will, draw nearer to one another and take up, in a fraternal spirit seriatim those vexed questions that still remain and which are a grave menace to the fellowship of the forward-looking, God-fearing, God-loving nations. These questions still threaten the peace of the world—that peace whose blessing we are just beginning to enjoy again.

"Delay is dangerous and it means continued cumulative suffering. I know that we will, at an early day, accept our evident responsibilities in the world situation, and at the same time make perfectly clear what they are. Once our responsibility is clearly established and made undeniably manifest, the American people will not sidestep. We will do our duty. We always have."

COX THANKS WOMEN.

Wires Appreciation of Democratic Bureau's Work for Peace.

The women's bureau of the Democratic national campaign received a telegram of thanks yesterday from Cox. The Presidential candidate telegraphed to Mrs. James Erskine, head of the bureau, expressing appreciation for what she and her associates are doing in behalf of the cause of peace.

"We are fighting for a principle which never ought to have been in politics," Gov. Cox telegraphed, "but having been thrust into politics as the result of the basest conspiracy the world has ever known on the part of the Senatorial oligarchy, I am proud and happy to be its champion, and am delighted to know that the straight-thinking, God-fearing, unprejudiced people of America are with me."

COX CALLS UPON PRELATES.

Visits Cardinal Gibbons and the Episcopal Bishop.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 21.—Governor Cox, accompanied by his secretary, called this afternoon upon Cardinal Gibbons, also upon the Rev. John Gardiner Murray, Episcopal Bishop of the Diocese of Maryland.

Of the visit to the Cardinal Gov. Cox said it was a social call and politics was not discussed. They are old acquaintances and the Cardinal has called upon Governor Cox in Ohio.

Among the Washington officials who came to Baltimore was Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson. He had a conference with the candidate before he went to the armory.

SENATOR REED BOLTS AT ONE-MAN MEETING

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 21.—Before more than 15,000 persons who crowded Convention hall here tonight Senator James A. Reed made his long-awaited "declaration of independence."

Senator Reed virtually bolted the Democratic national ticket and all Senatorial candidates who are for the League of Nations. This includes Breckinridge Long, the Democratic nominee for the United States Senate in Missouri.

By announcing his support of the State and county Democratic tickets, Senator Reed retained a semblance of "regularity."

It was by far the most novel political meeting ever held in Kansas City. The Senator introduced himself. Only friends sat on the platform behind him. There were no officers such as are usual at such gatherings, no band—only Reed and his hearers.

Sketching the Constitutional functions of the legislative branches of the Government, Senator Reed drew a demonstration when he launched into a vitriolic attack on "one-man" rule. He said:

"When Missouri sent me to the United States Senate William H. Taft was President. I did not take an oath to support William H. Taft. When I was re-elected I did not swear to support Woodrow Wilson.

"The man who demands Congress shall obey the Executive consciously or unconsciously stands for a despotism, and this is none the less true whether the despot be saint or sinner, benevolent or cruel, wise or foolish, Democrat or Republican.

"It is repeatedly charged that my opposition to so-called Administration measures was inspired by a dispute about patronage. There are men so constituted they can never contemplate an act without looking for a cause as small as their own souls. No man with the slightest conception of duty or honor would permit a dispute over patronage to affect his official conduct. But in the light of facts this contemptible charge falls.

"An honest review of my official record will show that I supported nearly all the vast number of bills passed during the Administration which can be termed either Administration or party measures. In every instance where I believed the Administration to be unjustly assailed I came to its defense and the record will so show.

"A systematic warfare was begun upon me by men who insisted upon a blind obedience to the executive will. I refused to occupy such a position. If the people of Missouri want an automaton in the United States Senate who jumps every time the President pulls a string they have plenty of raw material available.

"In the grave international crisis which confronted our country every moment from the time the European conflagration broke out, I felt impelled to and did make an unusual effort to sustain our foreign policies as initiated by the State Department.

"Presented as a panacea for human ills and a sure cure for war, the League of Nations was at first accepted by the American people. Their minds had been prepared by a great and costly propaganda, a single organization having spent more than $850,000. To this fund a large number of the holders of European bonds were contributors.

"The opposition floodgates of denunciation were opened. Condemnation was well-night universal. The debates began to disclose one ugly fact after another."

"The majority of the Senate wanted fourteen amendments. Taft's League to Enforce Peace wants amendments. Root wants amendments. Only Root and the Lord knows how many.

"Everybody wants amendments except those who had the foresight to understand from the first that the entire instrument was un-American and rotten to the core. They want the accursed thing totally rejected. The Democratic candidate for President is for the present League of Nations with reservations, but nobody knows what they are. If he is elected, I fear the influence of Woodrow Wilson.

"The Republican candidate for President is for an association of nations, but asserts he does not know what it will be. If he is elected I shudder at the influence of Elihu Root and the international bankers.

"Obviously, under the circumstances, America's interests demand the election of a Senate that will spurn every effort of internationalism.

"So important do I regard the election of a Senate hostile to the infamous doctrine of internationalism that I am hurrying to the close of this address that I may go to Wisconsin, where the contest is between Lenroot, one of the mildest of mild reservationists, and a Democrat who indorses the League almost without change. Unless a third candidate is elected the mild reservationist Lenroot will be returned. Under these circumstances I deem it my duty to give all the aid I can to the independent Republican, Thompson, who is running for the Senate upon an American platform, and who declares he is opposed to any kind of alliance, League or association with Europe."

FREED IN CARUSO CASE.

Salesman, Accused by Poillon Sisters, Insists Talk on Gems Was 'Bunk.'

Mrs. Enrico Caruso, wife of the tenor, whose wedding jewels and other gems valued at more than $200,000, were stolen from the Caruso Summer home at East Hampton on June 8 last, was in the West Side Court yesterday when the District Attorney's office announced that it had not been able to gather evidence to substantiate the early belief of the police and the Poillon sisters that Harry C. Toback knew the details of the theft.

Mrs. Caruso failed to identify Toback as the man she had seen rushing out of the house with the jewels. Magistrate Ten Eyck then dismissed the charges against the fur salesman. The Magistrate ruled that the talk about the Caruso jewels, taken by dictograph in the apartment of the Pillon sisters, was not sufficient to hold Toback. The prisoner repeated in court his assertion that his dissertation upon the jewels was only "bunk," and part of a "supersalesmanship" method to sell fur coats.

These are not toy ideas nor

They're words carefully chosen with an all-absorbing desire of leaving in the reader's mind something to think about and lay away in the alabaster box of memory.

We are told that the frightful fatality of accidents of automobiles, especially at night, is because their drivers have carelessly dozed or slept from weariness and overwork.

Long study of men and women and wide observation justifies the statement that the majority of people are not fully awake.

We live superficially, halfheartedly. Many of us fail to rub the eyes of our souls open to get thoroughly awakened.

There are few who could not build a temple of happiness and use it for their families and friends, if they cared to do so, with even a small part of their good sense and lost energy.

ROBBERS CARRY OFF BIG SAFE IN AUTO

THIEVES ESCAPE IN SUBWAY

Four burglars who had carried a heavy safe from the rear of Liggett's drug store, at 3,641 Broadway, near 152d Street, into a stolen automobile drawn up near the curb, led the police an exciting chase early yesterday morning down Broadway, West End Avenue and Riverside Drive to Ninety-second Street, where they abandoned the machine and escaped on a southbound subway local from the Ninety-first Street Station. In trying to evade their pursuers, the robbers lost control of the auto in veering sharply around the corner from Riverside Drive and the car crashed into the stoop of the home of Nahan Franko, the orchestra leader, at 296 West Ninety-second Street. The four men, apparently unhurt, ran to the subway station, where they had the luck to catch a train.

Patrolman William Lynch of the West 152d Street Station was walking his post about 2 o'clock in the morning, when he noticed an automobile standing in front of the drug store. As he hastened to the spot he saw three men leave the store carrying a heavy safe, which they placed in the rear of the car. The chauffeur spied the patrolman just then and warned the men, who jumped into the auto, which started away with a leap.

Lynch called to them to stop and as they sped past him he fired several shots in their direction and, hailing a passing automobile, starting in pursuit. Standing on the running board of the car, he fired at the fleeing robbers until his revolver was empty. He believed one of the men was injured by a shot.

The patrolman kept up the pursuit as far as 116th Street, where the robbers outdistanced him. He then notified the West 125th Street station and Detectives Francis Teed and Francis Mullaly started out to search for the four.

As the detectives reached Broadway and Manhattan Street an auto answering the description furnished by Lynch came dashing down the thoroughfare. The detectives boarded a touring car and took up the chase, firing their revolvers at the escaping machine. The thieves, followed by the detectives, sped south to Ninety-fourth Street, west to Riverside Drive and thence to Ninety-second Street, where the mishap occurred.

The safe, which contained part of the day's receipts, was found in the car. It showed evidences of attempts to open it. The robbers gained entrance to the Liggett store by prying loose the lock on the door. The police, it was said, found the owner of the stolen automobile later.

The police were unable yesterday to find any clues to the thieves who entered on Wednesday the apartment of Mrs. James W. Bell on the fourth floor of 19 East Sixty-fifth Street, near the home of Vincent Astor, and took furs and wearing apparel valued at $1,000. Apparently they were compelled to leave before they had completed ransacking the apartment, as they overlooked jewelry and silverware valued at $11,000.

When three alleged gangsters were being led to cells in the West Side Court yesterday they threatened vengeance on Alfred J. Ryan, a bartender of 464 West Fifty-third Street, who, with Samuel Carroll, a fellow-bartender, they were accused of holding up Sunday night in the saloon of Charles Geisner at Fifty-ninth Street and Amsterdam Avenue. They gave their names as Matthew Sullivan of 417 East Sixty-third Street, Thomas Connelly of 513 West Fifty-second Street, and Joseph Doyle of 410 West Fifty-sixth Street. They were held in $2,500 bail each for the Grand Jury.

Indicted in Whisky Murder.

William Stern, a jewelry salesman of 212 West 111th Street, was indicted yesterday on the charge of murdering Paul Boittano of 108 West Thirty-ninth Street, who, it is alleged, was slain during a dispute over division of the profits in a whisky-running scheme. Stern pleaded not guilty before Judge McIntyre in General Sessions and was remanded to the Tombs pending trial.

UPHOLDS RAIL OPERATION.

Executive Says Return to Private Control Saved Money for Public.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 21.—The Government's action in returning the railroads to private control on March 1 saved the people a large amount of money, Samuel M. Felton, President of the Chicago & Great Western Railroad, declared in an address tonight before the Chamber of Commerce. If Government operation had been continued, he added, the deficit which the Government would have had to pay would have been far larger than the amount it will have to pay for the six months of operation from March 1 to Sept. 1.

"One of the principal reasons why under private operation the railroads have incurred a large deficit," said Mr. Felton, "is that advances in wages amounting to $52,000,000 a month, and effective during four of these six months, were granted by the Railroad Labor Board. It is fair to assume that corresponding advances in wages would have been made if Government control had been continued, and if this had been the case the deficit incurred during those six months would have been increased to $657,000,000. In addition, railways have been subjected to increased prices of coal, which caused their total fuel bill in July, 1920, to be $14,000,000 more than it was in July, 1919."

2 WAR VETERANS PROMOTED

Among a number of promotions yesterday by Police Commissioner Enright were two World War veterans, Patrolmen Martin S. Owens and James L. Bresnan of the Detective Bureau, who were advanced to be Sergeants. Before the United States entered the war Police Commissioner Arthur Woods sent Owens to France as a representative of the Police Honor Legion to drive an ambulance donated by the Legion to the French Government. When the American Expeditionary Force reached France Owens joined it. He and Bresnan had reached the rank of Captain before the armistice was signed.

Other patrolmen made Sergeants were: Francis G. Hughes, Traffic Division C; James T. Morrison, Traffic B; John J. Thompson, High Bridge Station, and these Brooklyn precincts: Augustine A. Kehoe, Poplar Street; Henry Schmidt, Snyder Avenue; Patrick J. Nally, Liberty Avenue, and Henry Treiling, Gates Avenue. These Sergeants were promoted to Lieutenants: George H. Leonard, West 123d Street Station; John D. Cahill, Webster Avenue Station, Brooklyn, and Charles H. Kensler, White Plains Avenue Station, Bronx.

Subway Extension Opens Sunday.

The Lexington Avenue-Pelham Bay Parkway subway line will be extended from its present terminal at 177th Street to the Westchester Square station at one minute past midnight Sunday morning. The new stations are at Castle Hill and Zerega Avenue. The latter station, which will be in Westchester Square, is the centre of a number of trolley lines which serve Throgs Neck, Unionport and West Farms sections.

Betty Brainard's Case Postponed.

The examination of Miss Betty Brainard, arrested here last Sunday on the request of the authorities at Tacoma, Wash., where she lives, was postponed until next Monday by Magistrate Ten Eyck in the West Side Court yesterday morning. Miss Brainard was taken into custody last Sunday in connection with a reported kidnapping in Tacoma. The postponement was made in order to learn of Governor Smith's ruling on the extradition application of the Washington officials.

DEMANDS $250,000 FOR FALSE CHARGE

E. York Ames, Acquitted of Fraud, Brings Damago Suit Against Four.

ALLEGES PLOT AGAINST HIM

E. York Ames, former president of the Tar Island Producing and Refining Co., who was acquitted in the Federal Court of the charge of using the mails to defraud, brought suit in the Supreme Court yesterday for $250,000 damages against the persons he alleges were responsible for his prosecution and who, he charges, prepared a "false and fictitious case" against him. The defendants named are Otto A. Hack, a well-known attorney; George R. Mayo, an accountant for the Department of Justice; John D. Dunlop, a silk merchant, and Frances Tarbox, a decorator.

Ames charges that the three defendants other than Mayo "entered into a conspiracy to injure, impoverish, defame and defraud" him and put him in such a position that he could not protect his loans and his stock in the Tar Island Company, and thus they could acquire not only his stock but that of several of his associates. Ames alleges that they obtained the assistance of Mayo, who was engaged in investigating infringements of the national banking laws, and that all the defendants spent several weeks going over the books and papers of the corporation which were put in the hands of Dunlop by Ames.

The plaintiff asserts that the defendants willfully altered the records by removing certain minutes from the minute book, substituting an alleged forged entry dealing with Ames's resignation as President, pasting into the stock books certain certificates which they thought would be of use to them, "and in various other ways made up a knowingly false and fictitious case of using the mails to defraud the stockholders of the Tar Island Producing and Refining Corporation."

Ames charges that before he was brought to trial Dunlop, who had succeeded him as President, went on a trip to Japan and from March 20 to Dec. 1, 1919, he purposely refrained from sinking a new well and from exploiting the property of the corporation, in order that its value might not be proved at the trial and that the stockholders should be led to believe it was practically worthless, whereas it "has an intrinsic value of at least $2,000,000." He alleges that he lost stock worth $100,000 in addition to his business reputation through the acts of the defendants.

The case came before Supreme Court Justice Lehman on an application by the defendants to compel Ames to make his complaint more definite. The Justice decided the complaint was sufficiently definite to be answered.

Indications were found at that time, he said, that excessive profits were being made in the sale of lamb.

Investigators first ascertained the prices the retail butchers paid the packers. The next step was to find out what the lamb cost the packers, and this was learned at the source of the supply. The lamb came from New Zealand in three ships, the Armogh, Suffolk and Northumberland.

The agents, after obtaining particulars, seized the books of the packers and other documents in the ten branch houses in New York. This was in the early part of July.

About this time, Mr. Riley said, he was called to Washington, where he met Vice President F. Edson White of the Armour Company, who was in the capital to arrange the details of carrying out the Supreme Court decree for the sale by the packers of their stockyard interests. Mr. Riley said he was prepared then to present the case to the Grand Jury, but when he was assured by Mr. White that a further investigation would indicate that no abnormal prices were being levied, he decided to go further into the matter.

Orville Harris and Homer Harris, expert accountants of the Department of Justice at Washington, were assigned to investigate Armour & Company's cost of doing business. They pursued their inquiry first in the branch offices in this city, and then in Chicago. This investigation continued from July 29 to Oct. 9 last, and the results were given to the Grand Jury.

Mr. Riley yesterday announced the receipt of a telegram from Houston, Tex., informing him of the indictment there of the Sugerland Industries, and its four trustees and twelve other individuals, all on charges of profiteering and conspiring to violate the Lever act. These indictments resulted from an investigation by Mr. Riley and Frank S. Cregg, of Syracuse, Special Assistant Attorney General. The telegram was from Mr. Cregg, who said the defendants were accused of trying to raise the price of sugar from 10½ to 27 cents a pound, through exercising a vast control over the industry.

Mr. Riley said the Sugarland Industries was operated until January 1, 1920, under the name of the Imperial Sugar Company. Subsequently it became amalgamated with other industries in Texas, and its control was extended from New Orleans, La., through the Southwest to the Pacific Coast.

LOST ON LAMB, ARMOURS SAY.

New Zealand Product Only Partly Offset Deficit in Domestic.

"We are at a loss to understand these New York indictments. The reasonableness of profits cannot be judged by consideration of a few transactions. We made some money through the sale of New Zealand lambs, but we did not make enough on them to offset the losses we sustained in the sale of domestic lambs, and, with our lamb business as a whole showing a loss, it seems a rather bitter joke to indict us for making too much money. The net result of the New Zealand lamb business was to give consumers meat for less money than they would otherwise have had to pay."

P. S. DU PONT ATTACKS COX.

Accusing Governor Cox of "malicious misstatement" in his charges that Coleman du Pont "as the Krupp of America" was fostering anti-Cox propaganda among traveling men, Pierre S. du Pont, Chairman of the Board of the du Pont Company, yesterday made public a letter written to the Democratic candidate on Tuesday. Governor Cox was quoted as saying in one of his speeches that Coleman du Pont as "a member of the great munitions family, knows what it means should I be elected and secure the ratification of the treaty of peace and the League of Nations."

Pierre S. du Pont declared that his cousin, Coleman, sold his interests in the company in February, 1915, after many war contracts had been obtained, but that "the price received by him for this interest did not reflect in any way the possible profits of those contracts." Pierre du Pont said that he had never discussed the League with his cousin, but added that "I am quite certain that you will find him in favor of national or international measures that will secure the peace of the United States and other nations of the world."

Taking up the accusation that the du Pont "family had grown financially fat and insolent on the profits of war," Mr. du Pont wrote that "the du Pont Company made large profits during the war by responding to the needs of other nations but not from furnishing powder to the United States Government." He criticised the unpreparedness of America and declared that "had the European nations proceeded with the unwisdom of our Government it is quite certain that the war would not have been won." He told of the war work, said all the stockholders would "gladly relinquish all war profits in order to efface the blot of the war." Of the 112 years' history of the company, he said, only eight were war years.

Mr. du Pont declared that he had "no political bias" in writing the letter, that he was not "sufficiently in sympathy" with the Republican Party to be a member, and that he voted for Wilson in 1912.

A Frank Statement Regarding Price Reductions

The Packard Motor Car Company of New York believes that this is the time for a sincere, straight-forward statement of its position on the question of prices:

First: We are in entire accord with the public sentiment which favors a general price reduction on all commodities as a step toward normal living conditions, provided there are sound reasons for such reductions.

Second: We do not believe that normal conditions can be restored by hasty and drastic action on the part of manufacturers and distributors.

Third: We believe that to permanently affect price levels, all reductions, whether on motor vehicles or any other commodities, must be based on a reduction in costs.

Fourth: We are hopeful of a downward trend in manufacturing and selling costs. However, no one can today determine what economic changes will occur in the next six months. We believe that our customers should be protected during this period of uncertainty. Therefore,

The Packard Motor Car Company of New York guarantees to anyone who has purchased, or hereafter purchases from us, a new Packard vehicle (car or truck) at list price, and takes delivery between September 25, 1920, and June 30, 1921, a refund equal to the difference between the price paid by the purchaser and any new lower list price made during this period.

BUDGET REDUCTIONS ORDERED BY MAYOR

Hylan Tells City Department Heads Cuts "Can and Must Be Made" in Estimates.

SCHOOL FIGHT TO CONTINUE

Institute for Public Service Criticises "Increase in Employes and Decrease in Information."

Mayor Hylan sent a letter yesterday to all city department heads, calling attention to the resolution of the Board of Estimate asking that every possible reduction in department estimates be made at once.

"It is extremely important," wrote the Mayor, "that you co-operate with the examiners in the office of the Secretary of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment and the offices of the Commissioner of Accounts in the work of reducing the budget. Reductions can and must be made.

"The mandatory legislation passed at Albany burdening the city with millions of dollars, the many independent departments in the city, raising salaries without consulting with the members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, the prevailing rate and other laws which must be complied with and over which the Board has no control, have added many millions to the budget.

"It is the duty of every commissioner to immediately secure a copy of the proposed budget and confer with the examiners in the secretary's office and the office of the Commissioner of Accounts to revise his budget downward."

The reductions to be made by city departments will come before the board on Monday, when the work of cutting the $355,000,000 budget down to $347,000,000, the highest figure which it can be legally allowed to reach, will be begun. President La Guardia of the Board of Aldermen announced he would continue the fight to force the addition to the budget of $32,000,000 needed by the Department of Schools and to force large reductions in other budget figures.

"The great money increases proposed in the tentative city budget for 1921," said a statement issued by the Institute for Public Service, "have obscured two important factors, namely, many increases in number of employes and serious decreases in available information about the budget.

"By no means are all of the budget increases due to wartime increases in cost of living. The increases in four boroughs, excluding the Bronx, was 793 above the number three years ago and 144 above the number in 1920. For example, for care of buildings Manhattan will have forty more janitors and inspectors next year and Brooklyn will have forty-three more than in 1917.

"Decreases in helpful information are far more serious menaces than money increases. Today it is not possible with the expenditure of time within the reach of any citizen agency to compare the tentative allowances for 1921 with the amount spent for different purposes in any previous year. This is a distinct loss because three years ago it was possible for any interested citizen to learn easily from official budget bulletins how much each different service had cost each year since 1903. These comparisons, furthermore, showed, as no available figures do now, just how much of the total spent came from the budget itself, how much from special revenue bond funds and how much from special funds.

"Other very costly decreases in budget information have taken place since the days of Controller Metz and Mayor McClellan, many of them due to the Mitchel administration and others to the present administration."

BURNING OF NEWSPAPERS THREAT OF COTTON MEN

Editors Told They Must Support the Movement to Hold the Crop.

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 21.—Federal officers today began an investigation of anonymous threats to burn certain newspaper plants in North Texas unless they support a movement to hold cotton until the price rises to 30 cents a pound. Assurance that the Federal Reserve Board would co-operate with the farmers to the fullest extent by granting banks longer credit on cotton notes was given this morning by Judge W. H. Ramsey, Federal Agent for the Federal Reserve Board in the Eleventh District, in addressing a Statewide conference of ginners, bankers and business men here.

Judge Ramsey asserted that the financial condition of the nation was as good as it had ever been.

"The Federal Reserve Bank will function properly in giving member banks longer time on cotton paper. Credit has been available for cotton as in other industries, and I see no reason that credit should be discontinued," he said.

Judge Ramsey added that the Federal Reserve Board of Directors favored a system of gradual marketing of cotton, but that they would not support an ironclad rule of holding cotton indefinitely. He urged unanimous support of a movement to organize a large export corporation to establish credit and market the cotton crop, and one establishment of cotton warehouses to be maintained by the State.

SEE MULTIPLE GOWN.

Daughters of the Empire Examine Six Dresses in One.

Daughters of the Empire at their meeting at the Waldorf yesterday afternoon, learned how to travel without a trunk and to go out for the morning's marketing wearing a gown suitable for that and at the same time for an evening reception. It is a combination gown invented by Mrs. Bertha Holly who, with a couple of models, illustrated how half a dozen gowns can be made from one.

There is a skirt, overskirt and cape to the model gown and by different rearrangements it can be made into a suitable morning or traveling gown, a frock for an afternoon reception or evening wedding. It is a good week-end gown, for an entire wardrobe is worn instead of being packed. Reports of the recent Convention of the State Federation of Women's Clubs at Utica were made by Mrs. Lewis C. Williams and Mrs. Charles H. Griffin. The latter, at the convention, was elected Director of the First District of the State for the Federation. There was music.

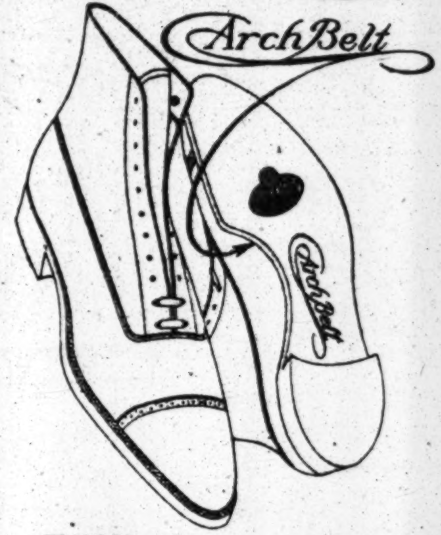
The Emerson Shoe
HONEST ALL THROUGH



Resolute—
In Chestnut Brown Kid and Russia Calf

Special Value $12.00

"I demand for myself absolute comfort in shoes which are at the same time smart looking, well fitting and long wearing and I can't expect any other man to demand less."

Chas. O. Emerson

I AM no longer a young man but I still insist that the shoes I wear must be stylish as well as comfortable.

As a result of more than 50 years of study I have devised the "Arch Belt," an arch support that is built into the shoe—that does not show—and that can be made on stylish lasts. It is as comfortable as though your foot rested in the palm of a giant's hand. It adds as much ease to your walking as pneumatic tires add to your automobile.

Best of all the "Arch Belt" does not add a penny to the cost of your shoes. Come in and look at our new "Resolute" model with the actual retail price based on net factory costs, stamped on the sole. You can't see any difference in appearance but you will feel the comfort the moment you put the shoe on your foot.

All our store shoes are stamped on the soles at the factory with the actual retail price based on net factory costs as a protection for you against unfair prices.

Come in and let us show you our wide variety of attractive new Fall styles without any obligation to buy.

BANDITS ROB TRAIN IN BUFFALO YARD

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, Oct. 21.—Five bandits early this morning held up New York Central passenger train No. 15, en route from New York to Chicago, shot a flagman and took $160 in money and three pieces of jewelry from Pullman passengers. The robbery took place while the train was standing in the Clinton Street yard waiting for more Pullman cars to be attached.

Detectives believe the robbery was committed by local men. Tonight several suspicious persons had been taken into custody, but no charges had been placed against any of them.

As the train came to a stop in the yards, George Sinclair, a flagman, walked toward the rear coach. Suddenly five men stepped forward and gave the command "Hands up!" to the flagman and the switchmen who were working on the train. The order was obeyed, but not before one of the highwaymen had fired, the bullet lodging in Sinclair's left leg. The flagman fell to the ground and while two of the robbers kept the train crew covered three entered the rear Pullman of the train.

"Everybody up," they shouted, as each fired one bullet into the floor of the car.

Roused by the fusillade, the passengers tumbled from their berths into the aisle. The leader of the band told them to hand over their valuables. With one robber on guard at either end of the car, the leader then marched through collecting money and jewelry handed to him, but making no attempt to search the berths.

Dissatisfied at the small amount of money which one man gave him, the robber fired a shot into the berth and suggested that he "had better come across with more." Because Mary Jane Smith of Cleveland was slow in getting a ring off her finger, the bandit fired a shot over her head into the berth. Losses reported to the police were:

J. C. Stone, Columbus, $5; A. J. Kashueck, Cleveland, $40; Evelyn Pratt, Cleveland, $20 and a pin; E. M. Andrews, Cleveland, $15; Mrs. Perry B. Moneypenny, Columbus, $10; Mrs. T. B. Sellars, Columbus, $20; Mrs. George Hedley, Cleveland, $50 and a string of pearls; Mary Jane Smith, Cleveland, a ring.

Pocketing their loot, the robbers backed out of the car, joined their companions outside and disappeared in the darkness. Trainmen and two passengers ran to the station nearby and gave the alarm.

FOILED BY EXPRESS CLERK.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Gustave Meckerman, express clerk, prevented three men from carrying out an attempt to rob the express car of train No. 13, the westbound Detroit-Chicago flier of the Michigan Central Railroad, today.

The men boarded the train at Niles, Mich., and beat down part of the car entrance with an iron bar. Meckerman wounded one of the men in the hand which was groping for the spring lock. He braced packing cases against the door and exhausted his ammunition, holding the men off for more than an hour when they escaped in the Michigan City yards.

Panic in Colombia Over Low Coffee.

BOGOTA, Colombia, Oct. 20.—Low prices paid for coffee in the American markets have produced a financial crisis here, and suggestion is made that the Government declare a moratorium for banks and permit free exportation of gold. These measures are considered as remedies for the situation.

COLEMAN IS FINED $25.

Plans "Free Speech" Test Over Meeting in Meriden, Conn.

MERIDEN, Conn., Oct. 21.—McAlister Coleman, of New York City, arrested last night charged with violation of a local ordinance requiring a police permit to address a street meeting and violation of a State law against loitering, was fined $25 and costs today. An appeal was entered. The incident was another in a series of "free speech" test meetings.

Louis Krahl of this city and John L. Spivak of New York City, who were arrested with Coleman, were fined $7 and costs each under the State law and discharged on the local ordinance count because they did not address the meeting. Appeals were also taken.

Counsel demurred to the local ordinance on the ground of its alleged unconstitutionality, but was overruled. Prosecuting Attorney Henry Dryhurst called the court's attention to the fact that, with Attorney General Palmer as speaker, the Democratic Party was holding a "lawful and peaceful" rally in a local hall att he same time.

RESTORE HAITI GRADUALLY.

State Department Is Said to Favor Home Rule by Degrees.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—State Department officials do not take issue with Admiral Knapp, who believes the United States cannot complete its work in Haiti for another generation, but expressed the view today that "a situation might soon develop" which will enable this country to give to the Haitians more self-control than they have got now.

It is the purpose of this Government to turn over the control of their own affairs to the Haitians "as fast as they can take it." Haiti, however, it is declared, cannot work out her own salvation until she pays off her debts and obtains money for development of her resources. It is a problem, officials assert, how Haiti can obtain foreign loans in the future unless she can give satisfactory guarantees.

State Department spokesmen asserted today that the Haitian people themselves desire the continuance of American supervision, and that "90 per cent. of the people of Santo Domingo want us to stay, only a few politicians kicking against it."

In The Spotlight At The RIALTO

A STRIKING feature of the Rialto Theatre program this week is the presentation of the Grieg Concerto for piano and orchestra. Blazing the Trail

Ten years ago we blazed a trail into the wilds of the North: we opened a store on Broadway at 49th Street.

The city has surged onward, business has increased, and now we find ourselves forced to double our capacity. We have taken the entire second floor of the building and have devoted it exclusively to clothing.

"The Most Cheerful Clothing Floor in the Country," we call it, with its flood of sunshine pouring in on three sides and through spacious skylights making pleasurable and easy selections from our impressive assortment of handsomely styled, high quality clothing for men and boys.

This forward step means greatly enlarged facilities on the main floor for the departments selling furnishings, shoes, motor apparel, and hats for men, as well as suits, frocks, waists, sport clothes and millinery for women.

We have tried to achieve the final word in those refinements of equipment and service which make for customers' convenience.

Today and tomorrow we hold the formal opening. To celebrate the event we are offering throughout the store at very substantial reductions from our regular closely figured prices Suits, Topcoats, Overcoats and Furnishings for Men and Boys, Shoes for Men, Women and Boys, Women's Apparel and Millinery.

We shall esteem it a privilege to welcome you to our opening and hope you will find time to devote a few minutes to an inspection of the new premises. Other merchants in this or related lines are cordially invited.

SHOWS BETTERMENT IN RAILWAY SERVICE

MILEAGE AND LOADING GAIN

Better Use of Equipment Equal to Addition of 400,000 to 500,000 Freight Cars.

Robert S. Binkerd, assistant to the Chairman of the Association of Railway Executives, speaking last night before the Traffic Managers Club of Brooklyn, presented statistics showing just how much of an improvement in service has been brought about in the seven months following Federal control in which the railroads have been managed by private interests.

"When the roads came back to their owners," said Mr. Binkerd, "the average mileage per car per day was 22.3, and the average loading was 28.3 tons per car. Our economic life was seriously disarranged. In fact the whole world was, and is, living from hand to mouth. The strain put upon transportation could not be met by producing more cars and locomotives out of thin air, but only by increasing the effective use of the facilities immediately available.

"In this situation the railway executives voluntarily set themselves to achieve standards of operation which have never yet been attained, namely, to increase car movement to an average of 30 miles per car per day; to increase car loading to 30 tons per car; and to reduce the number of bad-order cars to 4 per cent., and a substantial reduction of bad-order locomotives."

The speaker presented car mileage and loading figures by months, which showed that the first would be more than 27 miles a day in August while car loadings would be in excess of 29 tons in every car. Continuing, he said:

"The increase in efficient utilization of present equipment effected by the railway executives during the last six months is equivalent to adding from 400,000 to 500,000 freight cars without the addition of a single dollar to the capital investment of the railroads on which the public has to pay a return through rates.

"Unserviceable locomotives have been greatly reduced in number, but no substantial progress has as yet been made in reducing the percentage of bad-order cars.

"The record in this respect is as follows: February, 6.5 per cent., March, 7 per cent., April 6.5 per cent., May, 6.6 per cent., June, 7 per cent., July, 7.2 per cent., August, 7.4 per cent.

"Partial figures for September indicate some improvement, but the entire situation regarding the repair of cars is still complicated by working conditions established during the period of Federal control, which abolished piece work and minimized the incentive to enterprise and energy on the part of workers engaged in the repair and construction of equipment.

"The increase in efficiency has been greatly aided by the co-operation of shippers and consignees, which has been so marked as to lead to the hope that there will obtain between railroads and shippers in the future far more team work, far more understanding, and better relations in every way."

SING SING FUGITIVES TRAPPED IN FOREST

stood at Sing Sing. The report was heard by a neighbor of the storekeeper, and it brought to his assistance D. A. Maxwell, armed with a revolver. He saw the disappearing motor car and opened fire on the fugitives, but all of his shots went wild. A little later the automobile with an empty gasoline tank, was found abandoned on the edge of the woods by the Concord police and the hastily-assembled posse of farmers.

In the car were found some tools which later were identified as having been stolen last night from a garage in East Jaffrey, near the Massachusetts line.

Sheriff Narrowly Misses Convicts.

Shortly before 7 o'clock the two fugitives called at two farmhouses on the edge of the woods. They wanted food. On being refused they disappeared into the forest again. The first of these houses was the home of Carl Jewell, who recognized one of the men as one to whom he had sold gasoline at his garage early yesterday morning. Ten minutes after he had turned them from his door Sheriff Wooster arrived with a posse.

Deputy George Belisle got a quick shot at the men, but failed to hit either one, and they disappeared into the woods toward Mink Mountain. Details of men in squads of ten immediately were sent to patrol the roads in every direction.

Meanwhile the Sheriff set up a temporary headquarters in the Jewell garage and stories began to pour in from other persons who had seen the fugitives.

Arthur Tucker reported he had talked with the two when they stepped out of the woods near the Jewell farm. Tucker was a member of the Sheriff's posse and was carrying a gun.

"What are you doing with the shot gun?" he said one of the men asked.

"Skunk hunting," he replied.

The men had their hands in their pockets and Tucker believed they had automatics handy. He directed them to Jewell's house.

Sherman Holton notified the Sheriff that the same two men called at his home about 6 o'clock and asked their way to Sunapee. He had no telephone with which to summon the posses and went to a neighbor's house to send in the alarm.

Flight of Fugitives Traced.

The discovery of the tools stolen in Jaffrey made possible a fairly accurate tracing of the movements of the fugitives. The theory is that the convicts, after making their spectacular zigzag raid through Connecticut on Sunday and Monday, stealing automobiles, abandoning them, stealing others in rapid succession and holding up people on the road, eluded the guards who sought to prevent their leaving the State and dashed straight across Massachusetts on Tuesday. It is thought that they entered New Hampshire just north of Winchendon, Mass., and followed the railroad through East Jaffrey and Henniker to Concord.

In Concord they stole the undertaker's automobile, and then, each driving a stolen car, returned to Henniker, where they attempted the hold-up and abandoned the Concord car. Then they apparently drove back over the road to East Jaffrey, repeating the back and forth tactics which prevented their capture in Connecticut.

As the trail of the escaped convicts became hotter the pursuers were joined by a large posse of citizens from Lower Warner. North of Warner the country was notified to watch for the fugitives, and in a short while the woods was surrounded on all sides by men with rifles, revolvers and other weapons. With their quarry surrounded in this fashion, the hope was held out by Chief Moore that the escaped prisoners would enjoy their last hours of stolen liberty last night in the woods.

When the New York City police were notified of the cornering of Stivers and Bassett they immediately sent word to the Concord authorities that a $200 reward would be paid for the capture of the convicts and that all expenses incurred in the chase would be paid by this State.

If, however, the fugitives get into the fastnesses of Mink Mountain there may be considerable delay in their capture, for the summit is heavily wooded. It was a gift to the State from Rear Admiral Lloyd H. Chandler.

That the desperadoes were located in this vicinity was due to the vigilance of William N. Rogers, law partner of Gen. Frank S. Streeter, of Concord, and formerly a celebrated football player at Dartmouth. Rogers had just completed a murder trial at Ossipee, where he defended George E. Brown, accused of killing Richard Dunn.

Troopers Capture a Fugitive.

Sheriff David H. Knott yesterday was advised by the State Prison Department that a reward of $100 was offered for the capture of Stivers and Bassett. Notices of the reward were ordered posted by the Sheriff, who expressed the opinion that the two fugitives would not risk capture by coming to this city, where both are well known and might be quickly recognized and apprehended.

The State Constabulary continued to be on the alert in Westchester County on the chance that the two fugitives might wander back in that direction, and in the course of their patrol of the roads the troopers came across another prisoner, who had escaped during the night from the East View Penitentiary, the "prison de luxe." The troopers were under command of Lieutenant C. J. Broadfield, and had a police dog with them when they passed near Mt. Pleasant Cemetery. When the dog began to bark the troopers' attention was attracted to a man in the cemetery. They approached him and asked:

"Are you an escaped convict?"

The man was so taken by surprise that he answered in the affirmative, and he was immediately placed under arrest. The prisoner then gave his name as Walter McIntyre, and confessed that he escaped from the penitentiary during the night. He had been a prisoner but four days.

In the absence of Warden Dawes the investigation into the alleged neglect of prison keepers who were on leave at the time of the escape of Stivers and Bassett and should have reported at once when the siren sounded the alarm was held in abeyance.

The New DeLaval Pump—And R&M Motors

At the request of U. S. Navy officials the DeLaval Steam Turbine Company designed a special pump for use on destroyers. It was decided it should be motor-driven.

Robbins & Myers 1½ h. p. motor was the unanimous choice of the pump engineers, and the complete outfit—pump and motor—was accepted by the government without question.

So successful was the application of the R&M Motor to this pump that the DeLaval Company use it on every one of these pumps sold commercially.

The same appreciation of R&M reliability has caused Robbins & Myers Motors to be adopted in many factories and by leading makers of adding and addressing machines, suction sweepers, washing machines and other motor-driven devices for the store, office and home.

The Robbins & Myers name plate is all you need to know about a motor or a motor-driven device. Look for it.

BOND QUIZ EXTENDED TO TRAVIS BANK BOOK

GIBBONS TELLS OF DEALS

Admits That Some Prices State Paid Were Higher Than Those Charged Private Investors.

Assistant District Attorney Pecora, who is conducting the John Doe investigation into affairs of the State Controller's office, yesterday asked Justice Frederic Kernochan of Special Sessions, presiding at the hearing, for permission to examine into the personal financial accounts of Controller Eugene M. Travis. Mr. Pecora's request followed testimony by Mr. Travis regarding some of his private transactions, which was given over the objections of George Z. Medalie, the Controller's counsel.

Justice Kernochan, at Wednesday's session, allowed Mr. Pecora much latitude in his examination of Mr. Travis, with the understanding that subsequent questions must show the relevancy of the questions. During the examination Mr. Travis said he kept no records of his private accounts and that he made out his income tax returns from his check stubs and memoranda which he had later destroyed.

Mr. Travis was to have continued his testimony yesterday morning, but official engagements prevented. Following Mr. Pecora's request to inquire into the Controller's personal financial affairs, Justice Kernochan directed that Mr. Travis be summoned as a witness for the afternoon session, but the District Attorney's representatives were unable to reach him.

"I think that in order that I may go on with the future conduct of the examination and, in view of the testimony given by Mr. Travis last evening that I should be permitted to examine into his personal financial account during the last five or six years," said Mr. Pecora. "I think his testimony of last night makes it imperative that we pursue this inquiry as speedily as possible."

In the absence of Mr. Travis Mr. Pecora called George B. Gibbons of George B. Gibbons & Co., 40 Wall Street, who, with Albert L. Judson, who made $800,000 profits on bond sales to the Controller's office, made the largest sales to the State.

Mr. Pecora presented several instances of offers by other dealers, which the Controller had rejected, with a larger yield than that of Gibbons's offers. He compared the purchase of $75,000 par value bonds of the Village of Mount Morris on April 30, 1915, which the Controller bought at a price yielding 4.25 per cent, with circular letters issued by other dealers at about the same time offering the bonds to the general public at a price to yield 4.35.

The examination of Mr. Gibbons disclosed that Controller Travis had bought a total of $6,789,000 par value bonds from the firm. In connection with these sales, which extended over a period from January, 1915 to April, 1920, Mr. Pecora referred to nine transactions amounting to $1,881,660 sold to the State at yields ranging from 3.80 to 4.50 per cent. The average yield was 4.25 per cent. The circulars which Mr. Pecora read quoted yields on the same issues at from 4.10 to 4.60 per cent.

Mr. Gibbons said the circulars were not dated the same as the sales to the State and pointed out that the bond market was subject to almost daily change. He admitted, however, that some of the prices charged the Controller were higher than those at which the bonds were offered to other investors.

"Did any one other than the members of your firm and the employes of your office have any interest in the profits arising from the bond sales?" Mr. Pecora asked Mr. Gibbons.

"No," was the reply.

Mr. Gibbons testified that Mr. Travis had a personal account with the firm from June, 1916, to July, 1920, and that he had met with a considerable loss.

Mr. Pecora expects to recall Mr. Travis when the inquiry is resumed at 10 o'clock this morning.

OUTLAW STRIKERS SUE TRAINMEN'S UNION

Ask $5,000,000 Damages for Alleged Confiscation of Insurance After Expulsion.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 21.—An echo of the railroad yardmen's strike of last Summer was heard in the Common Pleas Court late today with the filing of a $5,000,000 damage suit against the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen by C. B. Clark and W. H. Steed, members of the Chicago Switchmen's Association.

The suit contended that the brotherhood had violated the insurance law of the State and its own laws in confiscating money paid into the insurance fund by members who were expelled from the organization because of the strike.

In addition to asking dissolution of the fund and recovery of the money, the petition requests that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the insurance money and that the brotherhood be restrained from conducting further insurance business.

W. G. Lee, President of the brotherhood, when informed of the filing of the suit said:

"A similar suit was recently filed against us at Columbus, Ohio. Our chief counsel has charge of the matter, and we are not in the least disturbed regarding the outcome of both cases."

HYLAN DIRECTS TRAFFIC.

Aid in Relieving Congestion Due to New Williamsburg Bridge Order.

By way of experiment an order was issued taking effect yesterday morning for commercial and pleasure automobiles to use the north roadway of the Williamsburg Bridge to get to Manhattan during the morning rush hours. Previously the north roadway had been used by commercial vehicles and the south roadway by pleasure cars. The new order caused some confusion.

While the confusion was at its height Mayor John F. Hylan arrived at the bridge plaza.

He could get no further than Roebling Street. Mr. Hylan stepped from his car and took up a position along side the traffic policeman. For about twenty minutes the Mayor waved directions to drivers. A number of persons recognized the Mayor and shouted words of encouragement to him but by far the greater number were ignorant of the identity of the volunteer traffic director in civilian attire. When the traffic tangle had been straightened out the Mayor continued his journey to the City Hall.

NEW STARS FOR 'THE JEST.'

Walker Whiteside and Tyrone Power to Tour in Benelli's Play.

Sem Benelli's "The Jest," in which John and Lionel Barrymore appeared when it was first acted at the Plymouth, is shortly to be sent on tour by Arthur Hopkins with Walker Whiteside and Tyrone Power as its stars. The play, it was learned yesterday, is now in rehearsal with Mr. Whiteside in the John Barrymore rôle, and Mr. Power as Neri.

The Whiteside-Power production of the play will be seen in all of the large cities except Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia, which are to be reserved for John Barrymore, who controls the American rights to the play, and will eventually play it again.

BRITISH COLUMBIA WET; ABANDONS PROHIBITION

Canadian Province Records 25,000 Majority for Government Controlled Sale of Liquor.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 21.—Late returns today on yesterday's referendum in British Columbia indicated that governmental control of the sale of liquor received a majority of at least 25,000 over the present prohibition law.

Only two cities in the province, Penticton and Nelson, voted against the Government control project. Vancouver, which formerly supported prohibition, yesterday gave a majority of 10,000 in opposition.

The vote was on the preference between prohibition and "an act to provide for Government control and sale in sealed packages of spirituous and malted liquors."

Officials here believed today that the vote would result in a generous policy in the dispensation of liquor, not in open saloons, but in Government stores. Under the prohibition act only eight ounces could be purchased, even with a physician's certificate.

W. L. Savage, British Columbia President of the Prohibition Party, declared the vote was the result of confusion of the term "Government control." This was particularly true, he said, among women voters, many of whom thought it meant a better system of Government control of the present prohibition act.

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 21.—Premier Oliver declared today that in view of the expression of public opinion at yesterday's plebiscite in repudiating the British Columbian prohibition law, legislation necessary to repeal the existing act and provide for Government control and sale of spirituous and malted liquors would have to be framed. The will of the people must be met, he added. The Cabinet will meet here on Saturday to consider the matter.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Robert Warwick was seen for the first time in "The Dauntless Three" last night in Atlantic City. The play is the work of Horace Annesley Vachell and Walter Hackett.

Stuart Wilson will join the cast of "Three Live Ghosts" at the Nora Bayes next Monday night.

"When We're Young" instead of "Carey's Quest" will be the title of the play in which Henry Hull will appear.

Walter Hampden, who is touring in Shakespearian repertoire, acted "The Taming of the Shrew" for the first time last night in Washington.

Mischa Elman will write the music and Augustus Thomas the book of a musical version of Richard Harding Davis's story, "Soldiers of Fortune," which Florenz Ziegfeld will produce. Gene Buck is writing the lyrics.

MUSIC

By Richard Aldrich

Cecile de Horvath's Recital.

The "length" of music, it has been observed, has nothing to do with the clock. It was not the clock nor the music that made César Franck's "Prelude, Aria and Finale" seem somewhat longer than usual, as Mrs. Cécile de Horvath played it at her recital in Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon. Perhaps it was chiefly some lack of imaginative fire in the pianist's performance; and this was to be observed in her playing of some of the other pieces on her program, as in Chopin's Nocturne in E.

And yet Mrs. de Horvath is a player of unusual parts, of excellent technical facility, power of finger and of arm and the understanding of how to use it for tonal development; of rhythmic feeling; of intelligence; of analytical power. There was much to enjoy in her recital, the program of which included, besides the pieces mentioned, more Chopin, including one of Liszt's transcriptions of his songs and pieces by Debussy, Leschetizky and Saint-Saëns.

Josef Hofmann Plays in London.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—The pianist Josef Hofmann, who, save for a brief reappearance nearly twenty years ago, had not been heard by Londoners since he was an infant prodigy, gave a recital at Queen's Hall this afternoon and the critics agree that the marvelous promise he gave as a youthful player has been amply fulfilled.

THEY ARE AFRAID OF THE TRUTH.

There has been more misrepresentation, prevarication and downright falsehood in this campaign than in any other Presidential contest within the memory of men. It is of common knowledge and an every-day incident that in the outgivings of the advocates of Mr. Harding's election, the utterances of the candidate himself, the speeches of his supporters, statements issued by groups or organizations in support of his candidacy, startling departures from truth are constantly detected and exposed. It is not merely that untruth is charged, it is proved. They declare that Mr. Wilson "insisted upon the agreement [the League of Nations] absolutely unchanged," and they go on repeating that falsehood day after day, although the President's letter to Mr. Hitchcock declaring that he would accept the Senator's reservations has been published all over the country. Those reservations met every objection sincerely urged by Republican critics. They defiantly repeat the charge that Mr. Cox "declares that he will insist upon the Treaty just as Mr. Wilson negotiated it," although they know very well that Mr. Cox has many times expressed his willingness to accept reservations that clarify, strengthen or explain, including a reservation pointing out that any act of war on our part must have the authorization of Congress.

It is bad enough that the Republicans should misrepresent the Democrats. But why should they invoke Ananias to deceive members of their own party? The statement of the thirty-one leading Republicans declaring their support of Harding is a conspicuous instance. That was an appeal to the Republicans to stand fast. Yet it repeats the false allegation that Mr. Wilson insisted upon the Covenant without change, and with plain intent to deceive it garbles Senator Harding's famous speech of Aug. 28. These Republicans quote Mr. Harding as saying that "there are distinctly two types of international relationship. One is an offensive and defensive alliance of great Powers." The quotation breaks off there in the middle of a sentence, which Mr. Harding completed in these words, "like that created at Versailles, to impose their will upon the helpless peoples of the world." Then immediately follows this declaration: "Frankly, I am opposed to such a scheme as that, and I speak knowingly when I say that the Associated Powers, with whom we fought the war, were reluctant to accept such a proposition. I am opposed to the very thought of our Republic becoming a party to so gross an outrage upon other peoples who have as good a right to seek their political freedom as we had in 1776 and have the same right to developing eminence under the inspiration of nationality as we held for ourselves." All that is omitted and the quotation proceeds by inserting the next paragraph of the speech beginning with the words, "the other type is a society of free nations or an association of free nations," and so on.

Worse than that, these thirty-one Republicans omitted all mention of the Des Moines speech in which Mr. Harding declared that he wanted no clarification of the provisions of the Covenant, he wanted rejection. Mr. Cox, he said, wanted to go in, he did not. Anybody can see why these fatal passages were omitted. The thirty-one were trying to persuade themselves and other Republicans that "we can most effectively advance the cause of international co-operation to promote peace by supporting Mr. Harding for election to the Presidency." The Des Moines utterance was excluded because it would not do at all to show that this candidate whose election would so advance the cause of peace rejects the only safeguard of the world's peace now possible of adoption.

Already the Republicans are at odds among themselves. Gross and flagrant misrepresentation of Harding's position is charged by Senator Johnson upon that wing of the Republican Party which professes to see some good in the League. Hiram Johnson understands the Des Moines utterance. He knows where Harding stands. How far the thirty-one are actually deceived about Mr. Harding's attitude toward the League of Nations we do not know. Senator Johnson is not deceived. He has the candidate's word for it that he has turned his back on the League of Nations, that he wants rejection.

Plainly, the Republicans in this campaign are afraid of the truth. They do not want the people to know that Governor Cox is willing to accept all necessary reservations. They have openly adopted the policy of keeping the League of Nations out of the hands of their speakers, away from the knowledge of the people. They did not insert the Covenant in their campaign text-book, which is the manual of campaign speakers. Republican Governors of States with one accord have refused to name Oct. 24 as a day on which the Covenant should be read and studied. Ten Democratic Governors have recommended the study of it on that day. Manifestly, they fear the effect upon the fortunes of their candidate of letting the people know what the League is. They profess the utmost confidence in Mr. Harding's election, yet they are afraid of the truth. Not even fear can justify falsehood.

THE BUILDING SCANDAL.

Judged by the revelations of its opening sessions, the Lockwood committee has its grip on a scandal of unusual proportions. Strong evidence has been adduced to show that leading firms in the building trades are banded together in a close association the purpose of which is apparently to control and limit competition among themselves, to the end that no bid on a building contract shall be "too low." The precise nature of Mr. Hettrick's secret "code of practice" and of his cryptic card catalogue of "competing" bids and bidders has not yet developed; but no very favorable explanation is imaginable. Mr. Untermyer has announced it as his purpose to show "an unlawful scheme to throttle competition." The relations existing between this Building Trades Employers' Association and the Building Trades Council, representing artisans and journeymen in the building crafts, is as yet only vaguely hinted; but enough has developed to give color to Mr. Untermyer's characterization of its President, Brindell, as "perhaps the most potent factor" in the housing situation.

If one-half of what is suggested turns out to be actuality, the Lockwood committee will have to its credit the exposure of a peculiarly deliberate, cold-blooded and flagrant instance of profiteering, and one for the punishment of which the law is amply sufficient. The burden of the housing shortage has fallen mainly upon the poor, who were already sorely pressed by the cost of food and clothing. The result is registered in the Weekly Bulletin issued by the Health Department. There has been a sharp increase in infant mortality from "respiratory and contagious diseases" which are caused mainly by "close and indiscriminate contact." The department attributes the increase to "the present housing situation, which has necessitated the doubling up of families," making it impossible properly to isolate contagion.

There has long been a rumor of illegal combinations in the building trade; and it has even been estimated that they have added a full 20 per cent. to the cost of construction. Such a situation is peculiarly difficult to cope with, and great credit is due to The World for attacking it and to Mr. Untermyer for his vigorous co-operation.

HARDING OFFERS A PRIZE.

As if feeling that the Republican campaign had flagged a little in high intellectual interest, Senator Harding has devised a special appeal to his favorite "ablest minds." He offers a "reward" (amount not stated) to "any man in America who can take my utterances on world politics and point out any inconsistency or change of position." Here is surely a prize competition to enlist eager pens. Those rising essayists, Taft and Johnson and Root, can hardly fail to enter.

Indeed, they have already entered. Hiram Johnson has sent in a belligerent composition. To his mind, there is no ambiguity at all in the candidate's successive deliverances about the League. Harding is going to scrap, smash and generally pulverize it. To be sure, the California Senator is aware that "certain individuals," for sinister "reasons of their own," are asserting that Harding intends to strengthen and save the League of Nations; but he states with emphasis: "I resent these imputations upon the sincerity of the candidate, and the manifest endeavor in some quarters to distort his plain language." This is not exactly the tone of an essay, unless it were like one of Macaulay's when dusting the jacket of some varlet. Senator Johnson's production is very much of a threat of war. Still it is a promising competitor for the Harding prize.

As mere writers, Mr. Root and Mr. Taft are more practiced and skillful than Johnson. They need to be when going into this competition. For, taking a view of Harding directly opposite to that of Senator Johnson, they are compelled to resort to every literary and rhetorical artifice to show that the Republican candidate's meaning is exactly contradictory of what he says. Their difficult task is to make the worse appear the better reason, to go against the natural meaning of words and to maintain that Senator Harding will say to Johnson and Borah after the election, "You were useful to me in winning votes, but now your day is over and I am through with you." Such a proof of inconsistency as that ought to win the first prize. And the only way to offset its force would be to apply to Harding what Tennyson said of an earlier Mr. Facing-both-ways:

> His faith unfaithful kept him falsely

The indefiniteness of Senator Harding's "reward" is only an unimportant detail. He can hardly propose to do less than match the President. Chairman Hays has been talking about an offer of $5,000. That, we should say, is about the right figure for the Harding prize. And whoever wins it should promptly indorse the check over to James W. Gerard for use by the Democratic National Committee.

MR. BRANDEGEE IN 1864.

Senator Brandegee of Connecticut first breathed the vital air in 1864. In those nights his corps of Wide Awakes was strictly domestic. As he is not adapted to the ideas of 1920, the Republican managers have transported him and his campaign to 1864. They have organized a force of Lincoln Wide Awakes to infuse "into Connecticut's 1920 campaign," a delightful news article in The Hartford Courant tells us, "the same spirit of devotion to country as they aroused when the savior of the Union was running for re-election during the civil war." Mr. Lincoln had work enough, one would think, in his life. Now there is imposed upon him the hard task of dragging into office the young Republican of 1864, "one of the ablest statesmen in the country," as The Courant informs a surprised State.

Mr. Brandegee's record has wearied and disgusted thousands of Connecticut Republicans. Are they to be enticed into voting for him by seeing his features portrayed with Mr. Lincoln's on Republican advertisements? Are processions with colored lights and seas of red fire to prevent their seeing him as he is? Is the choral consonancy of a thousand honking horns to make them forget the unseemly words he has spoken in the Senate? Really, the Nutmeg Republican managers must attribute to their fellow-citizens an intelligence not more mature than Mr. Brandegee's was in 1864. In Hartford, Colt's Armory Band makes the air tingle with "John Brown's Body" and "We'll Hang Jeff Davis to a Sour Apple Tree." The League of Nations? Forget it. Ladies and gentlemen, we are now in the midst of the civil war. We must conquer the South. We must save the Union and the Republican Party and Baby Brandegee of 1864.

Light your cars with red, white and blue lamps, swaddle them in red, white and blue bunting. Mr. Lincoln is running for President and he has got to carry Baby Brandegee in his long arms. An intelligent campaign, isn't it? More than a bit dangerous, too. The Courant had the fairness to print a letter from a Methodist pastor, from which may be judged the opinion of thoughtful and independent Connecticut people about this sorry masquerade. He protests, "in the name of all respectable men who do any independent thinking," against the hideous insult to the memory of our greatest President by coupling with his name that of a cheap demagogue, a mere partisan tool like Brandegee. * * * Mr. Brandegee has been the loyal henchman of a number of interests utterly inimical to the welfare of America, let alone that of the world. He has opposed almost every progressive policy and has shown very little regard for any moral considerations involved in our present-day issues. * * * He has never been guilty, so far as I know, of constructing anything more durable or imposing than a hencoop or of any more universal value. He has spent himself in trying to destroy many valuable things. Kindly remember that the memory of Lincoln is not the property of any Republican machine, but of the entire nation.

This pastor is disturbing the Republican congregation. Order the band to play "We'll Hang Jeff Davis on a Sour Apple Tree." Hurrah for Lincoln and Brandegee! This is 1864.

FINANCING THE FARMERS.

It is undesirable that the representatives of the agricultural interests should leave Washington and spread through the country the idea that they are discriminated against by the money power, and that foreign securities or domestic industrial and trade interests are preferred by bankers. There is the making of much prejudice in that idea. It is therefore good policy to support any plan for financing the farmers, which also is in the general interest, as heartily as Secretary Houston and the Federal Reserve were supported in denying the farmers' improper requests. The formation under the Edge law of a $100,000,000 corporation, with a capacity of controlling a revolving fund of a billion dollars, has the promise and potency of helping the export of the farmers' products in contrast to their own plan of refusing to export grain for less than $3 or cotton for less than 40 cents. That is practically an agriculturists' "corner," and is no less objectionable when done by farmers than when assisted by banks or exchanges.

The broader interest would require the movement of the farmers' products into consumption for the same reason that all stagnant stocks of manufactures ought to be taken out of bank loans and liquidated at the price necessary to induce consumers to use them. It is not the function of the banks, or the farmers, or the export corporation, to fix the prices which will move the goods. It is their proper duty to bring producer and consumer together whenever they can agree upon their bargains. Arguments about costs of production are not "selling talk" for merchandisers of agricultural products any more than of factory products. They may be convincing in logic and stimulating to sympathy, but they move no goods, and goods must be moved if there is to be domestic prosperity or relief of world distress.

If the agriculturists think this cold comfort, they are invited to consider what already has been done for them, apart from giving them a dangerous share of bank credit. The country went into the shipping business largely to help agricultural exports. The Shipping Board steamer Daniel Webster sailed from here carrying the product of 66,240 acres of cotton land. On another voyage the same ship took the product of 20,000 acres of oat land. But the oats were Australian oats, because our farmers hold their oats out of consumption. The world will take all our land can spare, if the farmers will sell it, but the world will feed and clothe itself as best it can if our farmers prefer to run corners and complain of mistreatment.

POLAND AND VILNA.

From London comes a version of the Polish answer to British and French official protests against the seizure of Vilna. If it is accurate—and the reaction of Polish opinion to General Zellgouski's coup makes it probable that it is accurate—it is about as inadequate an excuse as can be furnished. If Vilna were given to the Lithuanians, even temporarily, it would cause "further conflicts and uprisings in the Polish Army." The Polish Government hopes that the Powers will not "take advantage of her difficulties" by asking any such renunciation, and begs them "not to place difficulties in the way of the reconstruction of Poland."

Obviously, if the Polish Army will not obey the orders of the Government, and insists on overrunning territory which the Government has promised to respect, this is an obstacle in the way of Polish reconstruction greater than any which could be set up by a foreign Power. Undoubtedly the Government is faced with many difficulties in dealing with Zellgouski's "mutiny," the chief of them being that most Poles are entirely in sympathy with it. The case is closely parallel to that of Fiume; and another parallel on a smaller scale is the recent occupation by Jugoslav troops of territory which had decided at a plebiscite to remain a part of Austria.

The difficulties which any Government has in dealing with such action—particularly if, as in the case of Fiume, some of the most honored military and naval heroes of the nation are associated with the escapade—cannot be denied. But a Government which cannot maintain its authority in such a case is no Government. Italy has suffered less from the Fiume case than Poland is likely to suffer from the affair at Vilna, or even than the Jugoslavs are likely to suffer from the Klagenfurt episode, because Italy is a great Power, with which most nations are bound to remain on as good terms as possible; yet even in Italy the weakening of governmental authority by the unpunished defiance of d'Annunzio probably had something to do with the breaking out of the recent industrial disturbances. The Poles are likely to find the consequences of this affair more serious, for they must eventually get on good terms with most of their neighbors if they want to continue their national existence; and those neighbors will be unlikely to trust them with the Vilna affair fresh in their memories.

A curious sidelight is furnished by the report from Warsaw—which will need a good deal of verification—that a British officer representing the League of Nations told the Poles that they would have to settle the Vilna question with General Wrangel, as the passing of Lithuania from Russian control has never been recognized. Neither has Wrangel been recognized, and British policy has hitherto not been unfriendly to Lithuania. This is an attitude toward Russia which has been outspokenly expressed only by our State Department, and the whole story sounds like a pleasant dream of Warsaw optimists which somebody imposed on a credulous correspondent.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

October Does It Often. According to the psychologists, human beings, though they do a lot of talking about physical pain experienced in the past, do not have any definite remembrance of it. We know that we have suffered, the Wise Ones say, but we cannot bring into consciousness such a duplication of it as we can, for instance, of a face once seen or of an act once committed.

There is something analogous to this in our relation to the weather. We talk much about the hard Winters and the hot or dry Summers of other years, but whenever the weather strikes us as unusual, which it very often does, we are more than inclined both to say and to believe that never before have we known weather to be either so desperately bad or so amazingly delightful as it is at present. So, too, never a Winter passes without at least one storm of which all the arriving Captains say that in forty years of seafaring as man and boy they never went through a meteorological cataclysm as terrible as the one from which they have just escaped.

As a matter of fact, really exceptional weather is of rare occurrence; and though the Government observers do have "record" temperatures and rains and winds on their books, yet they change these standards of comparison with nothing like the frequency that would be required if they heeded popular beliefs and assertions instead of their instruments of precision.

Cautious people, therefore, will not join in the present chorus of laudatory exclamations over the weather we are having. It is, indeed, weather notably enjoyable, but there is hardly an Autumn, if any, when we do not have a period, longer or shorter, of perfect days; and while we—and our coal piles—may well rejoice this year over October's highly commendable behavior, we should not forget that, as a well-kept rule, October is a kindly and beneficent month and deserves praise for general character rather than for single manifestations of philanthropy.

She's Making Worse a Bad Matter. Until Mrs. Arthur L. Livermore is ready to admit that she denounced Article XXIII. of the Covenant of the League of Nations under an honest, though mistaken, notion of what it means, perhaps it would be as well—perhaps it would be even better—if she left further discussion of her remarks on that sad occasion to politicians more hardened, because more experienced, than herself in the art of making an immediate "point" with careless or uninstructed hearers and letting the future take care of itself. The members of the Republican National Committee evidently feel none of her sensitiveness to criticism, for not only do they continue to exploit her charge against an article of the Covenant—a charge which every one of them knew from the beginning to be entirely undeserved—but they do not dream of trying to explain away the impression which her speech made on everybody who heard it. That is because, unlike Mrs. Livermore, they are too wise to undertake a hopeless task, and because, unlike her again, they do not mind the giving of a false impression if thereby a few votes can be gained.

Mrs. Livermore's statement as to what she really said will not be disputed by anybody, one reason for that being that there is no particular difference between what she says she said and what she was said to have said. In either form the criticism of the article is equally inaccurate and equally absurd, for between the supervision of suppression of wicked traffics and the suppression of those traffics the only difference is that the former would be the natural duty and only possible task of the League of Nations, while the actual suppression under international agreements as inevitably would be the work of the several States.

He Must Convict the Libeler. Realizing with commendable promptness the gravity of the charge that some of his troopers refused because it was raining, last Saturday night, to start immediately in pursuit of the men who had escaped from Sing Sing Prison, the commander of the unit thus aspersed, Captain J. A. Warner, has made a vigorous and angry denial of the story. He calls it a "malicious falsehood"—were those really his words? And, speaking as from knowledge, he declares that it was put out in "an effort of some prison official to shift the blame for their own carelessness."

That theory is made more than plausible by what seems to be an admitted fact that a number of keepers who happened to be on leave when the prison whistle advertised the evasion were reprehensibly slow in answering the summons to duty.

But Captain Warner owes it to the reputation of his troopers to do more than say this—to do more, even, than prove the falsity of the charge by giving the record of their work that night. He should not rest until he has identified the particular keeper or keepers who made the accusation. For that accusation is a serious one in that, if not entirely cleared up and made impossible of repetition by anybody, it will circulate for years and years among the enemies of the State Constabulary, and will be of even more value to them than is the name of "Cossacks" which they are so fond of applying to the force.

Anyhow, His Question Has Interest. A postman who to lighten his pack burns up mail matter, as one did over in New Jersey this week, fully deserves all the punishment that is coming to him—"and then some," as the world's people say. He has shaken one of society's most important pillars and betrayed a trust that ought to be sacred. But—well, when questioned about his crime, this wicked, wicked man said that what he burned was "political literature," and "What good is it, anyhow?" he asked. That, of course, was no defense, and yet, in these days when others than postmen feel the burden of such "literature" in their mails, more than one honest citizen will echo the villain's question. In theory, these appeals of the candidates gain votes. Do they? Did ever a voter admit that his opinion was changed in this way—that thus he was driven or persuaded into the polling place?

THE PRESIDENT'S APPEAL.

An Argument Above the Bitterness of the Campaign.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is recorded of Guizot when he was Premier of France that at a time when public sentiment was dangerously aroused against England, he steadfastly refused to be drawn into war because he believed that a conflict between France and England would be an irreparable disaster to civilization. In consequence he was assailed with the utmost fury by his political opponents, who accused him, among many other things, of seeking to sacrifice the indpendence of his country to foreign domination. "Raise the pile of calumny as high as you can," replied Guizot, "you will never reach to the height of my disdain." It is the lofty spirit of Guizot's words which characterizes President Wilson's recent statement to the country. He ignores the unparalleled bitterness of the Republican politicians' attacks upon him, their gross misrepresentation of his motives and actions, and the way in which they have subordinated all other aims to the one of discrediting him, and confines himself to appealing to the people on behalf of the League of Nations, in support of which he has labored so untiringly in the face of so many obstacles.

The attitude with which Mr. Wilson has confronted the animosity which his efforts have brought upon him is easily comprehensible. He has studied history too well not to have learned from it what reward humanity has given in their lifetime to those who have sought to serve it. His own words, "Men will tolerate their tyrants for a thousand years, but they will turn and rend their deliverers," proves the completeness of his disillusion. They were spoken just as he was about to commence his struggle for the ratification of the Treaty, and the presentiment contained in them has only been too clearly verified.

It has been Mr. Wilson's misfortune that, through the force of circumstances, the conception of the League of Nations, his greatest contribution to the welfare of his own country and the world, should have become the issue in a political campaign where it has been subjected to the most willful distortion and misinterpretation which partisanship or personal spite could dictate. But even if this should end by bringing about the ultimate rejection of the League, a contingency that does not seem improbable at the present time, President Wilson's fame in history will not be obscured by the defeat of the cause to which he dedicated his best powers. In that event posterity will judge him not by what he failed to achieve but by the end to which he aspired. It will be said of him as it has been said of another great man, "that his destiny was inferior to his genius."

Bandits of Haiti.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I spent many months in Haiti, during which time I often accompanied native pack trains as a guard. We were frequently attacked by bandits who had no other intentions but to rob and kill.

For a while I was stationed in a town in the interior of Haiti whose only stone building was a church. Every inhabitant of this town brought his family and possessions into this church each evening, as the town was raided regularly by the "cacos." Needless to state, this condition did not last long after our detachment arrived.

A "bon inhabitant" will not venture beyond the range of marine rifles in Northern Haiti, as he knows that there are bandits constantly on the watch who are eager to rob and kill. In Thomonde a guard is necessary to accompany funerals to the cemetery just outside of town.

League Questions Answered.

Men or women who are in doubt as to the meaning of any of the provisions of the Covenant of the League of Nations may obtain a copy of the Covenant and of the A B C of the League of Nations, without cost, upon application at this office.

SLIGHTLY APPREHENSIVE.

We dream of contests, now—we who are free
To use the weapons that our laws provide—
We to whom, ages long, this was denied—
Who chafed so long in our servility.

We dream of struggles, now—we who, at last,
The keen delight that uselessness is past!

We dream of conquests, now—of victory—
The safe election of our candidate!
For so they dream who shared too long the fate
Of fools and children, knowing no equity.

We dream of honor now—and courtesies:
The careful deference that men have to pay
To those whose votes control Election Day.
And, yes, we dream of subtle energies!

We, now, are citizens (the word is sweet!)
And armed for battle. Therefore, in our dreams,
We must admit strange thoughts and sordid gleams!
Soon, soon we face the rally, caucus, meet,

The secret conclave, the unholy deal,
Bribes and corruption, "Wall Street influence,"
Those curious things—leaks, slush-funds, false pretense,
The big steam roller and the bigger squeal.

We are enfranchised, and the Ship of State
Must sail the truer when our votes are polled.
Yet were our dreams—and all our nightmares—told
Man would take heart and calm himself to—wait.

For is he not the master of those tricks
Which puzzle us with baneful mysteries?
Our dreams disturb us with vague prophecies
Of our too great success in "politics"!

POPE RECEIVES AMERICANS.

ROME, Oct. 20.—Pope Benedict today received a small American pilgrimage headed by Monsignor John Grimes, Bishop of Syracuse, N. Y. It included Bishops George A. Guertin, of Manchester, N. H.; Joseph P. Lynch, Dallas, Texas; Peter J. Muldoon, Rockford, Ill.; Matthias C. Lenihan, Great Falls, Mont.; Joseph F. Busch, St. Cloud, Minn., and Patrick R. Heffron, Winona, Minn.; the Rev. J. S. Buckley, Chancellor of the Manchester diocese; the Rev. John H. R. Huel, Chancellor of the Dallas diocese, and the Rev. William L. Liddy, Secretary to Bishop Grimes.

Several women accompanied the party, among them being Mrs. J. R. Erwin, Lake City, Minn.; Miss Helen F. Kennedy, New York City, and Miss Marguerite L. Ellwanger, Dubuque, Ia.

The Pontiff spoke most cordially to each member of the pilgrimage and imparted to his visitors the apostolic benediction.

HOLDS LEVER ACT ILLEGAL.

Pittsburgh Judge Rules Section 4 Is Unconstitutional.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 21.—Judge W. H. S. Thompson, in the United States District Court, read an opinion from the bench today declaring the fourth section of the Lever act unconstitutional and dismissing the Government's petition for an order of removal so that George W. Yount, George A. Howe and William O. Taylor, railroad men, could be taken to Chicago, where they have been indicted for conspiracy to violate the section the court declared unconstitutional.

Assistant Federal Attorney Daniel S. Horne, who brought the order of removal, went before the court afterward and took exception to the opinion and subsequent order which discharged the three men this morning.

The section reads:

"Any person violating the provisions of this section shall, upon conviction, be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding $5,000 or be imprisoned for two years, or both, provided that this section shall not apply to farmers, gardeners, horticulturists, vineyardists, planters, ranchmen, dairymen, stockmen and other agriculturists."

This was held as assailing the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments to the Constitution, providing that no one shall be deprived of his life, liberty or property, and that all shall receive equal justice under the law.

After citing higher court opinions in cases where agriculturists had heretofore been shown partiality Judge Thompson in the opinion set forth that, applying these same principles to the section in question, the section seems repugnant to the Constitution of the United States.

"All these agricultural workers may with impunity, wilfully and for the purpose of enhancing the price, destroy, waste or hoard the necessities which come from the farm," said the court. "These thousands might form a gigantic combination through unfair device or discriminating means to limit the production or restrict the supply and distribution of these necessities that they might make greater gains by extorting excessive profits, and yet such acts, while utterly destructive of the purpose of the statute, would receive the sanction of the law; and these very same acts, committed by any other person not in the favored classes, would make him a criminal and deprive him of his property or his liberty, or both."

"Surely," Judge Thompson held, "such classification is unjust and arbitrary in the extreme, violating both the letter and the spirit of the Fifth Amendment."

PRAISES PORT TREATY.

Cohen Tells Queens Commerce Chamber It Means Development.

Julius Henry Cohen, counsel for the New York and New Jersey Port and Harbor Development Commission, at a luncheon of the Queens Chamber of Commerce at the Hotel Commodore yesterday, declared that the treaty in effect between New York and New Jersey was one of the greatest documents ever drawn in the interest of the great project of port development.

"Port development is not development of docks, piers and shipping," he said, "it means a great deal more. The commission proposes to link together every facility in the richest port in the world, which has been lagging behind. Montreal, Galveston, New Orleans and other ports with not one-quarter of the development of the Port of New York have been forging ahead at a great rate. We have waited until our business is being taken away by smaller ports before we realized the situation we are facing."

He was asked by H. P. Williams, President of the Queens Chamber of Commerce, what developments were in store for Queens. Mr. Cohen answered that until the commission's report was made public, within a few days, he was not privileged to answer. About 200 members of the Chamber of Commerce were present.

"The business interests of New York are bound to suffer if the city does not provide proper accommodations for the commerce which seeks terminals at this port," said a statement by the Queens organization yesterday. "New Jersey has been quick to see the advantage of such development, and unless New York City and Queens Borough in particular, take immediate steps to provide proper accommodations the business will go to New Jersey."

WON'T AID CUBAN GROWERS.

Fruit Products Association Fear Maintaining of High Sugar Prices.

BROCTON, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Marcus Blakemore, President of the National Preserves and Fruit Products Association, announced today that the association's Executive Committee, following a canvass vote of members, disapproved the proposal to assist financially Cuban interests involved in the "sugar tragedy," which, it was declared, has already resulted in an advance in the price of sugar.

Present "abnormally high and advancing prices," the committee explained, may thereby be maintained at the expense of all for the benefit of a few, in the face of an estimated large surplus in available supply.

"A concerted plan to aid in hoarding or withholding in this commodity is feared," the committee said, "on account of the possibility of a repetition of the recent orgy of wild, disorderly speculation and unconscionable prices without cause or conditions to justify."

The committee approved the policy of permitting prices of commodities to take a natural course in obedience to recognized laws of supply and demand. These must of necessity prevail in the end, the committee said.

PACKERS REVISE YARD PLAN.

Government Agrees to Continue Court Action for Its Completion.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—The Government has agreed to a continuance until next Tuesday of the argument scheduled today in the District Supreme Court on the plan of the big five packers for the disposal of their market stock yards, it was announced at the Department of Justice.

The packers are working out a new plan for the divorcement of these properties, it was said at the department, and the Government has consented to wait until Tuesday for its completion.

HEAR OCEAN-TO-OCEAN TALK

In Waldorf Also "Listen In" on Phone Conversation from Atlantic to Pacific.

Some remarkable developments in American long distance telegraphic and telephonic communications, as well as wonders of research laboratories seeking to improve better transmission of wire, phone and radio messages were exhibited yesterday to the delegates from France, England, Italy, Japan and the United States to the Preliminary International Communications Conference who spent twenty-four hours in New York City as guests of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and associated concerns of the Bell System.

Before leaving at midnight for Washington, technical experts among the delegates expressed themselves as being almost stunned at the magnitude of American electrical experimentations, tests and developments witnessed by them both here and earlier in the week at the works of the General Electric Company at Schenectady.

Telephone Talk from Ocean to Ocean.

One of the demonstrations arranged was the setting up of communication by wires and wireless between the Catalina Islands in the Pacific Ocean and a ship in the Atlantic Ocean off the New Jersey Coast. The Catalina operator talked to the skipper of the Gloucester over 4,000 miles of telephone wires and radio distances of about 100 miles, while the guests listened in from a dining room in the Waldorf here, where a dinner was given for them last night by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

After the Catalina operator had told the skipper of the Gloucester, who was riding a heavy sea in the Atlantic Ocean's darkness of 11 o'clock, that the sun was just setting off California, Colonel John J. Carty, Vice President of the telephone company, cut in with:

"You, Captain Nichols on the Gloucester, and Operator Spiker on the Catalina Islands, are taking part in an epochal event in wireless telephony. You are the first men to talk to each other from the Atlantic to the Pacific, across the waters of both oceans and the stretches of the continent."

The two men talked for about four minutes, and then Operator Spiker closed up his apparatus to go to supper and Captain Nichols to go to bed. Their conversation had been hampered somewhat by amateur operators, who insisted upon tuning up their radio apparatus to listen in both on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. Static interference prevented the Gloucester from hearing well, but Catalina was able to hear every word with ease.

By automatic devices of American invention, the conversation was taken off the ends of the land wires and transmitted by radio to the ocean stations. The wireless distance on the Pacific was about thirty miles between wires' ends and the Catalina Island Station. The distance between the wires' end at New Brunswick, N. J. and the Gloucester was more than fifty miles.

The establishments visited yesterday were the headquarters of the American Telegraph and Telephone Company at 195 Broadway, the operating headquarters of the New York Long Distance Telephone Office at 24 Walker Street and finally the Research Laboratory of the Bell System at 463 West Street.

In the Broadway structure they participated in the demonstration of a 1,000 mile four-wire long-distance telephone transmission by cable which has been put into trial commercial operation between New York and Reading. The circuit is formed by looping back and forth in the cables between New York and Reading. It is being tried out for development under conditions of service operation, and the delegates were informed that this system of long toll cables will be extended from New York to Boston, Washington, Albany, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Cincinnati, St. Louis and Chicago.

Carrier-Current Phone Circuit.

In the same building the visitors saw the demonstration of a carrier-current telephone circuit in operation from New York via Harrisburg to Chicago, a distance of 700 miles. This is not yet in commercial use, but will be within a month. Between Harrisburg and Chicago over each circuit of one wire twelve telegraph and one telephone messages could be sent simultaneously. In yesterday's demonstration five and a half telephone circuits and two duplex telegraph circuits were used without interference in conversations between the foreign visitors in the Broadway building and the company's representatives in the downtown district of Chicago.

What seemed to impress most of the delegates as the most interesting demonstration was one of cipher printing by telegraph. This has not yet gone into commercial use and has been one of the wartime secrets of the American Government and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. Major Gen. Squiers, Chief of American Army Communications and other military and naval officers present were not surprised at what took place because several months before the armistice this newly developed cipher printing telegraph system was in daily use between the War Department at Washington and its port of embarkation at Hoboken.

Yesterday the cipher message was sent over a fifty-mile circuit from New York to Cliffwood, N. J., half of this route being by radio and the balance over return land wires. During the demonstration the delegates saw messages ciphered and then transmitted and simultaneously received over the circuit and deciphered by an automatic apparatus. It was shown that any plain text message could be deciphered easily and accurately at great speed with absolute secrecy, and that the running cipher key used, consisting of a succession of characters, could easily be altered within fifteen minutes.

Research Laboratory Wonders.

The entire afternoon was devoted to inspection of the Bell System Research Laboratories conducted by the engineering department of the Western Electric Company at 463 West Street. Dr. J. B. Jewett, Chief Engineer of the Western Electric Company, explained that 400,000 feet of floor space in the 13-story building was given over to all branches of research and engineering work bearing on the art of communication, and that 3,500 individuals were employed, 1,000 of whom were research engineers.

The delegates witnessed everything from the electrical recording of the energy furnished by the beating of the human heart to the reproduction, on what was described as an oscillograph, of a picture of the human voice and its vibrations. Eminent men among the delegates sat before an instrument which registered through electricity their own bodies generated the beating of their hearts and as each arose from the chair a photographic record of his heart-beats was handed to him. During the projection on a screen in a dark room in the electrical recording of the vibrations of the human voice, one of the scientists of the laboratory talked into a telephonic receiver an address in which he described the wave lines of his own voice as his lecture was projected in a vibrating line on the screen.

The visitors were almost bewildered by the rapid succession of things of this sort shown to them and were especially interested in the apparatus which will be used when the entire telephone system of New York City is transformed from a manual system to a new developed form of automatic telephony.

E. S. GREENBAUM WED TO MISS SCHWARCZ

REV. DR. SEAGLE MARRIES

Rector of St. Stephen's Church Wed to Miss Marion Louise Peckham by Bishop Burch.

The marriage of Miss Dorothea Schwarcz, daughter of the late Max M. Schwarcz, and Edward S. Greenbaum, son of Supreme Court Justice Samuel Greenbaum of the Appellate Division, and Mrs. Greenbaum of 2 East Ninety-fourth Street, was solemnized last evening at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Wolf, 272 West Ninetieth Street.

It was a quiet family wedding, with the Rev. Mr. Harris officiating. The bride wore a gown of white velvet and a veil of rare old lace, an heirloom in her family.

Mr. and Mrs. Greenbaum will go to Jerusalem on their bridal trip and will be absent three months. They will reside in this city on their return.

Mr. Greenbaum is a lawyer, and during the war he won rapid promotion for meritorious service. While he was at Camp Upton as a private he obtained a commission as Captain, and it was stated then that it was the first time in the National Army, so far as known, that a man from the ranks received such an appointment. Later he was made a Major in the Judge Advocate's Department. He served in Germany also for several months.

His father, who has been a Supreme Court Justice since 1900, is a trustee of the New York Public Library and of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America and President of the Educational Alliance.

CHICAGO IRISH FAIL TO SILENCE COCKRAN

He Speaks in Stockyard District and Replies to Numerous Hecklers.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—W. Bourke Cockran, defying the threats of local Sinn Fein leaders, tonight portrayed Governor James M. Cox as the friend of Ireland and Senator Warren G. Harding as its foe. He spoke at the Stock Yards Pavilion, in the centre of a district in which the Irish vote is particularly strong. Upward of 5,000 persons heard him.

One hundred police and scores of husky "ushers" were on hand to preserve order. There were some fights outside of the hall before the meeting, but the crowd inside was orderly.

During the day Sinn Fein leaders made another protest against Cockran's support of Governor Cox. A meeting was held at the Morrison Hotel, at which the Sinn Fein leaders decided upon the course to pursue at tonight's meeting. No announcement was made of the decision arrived at.

Sinn Feiners who had passed the news that Mr. Cockran would be heckled contented themselves with passing out literature citing his attacks on the League of Nations before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. Cockran explained that the salvation of the human race depended on the election of Governor Cox to the Presidency, "for his election means the League of Nations, and the League of Nations means disarmament, and disarmament means the end of war."

Mr. Cockran proceeded to blame Senator Harding for the "recent outrages committed by the Black and Tans upon the women and children of Ireland."

"Harding, by his statement on Sept. 15 that the Irish question was no concern of the United States, practically told Lloyd George that he could go ahead and make Ireland a heap of smoking ruins. Harding is to blame for Ireland's sorrows today—for the dastardly work of the Black and Tans."

There was an uproar which Mr. Cockran quieted while the police dashed about seeking the heckler.

Then Mr. Cockran cut loose:

"It's the likes of you," he told the heckler, "that's to blame for Ireland's troubles—the likes of you that's the tool of the Republican politicians. They sent you here to break up this meeting."

"What's Wilson doing—what's Colby doing for Ireland?" came a voice.

"Nothing," replied Mr. Cockran, "and if Harding was doing anything I would not be here denouncing him."

There were a few more questions about the League and about Wilson. There were calls of "Throw 'em out."

REPUBLICANS APPEAL FOR GIFTS OF $1,000

James G. Blaine, Jr., Says It Has Been Necessary to Borrow to Run Campaign.

The Republican National Committee, through James G. Blaine, Jr., its Eastern treasurer, sent out an appeal yesterday for funds.

"The effort of the Republican National Committee to collect the expenses of the Presidential campaign with maximum contributions of $1,000 is well known," the appeal said. "This is the first attempt of this kind by any party, and is a very difficult undertaking.

"In previous campaigns, the East has furnished the greater part of all campaign funds. This has been because of the large individual gifts in this section. Because of the largeness of gifts in the past, the number of individual contributors has been small.

"With the limit of $1,000 many more contributions are necessary, and for these we appeal. The expenses of the campaign will not exceed the published budget. Because of the difficulty in getting the new system in operation, the collections have been slow, and consequently we have had to borrow money to meet the necessary expense. This money we will repay from money collected by means of these limited contributions. Additional money also is necessary.

"The educational campaign must not stop. The issues are vital to the very life of the nation. Republican success is the one most essential element in our national welfare. It is our very earnest desire to make this system of small gifts a success, in order that it may endure as the permanent method of raising campaign funds. There has never been a more forward step in political management. Most earnestly we ask the cooperation of all Republicans."

Mr. Blaine asked that checks be made payable to himself or to Frederick W. Upham, Treasurer of the National Committee, 19 West 44th Street.

Marymount, a leather merchant. Marymount, accompanied by Miss M. Solomon, was traveling south in Riverside Drive, on the way to Miss Solomon's home at 883 West End Avenue.

AUTHOR OF CALIBAN FINDS WEDLOCK BEST

GIVES RULES FOR HUSBANDS

Marriage Always Worth Trying, and Particularly in America, Where Divorce Is Easy, He Asserts.

In this sentence you have the whole of W. L. George's philosophy of marriage. A typical Englishman, talking English with a decided French accent—all smiles one minute, and pleading earnestly and seriously the next—this British author vastly interested his audience at Aeolian Hall last night with his first lecture in America. He started by saying that he thought most American women made the mistake of being Americans primarily and just women afterward.

"All women are at heart the same," he said, "and women all the world over, when they come up against the problem of marriage, have to think the same questions out under more or less the same circumstances."

There are three states of marriage—"happy," "unhappy" and "uncomfortable." For the last there are all kinds of remedies, of which the best, in Mr. George's opinion, is the determination to realize that your partner has just as much to put up with in you as you have in him or her.

"All is fair in love and war—then anything you do to solve the marriage question is doubly fair, since marriage is both love and war," he continued. "Marriage is the natural state for all mankind, and more especially is this so now, when all the world is weary and sad, and war looks to woman and woman to man for help and sympathy and mutual support. Marriage is always worth trying, and particularly in America, where divorce is comparatively easy to obtain."

The lecturer urged that a marriage, even if it is only partly successful, is better than to have a man here and a woman there wandering through life, lonely and wrathful, when each might have found in the other something that would have helped and made things worth while.

Rules for All Married Men.

Mr. George offered to all the married men in the world seven rules which he said would surely prove successful. If they did not, he added, there was obviously nothing else to be done. The chief of these rules was this:

"Say to your wife once every day: 'I love you,' even if this should not be strictly true. She will like to hear it, and if it is reiterated enough both partners to the marriage will soon begin to believe it."

The second most important rule was to remember to bring home from the office each night something new and something bright, either material or in the form of an idea that would please the woman who has been shut up all day with her children, or still more lonely should she be without children. And for the women he would say this:

"Before your men start out in the morning say to them: 'How strong you are!' Some of you may object that you have married small husbands and that they cannot be strong. In that case gaze on them with fond eyes and say: 'How much stronger you are getting.' This is sure to please."

"Start off in this way," he said. "'I've had enough of this. I can't stand it any more. What do you mean by it?' The enemy is then certain to fly into the air and ask you what you mean by it. Then go ahead hammer and tongs until you both have exhausted all your grievances and you will then both flatly deny the accusations of the other. Then go straight to bed.

In the Morning.

"In the morning you will neither of you mention the dispute, but gradually it will begin to dawn on you both that possibly you were each a little right, and both a whole lot wrong."

Mr. George suggested that each week all good husbands and wives should prepare a list of grievances against each other, upon which would be such entries as the following:

On the husband's list:

And on the wife's list would be:

"Sings dreadfully in his bath."

At the end of the lecture Mr. George was bombarded with questions from his hearers, and he had a hard time answering them. Finally somebody asked, in a tentative way: "Are you married?"

The author of "Caliban" smiled broadly.

"I leave that to you," he said.

FARMER-LABOR NAMES TO BE INVESTIGATED

Petitions for Candidates Believed to Have Been Fraudulently Prepared Go to Swann.

Believing that petitions filed for Farmer-Labor candidates for Supreme and City Court Justices, which were thrown out a few days ago, were fraudulently prepared, John R. Voorhis, President of the Board of Elections, declared yesterday that he would turn the petitions over to District Attorney Swann for investigation. The petitions were those of John J. Sammon, Robert Ferrari and J. Fairfax McLaughlin, candidates for Supreme Court in the First District, and Stephen J. Madigan, Candidate for the City Court.

Mr. Voorhis said he had made an investigation and found that while the petitions contained 4,100 names, 2,100 of them did not appear in the last registration list and, therefore, were invalid. It was apparent, he said, that many of the names were written in one hand and that many names looked as though they had been merely copied from the registration lists.

Mr. Madigan and Mr. McLaughlin, President Voorhis said, had admitted that the petitions filed in their behalf appeared to be defective and that they believed they had been imposed upon by those to whom the preparation of the petitions was intrusted.

Public Utilities Pooling Coal.

President M. S. Sloan, of the Brooklyn Edison Company, issued a statement yesterday for the New York Fuel Distribution Committee, saying the public utilities of the city were standing together and would pool their coal supplies, if necessary, to prevent any utility from being closed for lack of coal. He said the New York and Richmond Gas Company had been in straits for lack of fuel during the last week and had been supplied by the Brooklyn Edison Company.

HOTEL MEN DEFY RILEY; REFUSE TO CUT PRICES

Admit Gross Profits of 100 to 220 Per Cent., but Insist Restaurants Barely Make Expenses.

The hotel men of this city refused yesterday to consent to a reduction in food prices, following a three-hour conference with Armin W. Riley, special assistant to Attorney General Palmer. As a result of their stand Mr. Riley announced that he would direct the agents of the "Flying Squadron" immediately to begin an investigation into the cost of foodstuffs to the hotels, tracing the increases all along the line from the time that the eatables are placed in the kitchens of the hostelries to the time that they are served upon their tables.

If it is found that unreasonable prices are charged, Mr. Riley said he would ask for indictments for profiteering.

The decision of the hotel men was announced to Mr. Riley by Frank A. K. Boland, counsel for the Hotel Men's Association. Mr. Boland said many hotel restaurants and dining rooms were being operated at a loss, while others were barely paying expenses. The causes for this, he said, were inefficient labor, high wages, excessive costs of food which waiters consume and the growing indisposition on the part of the eating public to tip the waiters.

Mr. Boland admitted the hotel owners derived gross profits ranging anywhere from 100 to 220 per cent. on the majority of items on their menus. For each dollar that they spent, he said, they must try to get two dollars in return from the public. He suggested that Mr. Riley had started his investigation at the wrong end.

Mr. Riley argued that the ultimate distributor should "clean house," and said that if others were able to reduce prices the hotel men should be able to fall in line. He told the hotel men to expect to see members of the "Flying Squadron" in their kitchens at any time.

WILLIAM R. INNIS DIES ON ARDSLEY LINKS

Retired Official of Studebaker Corporation Stricken with Apoplexy While Playing Golf.

William R. Innis of 525 Park Avenue, formerly a Director and an official of the Studebaker Corporation, died suddenly yesterday afternoon from a stroke of apoplexy while playing golf on the links of the Ardsley Country Club at Ardsley-on-Hudson. With him at the time were Dr. Walter Eyre Lambert of 112 East Thirty-fifth Street, Morton S. Paton of Dobbs Ferry, and a Mr. Grees of the Ardsley Club. The attack of illness came so quickly that Mr. Innis had fallen to the ground before his friends realized that he was not well.

Mr. Innis retired from active business several years ago. He was 61 years old. In 1884 he married a daughter of Peter Studebaker, and later became an important executive in the Studebaker firm. He also held a Vice Presidency and a directorship of the Chicago & South Bend Railroad. Business interests brought him to New York, and most of his time of recent years had been spent here. He was a Director of the New York Life Insurance Company, of the O'Rourke Engineering Construction Company, and a Trustee of the Union Dime Savings Bank.

TRY FRENCH "BLUEBEARD."

Unable to Find 11 Women, Government Arraigns Him as Swindler.

PARIS, Oct. 21.—Henri Landru, who has been under arrest for more than two years charged with knowledge of the disappearance of eleven women to whom he is said to have promised marriage, was arraigned before a police court here this afternoon on several charges of swindling growing out of his venture in the automobile and garage business in 1913. Since his arrest he has been known as a modern "Bluebeard."

The prosecuting attorney at today's arraignment did not mention the charges of murder against Landru, but demanded that the most severe penalty of French law for swindling—five years' penal servitude and then deportation to Noumea or Devil's Island—be meted out to the accused if convicted.

During the arraignment Landru several times sneeringly asked the Judge why he was not being tried for murder, and his attorney asked the court that Landru be tried on the charge for which he had been arrested.

The opinion was expressed by officials in Court House circles this afternoon that the State would drop its charges of murder against Landru if it should secure a conviction on the lesser charge. The Judge reserved decision for one week.

There has been no trace found of the eleven missing women.

$25,000 ESSAY JURY WANTED

Pro-League Independents Say Chairman Hays Is Delaying Selection.

The Pro-League Independents, of which Professor Irving Fisher of Yale is Chairman, announced yesterday that the prize of $25,000 offered through the Democratic National Committee for an essay furnishing proof that the League means war, would go a-begging unless Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, assisted George White, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, in the selection of a jury.

"Mr. White has been ready since the offer was made to perform his share of the selection, but Mr. Hays has not yet had the courtesy to confer with him on the matter, with the result that no action can be taken," it was stated at the offices of the Pro-League Independents.

DOLLAR UP IN ARGENTINA.

Merchants Decide to Cut Imports from the United States.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 20.—Leading Argentine importers of North American goods met this afternoon and adopted resolutions to limit to absolute necessities future importations from the United States until there is an improvement in the rate of exchange. This rate rose today to 127½, a new high record for the American dollar.

Incoming ships from United States ports continue to unload goods, the most of which are being left in customs warehouses, importers being reluctant to pay for the goods under present exchange conditions.

The situation is discussed editorially by all the newspapers here. Some urge that Argentina's gold reserve of more than 463,000,000 pesos be released, in part, for export, but others say that it would be wisest to keep the gold intact on account of the financial situation of the world, especially Europe.

Announcement is made by the Argentine Government of the purchase of 6,000 tons of steel rails from United States firms. The price paid was $73 per ton; and the rails will be used in the construction of a road in the Province of San Juan.

WOMEN DEMOCRATS EXPEL MRS. CROSBY

CALL HER ACTS 'TRAITOROUS'

Mrs. Crosby Declares Tammany Ordered Expulsion and She Will Not Submit to It.

Mrs. John Sherwin Crosby, who was elected some time ago Honorary President of the Women's Democratic Club for life, was expelled from the club yesterday at a meeting held in the Hotel Commodore. Mrs. John Robert Miller, who moved the expulsion, charged that Mrs. Crosby was disloyal to the principles of the Democratic Party when she formed the Harding and Wadsworth Women's Democratic League.

The seven women constituting a special committee of the club to "try" Mrs. Crosby voted unanimously to recommend her expulsion. Mrs. Crosby was then asked to leave, but refused to do so, declaring she was still a member of the club.

The resolution expelling Mrs. Crosby embodied also the request that she turn over the books and records of the organization to Anna Moscowitz Kross, Secretary.

Among those present at the meeting were Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany, Mrs. Henry P. Keith, Mrs. John Blair, Mrs. McClellan Smith, Mrs. Clarice Bayright, Miss Ella Sullivan, Mrs. Sumner Gerard and Mrs. Vanderbilt Webb.

"I am a Jeffersonian Democrat," said Mrs. Crosby after the meeting, "and only death can remove me from membership in this club. This is Murphy's doing and I shall not let it end here."

"The voice is Jacob's voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau," said Mrs. Crosby after the meeting. "This meeting was not called by the ladies who signed it, but ordered—I say most positively 'ordered'—by Tammany Hall, threatened now, as it is, by a widespread defection of women voters. Tammany is in trouble with its women voters who are in revolt, and this meeting was called to turn the tide, but it will have no such effect.

"My title to membership comes from the Democratic voters of the Twenty-first Congressional District, where I reside, and who elected me to represent them in the San Francisco Convention, which I did. That is my title, indisputable by any one, and will remain good until there is another Democratic Convention in 1924, which is a long way off."

"Expel me as not true to Democratic principles! I have been a supporter of Democratic principles and a worker for them all my life. If these ladies had any sense of tolerance, so essential in politics, they would realize that what the Democrats now need is to bring voters into the party, not drive them out.

"It would take more than a club to read me out of the party."

During the meeting Mrs. Hirst asserted that Mrs. Crosby affronted every woman suffrage worker by supporting Senator Wadsworth, to which Mrs. Crosby rejoined that "Senator Wadsworth exhibited great vision when he voted against woman suffrage," adding that the women were proving at the meeting that they were not fit to vote.

The resolution of expulsion declared that Mrs. Crosby had deserted the Democratic Party "for unknown reasons," and that "such desertions of Democratic ranks and the Democratic standard bearers can only be construed as traitorous."

Mrs. Crosby is understood to have engaged counsel to look after her interests in whatever steps she may take in regard to her expulsion.

WASHINGTON AGENTS SEIZE LIQUOR HERE

TAKES ISSUE WITH MILLER

W. H. Hirst Says Amendment of Volstead Act, Not Enforcement, Is Campaign Question.

Fifty agents of the Department of Justice, attached to the Intelligence Unit in Washington, yesterday combed the city in quest of contraband liquor. During the day the agents, with men from the office of Frank L. Boyd, Supervising Prohibition Enforcement Agent for this State, seized more than $30,000 worth of liquor, which was placed in storage pending further investigation.

One squad of operatives visited the establishment of Wortman Brothers, wholesale liquor dealers, at 1,146 Second Avenue, where they seized 100 cases of whisky, some of which, it was said, were being removed from the premises in trucks. At the same time a squad of Mr. Boyd's men seized two large motor trucks, containing 475 cases of whiskey, as they were about to cross the ferry at Cortlandt Street for Jersey City.

The fact that so many Department of Justice agents had been sent from Washington to aid in the suppression of illegal traffic in liquor here was kept secret. Officials in Mr. Boyd's office refused to discuss their presence. It was learned, however, that they had come here several days ago and had made a careful canvass of warehouses and wholesale liquor establishments.

John B. Qugley, Assistant Supervising Prohibition Agent, refused to give out any information about the seizure of the two truckloads of whisky at the Cortland Street Ferry. It was learned that the chauffeurs showed Mr. Boyd's agents permits issued by the Prohibition Director for Pennsylvania which authorized the removal of the 475 cases of whisky from a small city in that State.

William H. Hirst, attorney for the New York State Brewers' Association, and the Society of Restaurateurs, issued a statement in which he referred to a speech made by Nathan L. Miller Wednesday at Olean, N. Y., in which the Republican candidate for Governor declared himself in favor of enforcement of the prohibition law. Mr. Hirst said enforcement of the law was not the issue of the campaign.

"The question," said Mr. Hirst, "is whether he will favor the repeal or amendment of the Volstead act which will legalize the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer, and so represent to Congress in the event of his election as Governor."

Admitting that the Governor had no direct power in the matter, Mr. Hirst said the importance and prestige of the office would result in Congress granting consideration to "any communication he made on the subject."

"The people of the State of New York are overwhelmingly in favor of light wines and beer," added Mr. Hirst. "Will Judge Miller correctly reflect that sentiment as Governor?"

When Michael Korge of 316 Henry Street was brought before Federal Judge Harlan B. Howe of Vermont, temporarily presiding in Brooklyn, the Judge announced that henceforth he would impose severe penalties upon contrabrand liquor dealers. Of the Volstead Act, he said:

"In my opinion the law is one of the greatest blessings that has ever come to the American people."

"If a person violates the law in good-fellowship it is quite different from violating it in a commercial transaction for profit," he said. "Many cases are merely technical breaches of the law. Those should be dealt with differently than intentional wilful violations. In my opinion, the important thing for the courts to do at this time is to deal out severe punishment in commercial offenses and grade the others to fit the particular circumstances of each particular case."

Judge Howe then found Korge guilty and fined him $50.

Chief Magistrate McAdoo yesterday adjourned the hearing of the charge against Stewart N. McMullin, prohibition enforcement agent, acquitted of murder in the Federal Court Wednesday. McMullin was arrested as a fugitive from Indiana when released after the verdict of acquittal. Examination has been set for next Saturday.

—at less than cost of "ready-mades!"

YOU'D be surprised if you knew the type of men who are having their clothes made to order by this great wholesale house.

Business executives, attorneys, bankers, physicians, public officials, Wall St. men, some of the city's ablest men of affairs—former patrons of Fifth Avenue's best tailors—men who have paid as high as $150 and more for their suits and overcoats.

These men don't have to save the money.

10% discount for very small sizes

But they take a joy in putting over a good trade. There's a zest for them—as for all live men—in making their dollars do double and triple duty—by buying direct from the producer.

No more 3-figure custom-tailor prices for them! And as for ready-mades—what sane man will knowingly pay $60 and up for a stock size suit—when he can get "made-to-order" style and fit at a lower cost?

We're holding a special sale this month. A "Pick Up Sale," we call it—featuring $60, $70 and $90 values we picked up during the recent woolen market slump—clearing them, while they last, at $40.

There's no better time than now to visit one of our 3 salesrooms, and see what this "maker-to-wearer" tailoring service will do for your pocketbook and wardrobe.

BANKERS ORGANIZE TO EXPORT COTTON

WILL GIVE LONG CREDITS

IS NOT A HOLDING PLAN

Financiers Declare That Crop Must Be Moved—National Bankers Indorse Reserve System.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Southern bankers attending the convention of the American Bankers' Association authorized the formation of a $12,000,000 corporation to aid in exporting cotton at a meeting this afternoon. Stock will be taken in the corporation by banks and exporters in the cotton States. For the present, only $6,000,000 worth of stock will be subscribed.

Great enthusiasm and interest were displayed for the plan by bankers from all of the Southern States. Robert F. Maddox, President of the Atlanta National Bank, and a former President of the American Bankers' Association, made a distinct impression when he said:

"The time has passed for oratory and for special appeals to Government agencies. It is time we Southerners take hold and help ourselves."

The plan of the corporation, which will be created under the Edge law, was devised by a special committee headed by Mr. Maddox, and including R. S. Hecht of the Hibernia Trust and Savings Bank, New Orleans; J. Pope Matthews, Palmetto National Bank, Columbia, S. C.; Tom A. Smith, Birmingham Trust and Savings Bank; Moorehead Wright, Little Rock; J. Elwood Cox, Commercial National Bank, High Point, N. C.; J. A. Pondron, Southwest Texas Commercial National Bank, Houston; S. J. High, People's Bank, Tupelo, Miss., and D. M. Armstrong, Commercial Trust and Savings Bank, Memphis.

Cotton for Germany in View.

This committee will take charge of the organization of the corporation which, it is believed, will solve the problem of exporting cotton to Germany, Czechoslovakia and other European nations. At present, although these nations are asking for cotton, it is impossible to allow them sufficiently long-time credit for them to turn the raw cotton into manufactured goods and thus pay their commitments.

While the corporation will deal principally with cotton, as that staple is now in the worst position of any raised in the South, other commodities will be handled. It is believed that the stock will be rapidly subscribed. No efforts will be made to sell stock to farmers.

Pains were taken by the Southern bankers to emphasize that they did not intend through this corporation to be a party to any holding cotton for a higher price. The corporation was alluded to as "a facilitating and not a holding" plan.

Stock in the export corporation will be apportioned among the cotton States on the basis of their cotton production at the rate of $1 a bale, but only 60 cents a bale will be paid in at this time.

The bankers took the position that it was absolutely necessary that something be done to move the cotton crop. Mr. Hecht said that although cotton had slumped from 40 to 20 cents, it was not moving. Declarations were made that while the stock would eventually pay a reasonable profit, the end in view was to conduct the corporation as cheaply as possible, having always in mind that the main thing was to sell the cotton.

"The whole purpose of this corporation is that we are simply trying to find a market for cotton," said one of the speakers.

At the convention this morning the association elected its officers for the year, and heard a number of speeches and reports from committees. John Kendrick Bangs, the humorist, was on the program to speak on "The Incorrigible Optimist." It turned out that Mr. Bangs spoke on the American doughboy in France, as he had seen him. He said that the manhood, courage and performance of this American lad was what had turned the speaker into the "incorrigible optimist."

Bankers' New Officers.

The following officers were elected: President, John S. Drum, President of the Mercantile Trust Company, San Francisco; Vice President, Thomas B. McAdams, Vice President of the Merchants' National Bank, Richmond, Va., and Second Vice President, John H. Puelicher, Vice President of the Marshall and Ilsley Bank, Milwaukee.

Joseph H. De Frees, President of the United States Chamber of Commerce, spoke on "Service Organizations" and dealt largely with their value to the community.

"For many years the organizations of business men were devoted exclusively, and, unfortunately, sometimes selfishly, to a particular business interest," he said. "But a great change has come about in the methods of some of the really influential organizations. It has come to be recognized that many of the problems of a business organization have sympathetic relation to those of the community, and must be dealt with by the organization in the public interest.

"No organization should arbitrarily demand the adoption of its program. In legislative matters the ultimate responsibility is with the legislator. I have found from a considerable experience that he is very keen to receive and give careful consideration to the representations of informed agencies which are based upon study and have the support of an informed constituency.

"Unhappily at times there has been considerable basis for the belief that the threatening and dictatorial attitude of some organizations in legislative matters has had an undue influence. Such attitude however, always meets with the resentment of the legislator, and the number who yield to it is increasingly smaller. It is vicious in principle. It has come to be recognized that such threats have little effect at election time. With proper publicity, more votes will be changed in opposition to the man who yields to threats than will be changed in his favor by his cowardly action."

"Financing and Underwriting Big Business," was the title of an address by Sol Wexler of J. S. Bache & Co., New York. He painted two pictures of Wall Street, as it exists in the popular mind, and as it exists in reality. Of the latter he said:

"The machinery of Wall Street has made it possible for every one from the financial magnate to the humblest bricklayer to participate in the earnings and equities of our large enterprises. It is due to this gigantic partnership of the American public that the rapid development of our industries has been made possible. If the United States is the largest diversified producer, manufacturer and distributer of all commodities, merchandise and materials in the world, the American public has been the largest single factor in bringing such an enviable condition about—and were it not for Wall Street and its many ramifications in making this desirable public participation possible we would undoubtedly be many years behind in the progress of the economic world."

Banker-Farmer Co-operation.

How bankers can assist the farmer was discussed by Joseph Hirsch, Chairman of the Agricultural Commission. He advocated co-operative warehousing and selling organizations.

"Many of us, I know, have been fearful of entering the field of marketing because we have been afraid that in doing this we would come into conflict with our customers, the middlemen, who are buying the farmers' products," he said. "But it is high time for the bankers of the country to realize that a more economical method of distributing our food products is absolutely essential to the success of American agriculture; that unless the farmers can produce and sell their crops with some reasonable assurance of a fair profit there will be an increasing tide of men drifting from the farms into the cities."

The McFadden Gold bill, imposing a 50 per cent. per pennyweight tax on gold jewelry, in order that the gold producers may have a bonus of $10 per fine ounce, up to May, 1925, was rejected by the committee on gold bonus in a report to the convention. The committee said that other industries had suffered, that no national emergency demanded the bill, and that the measure would involve the gold standard. The committee asserted:

"The passage of the McFadden bill, instead of strengthening confidence in the position of the United States, would weaken it. It would be considered as a confession of weakness. The McFadden bill should be opposed by every well-wisher of this country's credit and commercial and financial prosperity."

The report was referred by the convention to the economic policy commission for further consideration. Representative McFadden of Pennsylvania, the author of the bill, and a delegate, said that instead of destroying the gold standard the bill would be taken as an evidence that this country wished to strengthen that basis.

National Bankers Praise Reserve System

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (Associated Press).—Blanket indorsement of the Federal Reserve system coupled with a pledge to aid the National Railway Equipment Corporation, organized to help the carriers obtain equipment, marked the conclusion today of group meetings of the American Bankers' Association Convention.

The Federal Reserve System was given unstinted praise by the national bankers' group in resolutions adopted at their final meeting, while the approval of the equipment corporation and the pledge to go before the State Legislatures were necessary to obtain revision of laws prohibiting investment of trust funds in such securities was voted by the savings banks section. The action was based on the increased values given all railroad securities through creation of the equipment corporation, the resolution said.

Indorsement of the Federal Reserve System, which included approval of its administration, brought the national bankers again in sharp opposition to the stand taken by the State bankers, who yesterday denounced several phases of the Reserve Board's work. Leaders in the two groups of bankers believed tonight the differences between the two sections might come to light when the report of the Resolutions Committee reaches the floor of the convention tomorrow. All resolutions adopted in sectional meetings will be considered by the Association Committee and final action be taken by the convention as a whole.

The national bankers elected officers today, choosing H. H. McKee, President of the National Capital Bank, Washington, D. C., as President; John G. Lonsdale, President of the National Bank of Commerce, St. Louis, Vice President, and Waldo Newcomer, President of the National Exchange Bank of Baltimore, Chairman of the Executive Committee.

Move for Larkin in Commons; Government Won't Interfere

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Colonel Malone demanded in the House of Commons today whether the Government was aware that James Larkin, former head of the Irish Transport Workers' Union, serving a prison term in New York for criminal anarchy, had developed tuberculosis in Dannemora Prison owing to the nature of the work on which he was employed, and was in a critical condition. He asked whether the Government had made representations to the United States with a view to releasing Larkin for treatment.

Cecil Harmsworth, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, replied he was aware that Larkin had been sentenced on the charge of advocating the overthrow of the United States Government, but had no information regarding his condition. The matter was not one, he added, on which Great Britain could make representations.

DANNEMORA, N. Y., Oct. 21.—James Larkin, now serving a term in Clinton Prison here for criminal anarchy, is not ill with tuberculosis and is not even confined to the hospital, it was stated by a prison official here tonight.

Zeppelin Company Discontinues Making Machine Said to Cover 250 Miles an Hour.

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—I learn that the Zeppelin Company has decided, despite the successful trial flight of a new secret giant airplane, not to proceed with the building of any others, as it is believed they would not be a paying proposition. The company has not made any plane to resume passenger and postal traffic by means of Zeppelin airships or to build other Zeppelin airships, by the way, no longer at Staaken, near Berlin, but at Friedrichshafen, on Lake Constance. At Staaken more than one hundred workmen have been just dismissed and little or no work is now being done there.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—The new Zeppelin airplane was said to be the fastest in the world and it was intended to attempt an Atlantic flight during this month.

It is a monoplane built throughout of aluminum and steel, with a span of 90 to 100 feet and capacity for 20 passengers.

A speed of nearly 250 miles an hour was claimed, which would have meant crossing the Atlantic in 12 hours.

WHOLESALE FRAUDS STARTLE GERMANY

PROFITEERS NET HUGE SUMS

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—Financial and administrative scandals are the order of the day in Germany. The police have just arrested two former Government officials of high standing, Boehmer and Haehn, in connection with alleged frauds concerning export and import permits involving many millions of marks.

The Freiheit divulges a case in which a Government official on being relieved of his position took away 300,000 marks in taxes and fees paid to his department as well as the documents connected with the receipt of that sum, and declares that nothing has been done in the matter by the legal authorities.

Recent official inquiries brought to light a large number of cases of fraud connected with export and import permits, including a big swindle in the chemical department and attempted fraud in wood and benzine exports involving nearly 50,000,000 marks, while trade in forged permits seems to thrive exceedingly all over the country.

The vigilance of the authorities watching ports in order to prevent the flight of capital from taxation, it is officially admitted, has not been able to hinder many milliards of marks being smuggled abroad.

A member of the Reichstag in a question to the Government recalls today that nothing has been done in connection with the case in which the German Daimler Company is alleged to have avoided payment of many million marks in taxation.

The Vorwaerts tonight refers to a tricky piece of business by the Good Hope Coal and Iron Company, one of the biggest concerns in Germany. The journal alleges that this company at the end of the war sold to the Government a large quantity of good and bad ammunition for 25,000,000 marks, bought it back a fortnight later for 4,000,000 and subsequently disposed of the material in another form for 35,000,000.

The whole press is concerned with a scandal in the oil and fat distribution department which has squandered no less than 2,000,000,000 marks and the Freiheit attacks the Government for spending the sum of 130,000,000,000 marks to compensate Colonial Germans who suffered during the war.

REPRISALS AND RAIDS THROUGHOUT IRELAND

Soldiers Avenge Death of Two Officers—'Black and Tans' Attacked—Dublin Raided.

CORK, Oct. 21.—Reprisals were carried out today at Newcestown, near Bandon, where military lorries were recently ambushed with the loss of two officers.

Early in the morning the public house conducted by Richard Sullivan was burned, his private residence was visited and the man was dragged from his bed and questioned as to who was in the public house on the night of the ambush. He escaped from his captors, but was wounded in the neck by a bullet.

Another house was set afire after a mother and her daughters had been dragged out of their beds. Hay and straw were piled around the house of Patrick Corcoran, which was burned.

A military party was ambushed this afternoon at Clonakilty, near Newcestown, County Cork. Four soldiers were wounded, two of them seriously.

An armed military detachment raided the offices of The Echo newspaper at Enniscorthy and pied large quantities of type as a protest against "the lies about the military and police."

DUBLIN, Oct. 21.—The authorities continue an active raiding campaign, and today they arrested at a boarding house six men, including Michael Knightly and D. Lysaght, members of the editorial staff of The Irish Independent.

Knightly, who is President of the Irish Journalists' Association, returned to Dublin only on Tuesday after working for a fortnight at the London office of the paper.

The soldiers were in search of another man who was not in the house, but they discovered an old volunteer uniform which they compelled the men arrested to assume in succession, with the object of ascertaining whether it fitted either of them.

Another house raided was that of Mrs. Stopford Green in St. Stephen's Green. Mrs. Green is a well-known Irish writer and married John Richard Green, author of the "Short History of the English People." The raiding party, who, according to Mrs. Green, acted courteously, made no seizures after a thorough examination extending over two hours.

SKIBBEREEN, Oct. 21. — Three "Black and Tan" policemen, returning to barracks, were ambushed today and shot and wounded at Leap, seven miles from Skibbereen. Two of the men are not likely to recover.

BELFAST, Oct. 21. — Disturbances broke out in the Queens Street area yesterday when rival mobs stoned each other. There was much revolver firing. Order was restored by the military with an armored car.

DEPORT E. J. COSTELLO.

British Police Seize Papers of Editor of Federated Press of Chicago.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—E. J. Costello, managing editor of The Federated Press of Chicago, comprising labor, Socialist and farmer newspapers, was served with a deportation order by Scotland Yard officials this morning following a search of his room and the seizure of his correspondence. As Mr. Costello had arranged to sail for America on Oct. 23 he was allowed his freedom until that time.

Mr. Costello has been visiting Germany and the Balkan States, but says he did not attempt to enter Russia. He called at the American Embassy in an effort to have the deportation order revoked. What action, if any, would be taken by the Embassy was not learned.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—E. J. Costello, managing editor of The Federated Press of Chicago, has offices in this city with Robert M. Buck, a former Alderman and editor of the Socialist Labor paper New Majority. Costello has been associated with Louis P. Lochner and labor leaders of radical tendencies in supplying news to papers that are supporting Eugene V. Debs and P. P. Christensen for the Presidency.

It was said at Costello's office today that he had been visiting Germany and the Balkan States as correspondent of The Federated Press.

Greek King's Condition Remains Unchanged; Believed Brother Would Refuse the Throne

ATHENS, Oct. 20.—No change of moment took place during the day, Wednesday, in the condition of King Alexander of Greece, according to the bulletin on his condition issued at 7 o'clock this evening. His general state remained stationary, it was said.

Keen interest in the question of succession to the Greek throne, should King Alexander's illness terminate fatally, is being taken by the people, although nothing reliable relative to the subject is as yet known.

The throne will undoubtedly be offered to Prince Paul, King Alexander's youngest brother, but it is almost a foregone conclusion thta the conditions accompanying the offer will render it unacceptable. In ase of his refusal, it may be offered to some foreign Prince, and if he declines the situation may be solved by the proclamation of a republic.

MANDATORY POWER TO GOVERN ARMENIA

PLANS FIGHT ON TYPHUS

Question of Disarmament to be Laid Before League Assembly for Settlement.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 21.—According to the Independence Belge, A. J. Balfour, representing Great Britain, presented a report on Armenia at yesterday's private session of the Council. The meeting, adds the newspaper, decided to ask the Supreme Council to appoint a mandatory power for Armenia, providing that such power would not have to bear all the expenditure involved in exercising its mandate. Such expenditure, it was pointed out, could be borne by all the countries participating in the control and guarantee of the League of Nations.

The Council also decided, according to the same newspaper, to ask the associated nations for more effective intervention in the international struggle against typhus.

Members of the Council met informally during today and discussed the notice received from the Scandinavian countries that they would raise the question of general disarmament at the Geneva meeting of the League Assembly. It was decided that the question be referred to the military and naval commission of the League with the request that preparations be made for the discussion of the subject by the League Assembly.

The Council this afternoon continued its discussion of the protection of minorities, and also took up several questions in connection with the administration and financing of the League.

It is understood there is no prospect of the Council modifying the results of the plebiscite in Eupen and Malmedy, against which the Germans protested.

ARMENIA REJECTS SOVIET ULTIMATUM

Refuses to Let Bolshevist Troops Through to Join the Turkish Nationalists.

PARIS, Oct. 21.—The Russian Soviet Government has issued an ultimatum to Armenia, according to advices received today by the French Foreign Office from Armenia, demanding permission for the immediate transport of Bolshevist troops through Armenia in order to effect a junction with the Turkish Nationalists in Asia Minor, and Armenia has rejected the ultimatum.

The Bolsheviki also asked the Armenians to repudiate the Treaty of Sèvres with Turkey.

Belief was expressed at the Foreign Office that Armenia's rejection of the ultimatum will result in serious fighting. Armenia has requested aid from the Allies, but up to the present no decision has been taken, it was said.

FRENCH WRITER GIVES WARNING TO BRITAIN

Says Limit Has Been Reached in Concession to Germany Under Lloyd George Policy.

By WALTER DURANTY.

PARIS, Oct. 20.—The terms of the coal settlement which Lloyd George persuaded Premier Millerand to accept at Spa have created an impression in France that Great Britain is willing to sacrifice France's interests to her own, which is that Germany, once Britain's best trade client, should be allowed to recover as quickly as possible.

Says a writer in the Temps:

"We have now reached the point where our national existence is at stake and we can no longer yield to the exigencies of a policy which, doubtless without meaning it, tends to our ruin."

He is referring to the policy of England, and his whole article is a warning to London that France has reached her limit and is determined to obtain satisfaction from Germany. He concludes by saying:

"Today, when the essential interests of our country are at stake, it is for our English friends to act in their turn. May they realize in time the danger to all, to them as well as to us, of disassociating our efforts and leaving France alone, since she cannot do otherwise than insist on getting from Germany justice for the ruin she wrought and to go and take the money there where it abounds, no matter what may be said to the contrary, there in Germany in the hands that hold it."

The French nation, strong and united beyond any other nation in Europe, believes to a man that Germany can pay and is resolved to make her.

In a speech at Strasburg yesterday the Finance Minister, François Marsal, said:

"You may be certain that the Government will abandon nothing of the debt it holds against Germany, which has been solemnly guaranteed by the greatest nations of the world, and Germany will pay it because she can pay it, no matter what may be the internal situation of her budget or the rate of her mark. A financial crisis, however acute, does not annihilate productive forces of a country. Whatever happens, Germany will always have left the considerable wealth of her soil, which the war has not destroyed. She has, especially, coal, timber and potash. Her labor is much less impaired than our own. She can, therefore, work and produce. She can pay the just dues, which do not surpass her capacity for payment."

FINDS LEAGUE WEAK WITHOUT AMERICA

Echo de Paris Says It Is Powerless for Good Now, but France Cannot Disregard It.

CRITICAL MEETING IS NEAR

Fear of Admission of Germany Disturbing—Other Guarantees for France Suggested.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 21.—The League of Nations without America can do little good and may do harm. That is French opinion as set forth today in a semi-official editorial article in the Echo de Paris.

With regard to the League as it now functions under the auspices of the European powers, the writer makes the following statements:

(1) Despite the important agenda on the program of the League Council meeting now being held at Brussels, the League, "by no means plays the important rôle assigned to it by its patron saints and founders."

(2) Whatever the League has accomplished has been no more than might have been done by regular diplomats.

(3) When difficult problems appear "it is all over with the efficacy of the League. Lacking force it is powerless and problems continue to develop before its eyes in perfect freedom as if no one was bothering about them at all."

(4) Though the League as it functions at present is "quite powerless for good," France cannot regard it with indifference.

"There exists the fatal contradiction," the writer continues, "between the principles on which it is based—the opening in the world's history of a new era without relation to the past and theoretic equality of all existing States—and the stipulations of the Versailles treaty which deal with conquered Germany and postulate for an indeterminate period her inferiority and her keeping under observation. There lies the danger for France. When she demands support and help from the Allies, already eager to avoid giving it, they hasten to reply, 'League of Nations.' This excuse is all cut and dried and ready.

(5) The Geneva Assembly in a few weeks will mark the turning point in the League's history if the question of Germany's admission comes up, as seems likely. "If the question is raised," the article says, "it may well be decided against us. To reassure us we are told no one will dare raise it. Is that quite certain?"

(6) While Millerand was at the head of the French Foreign Office he made it a rule to leave the League alone. "Perhaps he showed too much indifference. On the other hand, he was able to pursue his national policy unhampered."

(7) Millerand once called the French representative on the League to order. "When one of our representatives behaved as a citizen of the world rather than as a citizen of France Millerand did not hesitate to call him to order."

(8) Millerand's line of action should be followed and reinforced. "Frenchmen who figure at the head of the League ought to be strictly subordinated to instructions of the National Government."

(9) France ought to seek guarantees for her security outside the League as it is constituted at present.

It may be assumed that the writer of this article gives unofficial expression to the sentiment of the French Government, as it is a matter of common knowledge that he is used as the mouthpiece of the French Foreign Office. This was so notorious during the Peace Conference that protests were addressed to the French by the American and British delegations against statements that appeared in this column. Obviously no such action would have been taken against a journalist expressing his own opinions or even those of his paper. It is, moreover, in accordance with the regular diplomatic custom of Europe that certain newspapers or agencies are used by Governments to make public views it is thought better not to formulate in an official note or communiqué.

PESQUEIRA IN WASHINGTON.

"No Narrowness in Our Program," Says Agent of Mexico.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Roberto V. Pesqueira, who has arrived in Washington as the confidential agent of the Mexican Government and personal representative of President de la Huerta, in an interview this afternoon declared that Mexico had definitely entered "upon an era of peace and quiet, based on liberty and justice." Referring to the visit to Mexico City of George Creel, he said he was with Mr. Creel during the latter's stay in Mexico City and that the mission of Mr. Creel had been of a purely personal nature.

Speaking of the Mexican reconstruction program, Mr. Pesqueira said that Mexico intended to guard her natural resources "against exploitation of the past," but added that there "would be no touch of narrowness in our program."

"Unmistakable indication of growing prosperity in Mexico and the increasing popularity of economy and thrift among its people," Fr. Pesqueira said, "is the experience of our national life insurance companies. During the last six months they have almost doubled the business paid for in any like period of their history. Moreover, hundreds of the foreign companies in all lines of industry that withdrew from Mexico during revolutionary times are making arrangements for resuming business, aside from new ones intending to open up for the first time.

Creel Denies Official Mission.

Denying as "false" all reports that he had gone to Mexico on an official mission for the Government, George Creel last night issued a statement denying that he represented either the President or the State Department, and declaring that he went at his own expense to obtain interviews with President-elect Obregon and other Mexicans for his own use. In his statement, following a similar denial by Secretary of State Colby, Mr. Creel praised Mexico and declared the President was highly revered there.

LEAGUE COURT PLAN EXPLAINED BY ROOT

TALKS TO BAR ASSOCIATION

Another Innovation Permits Delegates of Litigating Nations to Sit in Own Cases.

The greatest innovations on existing legal procedure, which are embodied in the International Court of the League of Nations, as described last night by Elihu Root, are that submission of questions of legal right to the decision of the court are made obligatory on the League members and that representatives of the litigating nations are to sit among the judges and take part in trying the causes of their own nations.

Mr. Root, who returned recently from his labors with international law experts of other nations on the plan for the League Court, explained the plan of the court and the difficulties which it was designed to overcome in an address last night at a meeting of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York. Mr. Root gave much credit to the association for the great step forward which he saw in making obligatory the submission of questions of strict law to the court. He said that the committee, or commission, of experts of which he was a member, had adopted the language of the Bar Association in this article.

Expects Opposition.

If one nation fails to agree with another nation on a question of the interpretation of a treaty, or some matter involving established principles of international law, that nation may bring a lawsuit against its adversary and force it to try the case before the International Court, as Mr. Root explained it. In closing his address, he said he foresaw that this part of the plan would probably arouse greater opposition than any other part of it.

"Now, this is a step in the process of civilization," he said. "All advances shock somebody. The attempt to go ahead too fast, too far, at once, almost always ends in failure. 'Leg over leg, the dog went to Dover.'"

Mr. Root said that the decision in favor of giving the court obligatory jurisdiction over strict questions of law, when the disputants failed to reach an agreement among themselves or failed to agree to arbitrate, had been reached by a unanimous vote of the committee which worked on the plan of the court. Mr. Root pointed out that this committee was merely advisory. He said its function resembled that of a body of engineers who might be called in to plan a bridge.

"The League now has this plan before it," he said. "I don't know what they're going to do with it. They meet next month at Geneva. There may be so much opposition to the obligatory feature that they will strike it out. I don't know. I hope not."

How Judges will be Selected.

The International Court, as described by Mr. Root, consists of eleven members and four alternates sitting at The Hague. The fifteen are to be selected from a list of two judges from each country in the League, the two judges to be named by the present members of The Hague Tribunal. This method of selection was adopted, he said, for the purpose of removing the personnel from which the judges were to be selected as far as possible from politics. The list thus drawn is submitted to the League of Nations. The Council, representing the big nations, and the Assembly, representing the small ones, must jointly agree on the fifteen who are to compose the court.

Mr. Root explained that one of the stumblingblocks in the way of previous efforts at The Hague to form an international court with important powers was the conflicting interests of the big nations and the small ones. The big nations refused to allow judges to be selected by numerical vote, in which they would be outweighed by the small ones. The small ones refused to agree to a plan under which the big nations would have a voice in the selection of judges proportionate to their power and influence, fearing that judges so chosen would be no friends of small nations.

The example followed was the plan in which the big States and little were brought into harmony in the founding of the United States, when the little ones insured their permanent strength by the representation in the Senate and the big ones by their superior representation in the House. The little nations being strong in the Assembly and the big ones in the Council, the fair selection of judges was provided for, according to Mr. Root, by making the appointment of a judge dependent on the favorable vote both of the Assembly and the Council. To insure harmony between them, a liaison organization was provided for, resembling the Conference Committee of the House and Senate, in order to push through an agreement where the House and Assembly stood deadlocked.

Judges to Live at The Hague.

Once elected, the Judges become permanent residents of The Hague. Judges sworn to do their duty as Judges, "let the consequences be what they may."

Mr. Root said that naturally great consideration was paid to the question of the loss of sovereignty involved in a plan which compelled nations belonging to the League of Nations to submit questions of right to be decided by the International Court, whether they wished to submit it or not.

This was answered, he said, by the argument that the submission of any dispute to the decision of a court of arbitrators involved a yielding of sovereignty to that extent. He denied, however, that there was any encroachment on the sovereignty of a nation, holding that the nation possessed the sovereign right to go in or stay out of the League and that the principle of sovereignty was fully protected because the original act was voluntary.

Mr. Root said that almost any lawyer would at first glance say that the parties to a litigation should not be represented on a court trying their case. The committee drafting the plan for the League Court, however, he said, came to a contrary conclusion.

"And the reason is this," he continued. "The greatest obstacle in doing justice as between nations is the failure of nations to understand each other."

Mr. Root said that the laws of this country were American laws, just for Americans, but that a Frenchman was at a great disadvantage when he stood before them in litigation with an American, and vice versa. He said that he and the British representative, being exponents of the common law system, were frequently on one side of a plan, while the other experts, being exponents of the Continental system of law, took a different view—the difference being based on their different conceptions of legal principles.

"So we came to the conclusion," he said, "that some one man at least who understood the habits and reactions of the people who formed a party litigant to that suit should serve on that court."

Follows New York Bar Decision.

Mr. Root emphasized the fact that the planners of the International Court had followed the New York Bar Association in giving jurisdiction to the court over questions even of "honor and vital interest," provided they be judiciable, or, in other words, provided that the dispute concerned questions subject to settlement on principles of law.

The fault found frequently in tribunals for arbitration, according to Mr. Root, was their tendency to consider what was wisest and most expedient for the moment in the interest of all parties. The arbitrators considered themselves, he said, "to be under a diplomatic, rather than under a judicial, obligation."

"The difficulty," he said, "was not that nations were unwilling to submit questions of law and right to impartial judgment, but that they hadn't much faith in getting impartial judges. They found that the arbitrators would go into negotiations as diplomats and no one could tell what would come out of it. The party having a strong case in legal right might be defeated because it might seem best to the arbitrators to settle the case on some other principle.

"The proposed court was designed to differ from the ordinary arbitral tribunal in this respect. It is a court in which Judges would sit and proceed according to law and let the consequences take care of themselves."

13 Saratoga Gamblers Have Been Indicted

SARATOGA SPRINGS, Oct. 21.—Thirteen sealed indictments were handed down today by the extraordinary Grand Jury which has been investigating alleged gambling in Saratoga County. The indictments will remain sealed until arraignment, for which no date has been set.

The Grand Jury, which has been in session since August, previously had returned more than a score of indictments, including one against District Attorney Charles B. Andrus, who since has been renominated on the Republican and Democratic tickets.

COLBY SEES FALL OF BOLSHEVISM NEAR

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Bolshevism in Russia is on its last legs, according to Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State, or, to use the more elegant expression of Mr. Colby, there is every indication of a breakdown.

Mr. Colby made these assertions to newspaper men this afternoon. The peasants generally were abandoning Bolshevist rule and forming local communes independent of the Moscow Soviet Government and of each other, according to advices he had received from Russia.

Just what will succeed Bolshevism is the question giving most concern now. The propensities of the Russians for a local communistic mode of self-government, in Mr. Colby's opinion, will result in the assumption of authority for the maintenance of local law and order by the Zemstvos and other local bodies. From this qualified equilibrium he thinks a scheme will be evolved out of which will come a national governing entity.

AMERICANS IN RUSSIA FEW.

State Department Says They Number About 35, Not 3,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Bolshevist figures on the number of Americans in Russia are "off" by some 3,000, according to the State Department records, which put the correct number at about thirty-five. It is possible, however, that there are 3,000 or more Russians who returned to Russia from America after the revolution and who now claim to be Americans in the hope that this may enable them to escape from the Bolshevist rule.

All the Americans in Russia remained there of their own free will when Ambassador Francis left that country, special trains having been offered to them to facilitate their departure.

It was said at the State Department today that the Soviet Government apparenly was laboring under the impression that the United States was holding Russian hostages, which would be impossible under American laws. Every Russian in prison in this country is there after conviction of a crime.

CHINESE MINISTER SAYS HIS FAREWELL

Dr. Koo Calls on Secretary Colby and Issues a Statement on Good Relations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese Minister to the United States, who will sail Saturday for London to take up his new duties as Chinese Minister to Great Britain, called on Secretary of State Colby today and in a message of farewell to the American people paid tribute to the benevolent interest of the United States in China, and said:

"I cannot leave America without a word as to her part in our great opium problem. This evil for many years has threatened the very fabric of the nation and the friendly interposition of the United States has greatly hastened its solution. The international opium convention, signed at The Hague in 1912, would long ago have been in operation but for the untimely breaking out of the war, and the world, as well as China, would have been rid of a most insidious evil. The recent peace treaties have once more brought the opium question before the world. By the terms of these instruments the execution of the convention is entrusted to the League of Nations. But it is to be hoped that the United States, whether or not a party to the League, will still retain an active interest in that problem.

"I should not leave this subject without expressing my admiration and the profound gratitude of the Chinese people for the late Dr. Hamilton Wright, whose name is indissolubly connected with the efforts of the United States in co-operation with China and Great Britain, to eradicate the opium evil and whose able leadership and labors in behalf of my country have made his name known throughout China and has strengthened the ties which for so long have existed between our countries."

PASSPORT CONGRESS ENDS.

Hope Expressed America Will Join Simplification Movement.

PARIS, Oct. 21.—The International Passport Conference adjourned this evening after adopting unanimously a number of resolutions embodying changes in the present passport system of the chief nations of the world. The changes proposed have been announced from day to day, and the conference finally approved in full its work.

A copy of the resolutions will be forwarded to the United States with the hope that that country will join the general movement for the elimination of "red tape."

The delegates, who represented twenty-eight nations, are of the opinion that the adoption of the improvements and simplifications cannot be accomplished for at least four to six months, but it is believed most of them will be effective by the beginning of the tourist season in 1921.

PRESIDENT NAMES FIVE ON SHIP BOARD

Admiral Benson Reappointed Chairman of New Merchant Marine Body.

TWO STILL TO BE CHOSEN

Both Will Be Republicans, One Representing Pacific Coast and Other Interior.

BENSON SPEAKS IN BOSTON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 (Associated Press).—Five of the seven members of the new Shipping Board created by the Merchant Marine act were appointed today by President Wilson.

Admiral William S. Benson, chief of naval operations during the war, was reappointed Chairman. The other four members named were Frederick I. Thompson, a newspaper publisher of Mobile, Ala.; Gavin McNab, an attorney of San Francisco; Martin J. Gillen, an attorney of Wisconsin, and Theodore Marburg, a publicist of Baltimore.

The appointments were not announced at the White House and it was not known whether the other two members had been selected. The President has had a long list of names before him for some time.

Only one of the five named today is a Republican—Mr. Marburg—and since the law specifies that only four of the members may be named from any one political party, the remaining two appointees must be Republicans. The members of the board are to receive salaries of $12,000 a year, and under the law they must divest themselves of all shipping interests and devote all of their time to their work as shipping commissioners.

Two of the seven members must be named from the Atlantic Coast, two from the Pacific Coast, one from the Gulf Region, one from the Lake region and one from the interior. This leaves one appointee from the Pacific Coast and the one from the interior still to be named.

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—Admiral William S. Benson, in an address before the Boston Chamber of Commerce today, expressed the opinion that the United States Shipping Board, of which he is Chairman, would ultimately be to shipping what the Interstate Commerce Commission is to the railroads. He said the board had had little opportunity to study the real problems connected with commerce, due to the abnormal situation developing from the rapidity with which ships were built.

"I hope that you will all realize that it is absolutely necessary for the success of our merchant marine that the vessels be owned and operated by private parties," he said.

He supported the St. Lawrence River canal project, saying that if necessary this country should issue bonds to finance the enterprise. He said it would relieve the coal situation of New England, as the railroads were already overtaxed in their efforts to haul coal.

"If the St. Lawrence proposition were properly developed," he added, "it would give New England hydro-electric power almost sufficient to relieve the coal situation and would develop commerce from the Middle West."

He urged that American vessels get preference from shippers over those of foreign countries, even though the rates were slightly higher.

"I venture to say," he continued, "that if it were not for the Shipping Board and the ships we are operating you would be paying at least 50 to 100 per cent. more on your freight than you are now paying."

ALLIES TEST SERBIA.

Note Not an Ultimatum, but Will Show Her Intentions.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 21.—In the note which the Council of Ambassadors sent yesterday to the Serbian Government demand was made that the order should be given to the troops in Klagenfort plebiscite area to leave within forty-eight hours. Today, however, it is explained that the note is not in the form of an ultimatum inasmuch as no plans and penalties are indicated if the order is not obeyed.

The object is more to test the good faith of the Serbian Government, which has from the first declared itself willing to evacuate the district if proper measures are taken to protect the lives and interests of its nationals. These measures the Ambassadors' Council considers have been taken, and they foresee no trouble if the Serbian troops withdraw.

On the other hand, they foresee trouble if they remain, and their request to Belgrade is for the purpose of making the position of the Belgrade Government absolutely clear. If the order is given and not obeyed by the officers and troops within the forbidden zone, then the situation will become the parallel of those in Fiume and Vilna, with this difference, that the people of the district have already voted themselves into the Austrian Republic and have the treaty signed by all the allies on their side.

To the question as to what measures will then be taken all the official sources are meanwhile dumb. They are awaiting the event. There seems, however, little doubt that should the Serbian Government disavow the action of the officers and troops, and should they remain in spite of orders some display of force will be made in order to compel them to evacuate the territory they have seized.

Teachers' Council Plan Opposed.

The Teachers' Interests Organization yesterday, at its meeting in Public School 27, resolved not to send any delegates to the election of the Teachers' Council of Nov. 11. This action was taken because the organization does not believe that the council is truly representative of the teachers. A request will be made of the Board of Education to change the way in which delegates are elected to the council.

GREY LAG IS FIRST BY HALF A LENGTH

Sam C. Hildreth's two-year-old Grey Lag is not only paying a return on the investment made in him, but is also proving to be a really good colt. This son of Star Shoot captured the Autumn Days Stakes, a five and a half furlong dash which was the feature at Empire City yesterday, and redeemed himself for his recent defeat by the Xalapa Farm's Mulciber. Grey Lag took the measure of Mulciber by more than half a length after encountering some bad racing luck and scored an impressive victory. Curfew was third among five that went to the post.

The Autumn Days Stakes was a condition affair and though Grey Lag had the top weight of 125 pounds he conceded far less than he would probably have been asked to under handicap conditions. Mulciber had 122 pounds up, a difference of sixteen pounds in favor of the Hildreth colt since their last meeting, and the weight arrangement proved the undoing of Mulciber.

Grey Lag was well backed in spite of the short price of 2 to 5 and there were plenty of cheers when he finally got home in a driving finish with the aid of a good stretch ride by Ensor, who had another good day and rode four winners. The combination of Ensor and Hildreth has been a powerful one so far at the Yonkers course.

East View Takes Early Lead.

Grey Lag had none the best of it in the early running. James Butler's East View broke with a flash of speed and rushed into a lead of about four lengths with Curfew in pursuit, while the favorite and Mulciber were a length or two back of the bunch. Ensor stuck to the rail and was cut off at the far turn, forced to drop back to last and go to the outside, and there were some murmurs in the stands as it appeared that the Hildreth colt might not be able to get through in time.

Ensor, however, was not worrying about East View which was sailing along on what quickly proved to be his last breath. He was watching Mulciber which was but half a length in front of him. Half way around the turn Mulciber moved out and began his dash but Ensor waited until he was headed for home before making a move. Then he gave Grey Lag every opportunity to run and the colt closed with an amazing rush.

East View and Curfew had retired at the head of the stretch and Grey Lag had only Mulciber to contend with. He rushed up, caught the leader at the sixteenth pole and racing him into submission in a few yards was drawing away at the end, though he had been put to a hard drive to get up. Mulciber ran a very creditable race and was much the best of the others, as he finished six lengths in front of Curfew, which took third. East View, which was coupled with Hard Guess, dropped far back and joined his stablemate in bringing up the rear.

Wins First Race on Mavourneen.

Ensor's first mount was on James Murphy's Mavourneen which was sent to the post a prohibitive favorite in the opening dash for two-year-olds over the short six furlong route. Mavourneen has a habit of getting very tired as the finish looms in sight and yesterday was no exception, but she had opened up such a gap in the early running that she managed to last, though she was ridden out to win by a length from Gilt Fringe after she had once had a lead of more than four lengths. Archive took third from the only other starter, Episode.

Showing that he was not entirely partial to favorites, Ensor next brought home a 10 to 1 shot when he won the third race with Elected II. and defeated the well-played choice Edwina, which ran in the colors of Edward Soule. This was a test at a mile for fillies and mares with six starters. Ballet Dancer II. took the place from Edwina by nearly two lengths.

Elected II. sprinted away from the barrier and gained a long lead in the back stretch. Ensor eased her up at the far turn and saved her for the stretch drive so she had something left when the others rushed at her. Ballet Dancer was always second, while Edwina could not improve her position and weakened when urged in the final furlong.

Genie W. provided Ensor's last winning mount in the closing race of the day when she defeated Sweet Music in a driving finish and won by a head, Ensor clearly outriding Kummer in the last sixteenth of a mile. The race was at a mile and Genie W. rushed away from the barrier, raced a head in front of Sweet Music for two furlongs and then drew away.

Sweet Music Is Outgamed.

Sweet Music charged in the stretch, but, getting up to almost even terms with the leader, could not hold the advantage and was outgamed to the finish. Kummer made a strong rush at the head of the stretch, but once he got up to where he had a chance he could not put up as good an effort as did Ensor with a tiring mount. Whisk was third, eight lengths back of the leaders, while Fading Star and Joe Joe were badly outrun.

The largest field of the day went to the post in the second race at six furlongs. This brought out a fine assortment of cheap performers, numbering fifteen in all, and from which Prince of Como was selected as the choice. The favorite never got close enough to the front to give his backers a good view of him, having been slow to get away.

This field was strung out for a sixteenth of a mile going through the back stretch, with Valerie West setting the pace. Valerie discovered at the sixteenth pole that she was out of breath, and she dropped out of sight as though some one had whisked her off the track. That left Liberty Girl a chance to get home in front, with a length to spare over Bon Tromp. Chimera was third.

W. P. Cunningham's Berlin scored another victory in the fifth race, at a mile and seventy yards, when he easily defeated The Wit and American Soldier among others. He took the lead at the turn into the stretch and won by more than a length.

Star Master Purchased From Macomber by Chinn

Star Master, which was one of the best performers in the handicap division last year, was yesterday purchased from A. K. Macomber by Phil Chinn in a private transaction, in which the terms were not divulged. Star Master broke down in a race at Belmont Park this year and has not been in action since. It is doubtful if he will race again this year.

C. C. N. Y. HARRIERS TO RUN.

Will Meet Rutgers Today in First Race of the Season.

The active athletic season of the College of the City of New York will open today when the cross-country team meets the Rutgers harriers at New Brunswick. This will be the first intercollegiate competition that any City College team has engaged in this year.

Al Sands of last year's freshman track squad easily took first place yesterday in the trials for places on the team. He led Cohn, the only veteran of the 1919 team, by about 100 yards at the finish. The other men chosen were Seon, a colored runner of promise; Inselbuch of the 1918 'Varsity, Rosen, Levinson, Parisi, Friedman and Milutinovich. After the trials it was found that Parisi had hurt his foot so badly that he will not accompany the team today. He will, however, be back in time for the Fordham run next Saturday.

George Wollcott, former Columbia long-distance runner and interscholastic half-mile champion, will not run cross-country this season, it was announced yesterday. This decision was the result of an attack of influenza he contracted recently. It is expected that he will be available for the track team in the Spring.

The cross-country schedule was made public yesterday. Lafayette again appears on it, while Rutgers and Fordham have been added for the first time. Negotiations are also under way for a dual run with Columbia over the Van Cortlandt Park course on Nov. 27. The complete schedule follows:

Oct. 22, Rutgers at New Brunswick; Oct. 30, Fordham at C. C. N. Y.; Nov. 6, Lafayette at Easton; Nov. 13, Muhlenberg at C. C. N. Y.; Nov. 20, Intercollegiate championships at New Haven; Nov. 27, Columbia (tentative).

TRIAL FOR TIGER HARRIERS.

Princeton Cross-Country Runners Selected After Test Race.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct 21.—Trials were held for Princeton's 'Varsity cross country team over a six and a half mile course this afternoon. Donald Foresman last year's Captain, was first across the line, with William Rogers, present Captain, twenty yards behind. McCulloch, Penfield, Steers, Curtis and Martin were the next men in and as a result have been selected for the team. Allen Swede, holder of Princeton's two mile record and one of the best cross country runners in the university, did not take part in the trials because of a sore hip muscle, but will compete in the first race.

Princeton's first match will be run against Yale at New Haven on Oct. 30, and the Tigers meet Virginia over the Southerners' course in Nov. 6. The concluding race of the season will be the intercollegiates at New Haven on Nov. 20. Princeton finished second in the championships last Fall and has six of the seven members of that team still on the squad. The Tigers should be a strong contender in all the races this year.

MRS. BLUMENTHAL LEADS.

Gets Low Gross Score of 90 in Century Club's One-Day Golf Tourney.

Mrs. Henry Blumenthal, an entrant from the Fairview Country Club, led the field of metropolitan linkswomen yesterday in their one-day tourney over the links of the Century Country Club. She shot a remarkably low gross of 90, and this was cut to a low net of 86 by reason of her handicap of 4. Mrs. Jack Renwick, formerly Miss Beatrice Lounsbery, was second with 93—2, 91.

This was the last regularly scheduled one-day tourney on the local calendar of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association, but through the energetic activity of the Secretary, Mrs. R. Percy Thompson, a post-season event has been scheduled for Tuesday of next week. This tourney will be held at the Knollwood Country Club.

Other high scores yesterday follow:

	Gross.	Net.	T'l.
Mrs. H. Blumenthal, Fairview	90	4	86
Mrs. Jack Renwick, Bedford	93	2	91

DR. JOE IS AN EASY WINNER AT LAUREL

Defeats J. K. L. Ross's Boniface by Seven Lengths in One-Mile Handicap.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 21.—J. S. Tyree's Dr. Joe scored an easy victory over Commander J. K. L. Ross's Boniface here today in the one mile handicap, which was the feature of the racing at Laurel. He had a big advantage in the weights and won with ridiculous ease, having seven lengths to spare at the end. Wood Violet was third in the small field of four.

Boniface, which was one of the most consistent performers earlier in the year, has not raced up to his old form recently and gave a very poor exhibition today. He followed the pace of Old Dad for a little more than half a mile when Dr. Joe was rushed up and, taking the lead, drew away. Boniface was unable to make the strong finish that had characterized so many of his races, and was tiring fast though he saved second by several lengths.

William Martin's Bridesman won another victory in the fifth race at a mile and an eighth, easily defeating Tantalus and Rubidium. The winner was outrun for half the distance but gamely made up the ground, caught Tantalus tiring in the stretch and took command. Rubidium made a strong bid in the final furlong but could not get up to the leaders.

Y. M. H. A. BOXERS SCORE.

Boxers from the Ninety-second Street Y. M. H. A. won honors in three of the four final bouts in the one-night boxing tournament of the City A. C. last night. In the 118, 133 and 145 pound classes the Ninety-second Street representatives scored decisive victories, the fourth triumph going to R. Jampol of the Bronxdale A. C., who defeated Bud Darcy of the East Side House in four fast rounds.

W. Singer was the first of the Ninety-second Street fighters to score a victory. Boxing in the final of the 118-pound class, Singer won the judges' decision over M. Schwartz of the Clark House A. A. in four rounds. The extra round was ordered when the judges were unable to agree on the winner, and in the overtime period Singer carried the fight successfully to his opponent. In the 133-pound class E. Bostern added a second victory to the Y. M. H. A. string by defeating S. Crystal of the Clark House A. A. The third triumph was that of M. Weiss at the expense of J. Heimola, Finnish-American A. C., in the finale of the 145-pound division. Weiss made short work of his opponent and required only one round to convince the referee that he was Heimola's superior.

The Jampol-Darcy battle was the best of the show. The regulation three rounds ended with the boxers on even terms, but in the middle of the added period Jampol outclassed Darcy by such a wide margin that the referee called off the hostilities. Jampol was former New York State champion at the weight.

The summaries:

FEATURE TROT WON BY PETER MANNING

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 21.—Peter Manning, bay gelding, driven by Stokes, easily won the 2:08 class trot for a purse of $2,500, the feature event of today's Grand Circuit races here. His best time was 2:04¾, and for the last half of the third heat he made 0:59¾.

The 2:07 pace was taken by Captain Mack, brown horse, piloted by Palin, who took the first two heats but lost the third to Jay Brooks, driven by Edman. There were only two starters in the trot open to two-year-olds, and Bogalusa, driven by J. Thomas, easily took the $1,300 purse.

The 2:10 class pace, open to Southern horses, proved one of the most closely contested matches of the season here and was won by George M., owned by William Gallagher of Selma, Ala., and piloted by Edman.

VICTORY FOR WEST SIDE.

Women's Tennis Team Takes Title from N. Y. T. C., 4 Matches to 3.

By the margin of a single match the women's team of the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, won the Metropolitan Club championship for women yesterday afternoon from the New York Tennis Club team. The score of the final round in this newest of local championships was 4 matches to 3. The matches were played on the Forest Hills courts.

Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, women's national champion, was the principal factor in the triumph of the West Siders. She defeated the No. 1 player of the New York team, Miss Marie Wagner, in decisive fashion. Miss Wagner drove steadily and cleverly, as she always does, but her strokes lacked something of the sting that Mrs. Mallory's carried. Mrs. Mallory kept her opponent running from side to side of the court until she finally had her completely out of position, or else forced her into nets or outs. The best the State champion could do was to take four games in the two sets, which went to Mrs. Mallory at 6—1, 6—3.

Mrs. Mallory also swayed the balance in favor of the West Siders in the most important of the doubles matches. Paired with Miss Florence Ballin, she defeated a skillful team of baseline performers in Mrs. E. V. Lynch and Miss Margaret Grove by scores of 8—6, 6—1. In the first set Mrs. Mallory and Miss Ballin had to put forth their utmost efforts to gain the decision. Mrs. Lynch and Miss Grove held their end up astonishingly well in the many long rallies, and both were very steady in their strokes off the ground. They spent their best efforts, however, in holding their rivals even up to 6-all. After that they fell into error-making, and the Forest Hills players took the next two games, and then breezed through the second set at 6—1.

YALE FRESHMEN LEAD.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 21.—Yale freshmen made a sweepstakes win of the Fall games this afternoon, scoring 52 points to 4 for the seniors, 4 for the sophomores and 3 for the juniors.

In general, the time and distances registered were only fair. But in the mile run a freshman from Oak Park, Ill., Donald Douglas, finished first in 4:38 4-5 seconds. Another, John Lock, from Roland Park, Md., led in a blanket finish with Raphael Prince Koenig, 1922, of New York. H. M. Wyckoff, freshman, from Buffalo, took the furlong flat race in 24 3-5 seconds, and won both hurdle races in slow time. Gilbert Chapman of Woodbury, L. I., breezed home first in the 440-yard dash in 52 seconds, while Charles Dewey Hillies, Jr., of New York, broke the worsted in the half-mile run in 2 minutes 8 seconds.

Both the timber races were taken by Wyckoff, making three firsts for the day. He corralled the high hurdle event in 17 and the low in 28 3-5 seconds. No field events were held.

"NO ALIBIS," SAYS COACH.

Lehigh Eleven Is Ready for Game with W. and J. Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Oct. 21.—"We have no cripples and physically the team is in excellent condition and, therefore, we have no alibis relative to the outcome of the game. The players are confident, but not overconfident of victory, as well as all others associated with the team." These were the remarks made by Coach Tom Keady, gridiron mentor at Lehigh University, relative to the Washington and Jefferson tilt when he swung on board the train here this evening en route to Pittsburgh.

The coach gave his charges the final "once over" this afternoon and a long session of practice was followed by a chart talk. There was no scrimmage but a hard workout in all fundamentals. Most attention, however, was centred in the signal drill, the coaches repeatedly working several new formations that were introduced this week.

During this drill two distinct sets of backfield men were employed, the selection being made of those men best suited for certain plays. One combination comprises weight, and is made up of Henzleman, Leo Douglas and Gus Savaria, while the speedy quartet has Captain Herrington, Lingle and Harper in the backfield. For both these combinations Rote directed the plays at quarterback. To guard against injury the latter was excused from all scrimmages this week.

LUSH AGAIN TO COACH.

Navy's Baseball and Basket Ball Mentor Signs for Three Years.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 21.—William L. Lush will continue as coach of baseball and basketball at the Naval Academy, the arrangement covering three years. He will begin with the basketball squad shortly. It had been announced that Lush would not return to the academy, but the differences have been arranged.

PRINCETON EXPECTS VICTORY OVER NAVY

BEATS "OMELETTES," 10-0

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 21.—Although the one slogan at Tigertown this Fall is "Beat Yale," a definite order that is written in huge black letters on placards in the Osborn Club House so that the gridiron warriors cannot miss it three times a day as they come to training table, Princeton feels that there is at least one great obstacle which must be cleared beforehand. This is defeating the Navy on Saturday in the Palmer Stadium when the ban against the midshipmen's leaving Annapolis except for the annual game with the Army will be lifted.

Princeton, thoroughly bolsterous over the remembrance of last year's triumph over Yale at New Haven, the first since Sammy White's ever-famous run brought victory back in 1911, expects to repeat the trick this year when the two meet at Old Nassau on Nov. 13. Every one on the campus expects it and Coach Bill Roper is directing every bit of practice effort in this direction. The Tigers look for a victory this week over the Navy, mostly because of the Navy's unexpectedly weak showing in its early games. They anticipate trouncing West Virginia next week, although this optimism is subject to change and contingent on what the Mountaineers do at New Haven on Saturday. As for the Harvard game on Nov. 6 at Cambridge there is as yet little or no conjecturing.

Coach Roper today made a radical change in his demand for the utmost secrecy surrounding practice and for the first time this year opened the gates of University Field long enough to permit the entrance of a band of New York, Boston and Philadelphia newspaper men and their photographers. And, once inside, he put the team and the management at their disposal, even summoning Keene Fitzpatrick to give a few sidelights on the Princeton situation. Hitherto, the Tigers' practices have been held in the strictest secrecy. Not even the student body has been allowed to swarm over the grand stands this year. Roper has radical ideas of his own about the stimulation of student enthusiasm. He fells that the performances during the games on Saturday will offer enough inducement to the rooters and that no artificial cheer and song rehearsals are necessary.

To Number the Players.

Incidentally Roper made several announcements of unusual significance, the principal one being that, despite what Princeton's rivals do—this was plainly for the benefit of Yale and Harvard—Princeton will number its players this year. Because he strongly believes this a duty of all colleges to the public and to the newspaper writers, he said he would send a telegram tonight to Annapolis asking that the Navy team be numbered for Saturday's game. Unquestionably, Princeton's capitulation to the plan in vogue at the great majority of colleges will be the entering wedge to induce Harvard, Yale, Army and Navy to number its men.

Joseph Murray, well known Princeton alumnus, who is graduate treasurer of athletic affairs, announced that every seat for the Princeton-Yale game had been disposed of although the game is three weeks off. This insures an attendance of between 41,000 and 42,000 and he has drawn up plans for erecting accomodations on the promenade so that an additional 10,000 of standees may see the game.

Coach Roper today had his last hard drill in preparation for the Navy battle, but, on account of the heat which, by the way, has handicapped and cut short his daily practices since the start of the season, the workout was confined to a shorter scrimmage than usual. His daily program is fixed, and is run on a schedule of a time allowance for each phase of practice. At 3 o'clock, Keene Fitzpatrick supervises the work of the punters and field goal kickers, including Lourie, Cleave, Sheerer, Murray, Gorman and Keck. A half hour later, the entire squad takes the field and, for forty-five minutes, the assistant coaches put their specialists through the paces. Curtis McGraw, last year's champion captain, is in charge of the guards and centres, Puffy Bigler takes the tackles, Jack J. Winn directs the ends, Frank Glick supervises the backfield men, and Red Gennert drives the freshman candidates.

The Princeton "Omelettes."

Off at one side of the field is the squad that Princeton is most proud of, next to its big 'Varsity. This is the "omelettes," or the group of ineligibles, who are coached by Nelson Poe of the famous football family which gave six stars to Princeton. For the most part the ineligibles are men who have transferred to Princeton from other colleges, although there are a few who are ineligible because of deficiencies in their studies. Probably no other football squad in the East has such an active, interested band of players who, although they have no possible chance of making the team this year, nevertheless report daily in a praiseworthy effort to do what they can toward helping Roper develop a great eleven. Included are Pixley, last year's star lineman at Ohio State; Griffin from Pennsylvania; Alford, formerly of Annapolis; Hendrian of Pittsburgh, Meistro of Rutgers and Pink Baker, who played last year for Princeton against Yale, but who is ineligible this season.

To an outsider the Tiger 'Varsity does not look overstrong in scrimmage, but for no other reason than that, in facing these "omelettes," instead of a second eleven of scrubs, they are meeting experienced, well-trained opponents. A couple of touchdowns in an afternoon's scrimmage is a satisfactory margin for a 'Varsity victory, and the coaches don't ask more.

Today the 'Varsity won a half hour's scrimmage game by 10 to 0. The first score came after a fumble had given the first string team the ball on the ineligibles' 30-yard line, and, after ten plays, Gorman, the brilliant quarterback of last year's freshmen, found a hole to plow through for the touchdown. Keck, who rarely misses, kicked the goal. A few minutes later Gorman made a fair catch of a punt on the ineligibles' 38-yard line, and Harrison Thompson, taking advantage of the chance for a free kick, booted a drop kick between the uprights. Thompson, who is also the national pentathlon champion, transferred to Princeton two years ago from Occidental College, California.

NAVY WILL LEAVE TODAY.

Midshipmen Hold Final Workout for Tomorrow's Game at Princeton.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 21.—Final practice on the local field for the game against Princeton on Saturday took place at the Naval Academy this afternoon. The squad, under Coach Folwell and Lieut. Commander Wright, will leave for Princeton tomorrow afternoon, and will run through signals on the Princeton Field Saturday morning. The practice was not at a fast clip this afternoon, and there was no scrimmage, as the extreme heat continued and some of the men are showing signs of staleness. The afternoon was largely devoted to defensive work against Lieut. Commander Richardson's Squad B team, which had been schooled in Princeton attacks plays. The Staunton Military Academy eleven will meet the plebes here Saturday afternoon, and during the contest reports will be received from the game at Princeton.

Hockey Team of Women Sails for Tour of England

The first American women's hockey team to go abroad is the Philadelphia Hockey Team, which sailed yesterday on the steamship Caronia for England. Eleven players and four substitutes made up the party. Miss Gertrude Hearne, manager, said that the trip had been planned before the war, but had been postponed. The team will play its first game in Surrey soon after arriving, and will then go to the various country clubs until nine games have been played. The young women will be the guests of the All-England Hockey Association, and the final game of the Philadelphia club will be with an all-English picked team.

BLUE AND WHITE IS DRILLED IN SIGNALS

The Columbia football squad had another quiet afternoon yesterday, the 'Varsity running through the customary signal drill before being sent to the showers. With only an unlimbering drill on the books for this afternoon, the Blue and White will go into the Wesleyan game tomorrow without having had a single scrimmage this week. It is the first week this season that at least one scrimmage has not been staged by Coach O'Neill.

Increased emphasis on the forward pass marked yesterday's long signal workout. All phases of the aerial attack were covered to the almost complete exclusion of other styles of play. Eccles, again playing at quarterback, and Applebaum, who will probably start at fullback tomorrow, did the bulk of the hurling. Only a few simple formations were tried and these were all developed out of the general style of play that the Blue and White has followed all this season.

With the forward pass coming into more and more frequent use on South Field, it is believed that O'Neill tomorrow will uncover a few elementary formations based on the aerial game. Wesleyan's line, which is reported to be giving the Middletown coaches some trouble, will probably tempt the Blue and White to try its usual line-smashing program, but Columbia is apt also to place great reliance on forward passing once mid-field has been passed.

Frank Canapary and Moszczenski, both regular members of the backfield, had their fourth straight day of rest yesterday. Canapary, suffering with charley horse, has not been used a single time this week, and Moszczenski has had little more chance to get into the signal drills. Jack Thornton, whose hand is infected, donned a uniform yesterday for the first time this week, but he was not used. With Canapary and Moszczenski, he followed the 'Varsity up and down the field while the signal drill was going on. Canapary and Moszczenski are likely to start tomorrow, but Thornton will give way to Burtt or Johnstone.

The tackling dummy and charging machine were again brought into play in O'Neill's relentless driving at the fundamentals. The veteran coach is evidently determined that his charges will not get rusty in the basic side of football and he devotes a considerable part of each week to tackling, falling on the ball, charging, bucking and other similar fundamentals. The line, after a session with the bucking contrivance, was sent through a stiff line scrimmage with the second team, the conflict being sharp and hard, with O'Neill watching each performer closely.

Miller, the giant 255-pound guard, was in Walder's place on the left side of the forward line, the latter still favoring his ankle a trifle. The other guard was Hinch, the tackles were Modarelli and Calloway, and the ends were Scovil and Forsythe. The latter two will be the wingmen to start tomorrow, Forsythe having earned the place for the time being because of his greater weight. At centre will be Captain Kienninger, who has recovered his former good condition after his long lay-off. Brodil will be held in reserve and will probably be injected into the game to give the much-needed experience.

CHANGES IN FORDHAM LINE.

The Fordham University football team went through another long drill at Fordham Field yesterday afternoon in preparation for the contest with Georgetown on Saturday. The scrub team spent the early part of the workout practicing the plays which Coach Exedine's eleven is expected to spring against the Maroon. Dumoe then held a long scrimmage in which the 'Varsity tried out the shifts to be used against Gorgetown.

Dumoe has made the long-expected changes in the Maroon line. Banks, who has completely recovered from the injury which had kept him on the sidelines since the beginning of the season, has regained his old position at end in place of Ryan. Alexander has supplanted Farrell at tackle and Miller is back at the pivot position. Steele is not yet back in the regular lineup, but the star Maroon quarterback should be leading the team today.

Although Fordham has obtained a few tie verdicts, the Maroon has not gained a victory over Georgetown in several years and the students of the Bronx institution are out for revenge.

HARD DRILL FOR STEVENS.

Engineers Given Long Workout Before Middlebury Clash.

The Stevens Tech football team indulged in what was probably the last heavy practice before the game with Middlebury tomorrow. The scrub team bore the brunt of a severe scrimmage, being placed on the defensive for the greater part of the session. The first team had the ball most of the time, and let loose their offensive plays which will be used against Middlebury.

Herty, the star quarterback, probably will not play, as the injuries he received in the game with Swarthmore last Saturday have proved more serious than was thought. Benjamin will probably fill his place, as it was he who was piloting the team when the two touchdowns were made in the last game. Brune, who was being drilled for the quarterback position has gone back to tackle. Ferrari, who was defensive centre last year, has loomed up as a wing man this year and appears to have first choice at left end.

N. Y. U. END IS OUT.

Injury to Levin Will Keep Him from Game with Hamilton.

Final practice was held by the New York University football team yesterday afternoon on Ohio Field in preparation for the game tomorrow with the Hamilton College eleven at Clinton, N. Y.

Practically the same team which faced Wesleyan last week will start tomorrow, with the exception of Levin. Gargan has been trying Bacile and Minton in the place left open by Levin, but he has not as yet decided which one shall start. Caddell is still on the hospital list, and while he will leave with the team today, it is doubtful if he will break into the game. Bonfort has been working in his place. The rest of the line will be the same. Adams has had a rest for a week and will be in condition and, with Bacile or Minton, will take care of the wings. Horrigan and Guiney, guards, are both in shape. Brin was slightly hurt at Wesleyan, but he has taken a week's layoff and should be fit.

HARVARD IN GOOD SHAPE FOR CENTRE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 21.—The risk of scrimmage two days before the Centre College game was too much for Coach Robert Fisher of the Harvard eleven, and today's practice, usually one of the most strenuous of the week, consisted mainly of "dummy" scrimmage, in which the second squad employed plays said to resemble formations to be used by Centre.

Although several of the regulars, including Captain Horween, fullback, and Keith Kane, end, have been laid up with minor hurts for part of the week, they will start, according to Trainer Donovan, in excellent condition. The only regular at all doubtful is John Gaston, the leading end of the squad. He suffered a minor ankle strain this week and did not engage in the work this afternoon. The word at the close of practice was that he would play Saturday. Hubbard, tackle, was also out of the lineup today, but his excuse was a class recitation.

Joe Fitzgerald, former Everett High School and Muhlenburg quarter back, will start at that position against Centre, and probably against all the remaining majority opponents of the Crimson. Fitzgerald, who possesses considerably more natural football ability than either of his rivals, has been handicapped by his unfamiliarity with the Harvard quarter-back style, which is almost unique in intercollegiate football. He is now fast acquiring the style, gets more drive out of the eleven than his rivals, and as a result seems to have outdistanced them. Charles Buell, former freshman Captain, because of his kicking, will be a valuable understudy. Jewett Johnson, last season an understudy to Murray and Felton, seems to be out of the race.

Another shift which may take place as a result of the week's work is the replacement of the veteran Dick Humphrey by Winthrop Churchill, formerly of Milton Academy, who is on the Casey order, and with experience promises to be a star. Humphrey's superior kicking ability has kept him in the race with his younger rival, but the coaches are undecided as to the starter Saturday, and Churchill may get the berth.

The Centre College eleven, with a trainload of supporters, is expected to arrive here at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The team will practice at the Stadium. Elaborate plans have been made for the reception of the Southerners. Interest here outstrips that of any October game in previous seasons. About 37,000 persons are expected to view the game. Tickets are almost unobtainable.

CENTRE SPECIAL ON WAY.

Danville Eleven and 300 Rooters Start on Trip to Cambridge.

DANVILLE, Ky., Oct. 21.—The special train carrying the Centre College football eleven which will play Harvard at Cambridge Saturday left here early today. Besides twenty-seven players the train also carried about 300 boosters, including college students and Danville citizens. It is scheduled to arrive at Cambridge tomorrow afternoon.

A crowd numbering several thousand was at the station and gave the team a rousing send-off. The train will stop at Lexington, where many more boosters will get on board.

All Danville is highly excited over the game with Harvard. The players themselves and Coach Charles Moran were confident of winning. Moran, it was said, is of the belief that the game will be close, but expects his stars, especially McMillan, quarterback, Roberts, fullback, and Weaver, centre, to carry Centre to victory.

Harvard, however, is considered by football experts as having the best chance to win, owing to its having several hundred players from which to pick a team, whereas Centre has only about fifty-five.

GREEN OFFENSE IMPROVES.

Dartmouth Backs Also Show Skill in Solving Forward Passes.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 21.—A long scrimmage was the feature of this afternoon's secret practice for Spear's Dartmouth 'Varsity. The regular combination was sent at team B for forty minutes and the coaches announced at the conclusion that they were satisfied with the offensive developed by the Green backfield. Syracuse formations tried by the scrubs were broken up by the 'Varsity forwards, and second team attempts to gain by the forward pass route were smeared by the 'Varsity backs.

Zach Jordan was a mainstay of the Green offense this afternoon, and time and again dashed around the scrub ends for substantial gains. Bower and Holbrook, now Spears's choice to start the Syracuse battle, shared honors in gaining ground for the 'Varsity. Johnny Shelburne went through the scrimmage and plunged for long gains against the heavy scrub line.

George Moore, latest regular to be shifted, starred on defense, and the 190-pound ex-guard showed a world of speed at right end. No definite decision has been made as to the other wing position and End Coach Loudon is rather worried as to his choice.

MEEHAN IS CONFIDENT.

Special to The New York Times.

LEBANON, N. H., Oct. 21.—Coach Chick Meehan's Syracuse football squad arrived here this morning for the big game with Dartmouth at Hanover Saturday. Coach Meehan expressed himself as confident of victory, although he is not underestimating the strength of the Green eleven. Every man of the squad is in prime condition, with the exception of Abbott, star punter, who has several toes that trouble him. Despite this injury, Meehan plans to use him Saturday if necessary.

This afternoon the Orange squad went through a long signal drill on a field near the hotel and showed up well in all departments of the game. No scrimmage was attempted. Forward passing, one of the Orange's big points of attack, occupied a large amount of attention. Meehan expects the overhead game to be a big factor in the offense against the Green.

The showing against Pittsburgh last Saturday, when the Syracuse unters were able to average only 38 yards to a kick, made Meehan devote a lot of time this week to this department, and as a result the punting is expected to be at least on a par with the best efforts of Sonnenberg, the Green's star kicker.

ARMY WILL START SUBS.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 21.—The Army team was driven at top speed again today in further preparation for the Tufts and Notre Dame games, because it is not expected that Tufts will offer very stiff resistance on Saturday. The Soldiers' reserves did most of the work today. They are likely to get the call against the Medford lads unless the visitors show unexpected strength. Breidster, Stewart and Strohecker are still on the hospital list.

The big team got one touchdown today when French drove off tackle for a 15-yard sprint to a score. Meyer continues to please the coaches by his end play in White's place and will probably get into the Tufts game. Goodman was again used at guard on the 'Varsity. French booted some pretty field goals in the kicking drill today.

CORNELL IS READY FOR COLGATE GAME

Dobie's Red Eleven Reaches Climax of Preparation for Big Midseason Test.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Cornell's preparation for the Colgate game reached its climax this afternoon in a three-hour drill. Half of the drill was devoted to tackling and blocking, with some attention to punting by Carey, Mayer, Hoff and Kaw, and the other half to a sharp scrimmage, with the 'Varsity on the offensive most of the time. The Ithacans have improved this week, and their followers look for them to put up the best game of the year against Colgate Saturday.

This game, Coach Dobie realizes, and he has taken pains to impress his squad with his opinion, will show what Cornell really has. The scores rolled up against St. Bonaventure and Union were so topheavy that what looked like a powerful Cornell offensive may, in fact, have been nothing more than excessive weakness on the part of the opposing teams.

Today's exhibition of offensive power by the 'Varsity was encouraging. Mayer and Kaw made many yards in the running game, and the forward pass attack, with Carey, Mayer, Kaw, Jewett, Gouinlock and Munns all participating, was effective. The Ithacans have developed their aerial attack considerably in the last week, and there is every evidence that Dobie means to have Carey call for plenty of open football against Colgate.

Colgate is due at Freeville, fifteen miles from here, tomorrow. The team will spend the night there and not come to Ithaca until a few hours before the game.

Up-State Eleven Has Last Workout Before Cornell Game.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Oct. 21.—The last hard practice session of the Colgate football squad before the clash with Cornell at Ithaca Saturday, was held on Whitnall Field this afternoon. Tomorrow's practice will be of the light order, and will, in all probability, consist solely of signal work.

The workout this afternoon comprised drills in falling on the ball, tackling the dummy for the scrubs and bringing down live runners for the first string men, breaking through the line and forward passing. The entire squad was given exercise in kicking and catching punts. After the other preliminary drills had been finished the daily scrimmage session was undertaken.

The coaching staff was again reluctant to express any views on the chances of the eleven against Cornell. They are skeptical, however, whether the green and inexperienced Colgate eleven of this year can repeat at Ithaca the performance of Colgate's machine of last fall, and they see in Coach Dobie's aggregation an eleven that may take the measure of Colgate as Brown did last Saturday.

YALE SCRUB ELEVEN WINS.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 21.—Dan Kelly, Yale's third string quarterback, was the chief performer in today's defeat of the 'Varsity eleven. As field general of the second team he reeled off two touchdowns, and besides made two long runs, putting the ball in such position that Bob Lay could register a third touchdown by a long forward pass to Johnny Peterson.

Kelly came to Yale from Worcester Academy and captained the freshmen last year until he broke his leg. He is regarded as standing a first class chance of landing the quarterback position on the 'Varsity in the final games of the year, as Kempton has been moved to halfback and the coaches prefer holding Thorne Murphy for reserve emergency duty because of his inclination to easy injury.

The second team defeated the regulars by three touchdowns to one. The dashing quarterback play of Eddie Jones, who ran the regulars, gave them their solitary touchdown. Murphy began at practice at quarterback, but retired in 5 minutes after play began, because of the heat. He missed an easy field goal from the 20 yard line before he left the play. Jones is a former University School, Cleveland, player and has had freshman experience.

Several of the 'Varsity regulars had a vacation, including Mackay, Shevlin, Cordan, Kempton and Dickens. The mercury stood at 80.

The coaches closely watched the play of Dutton at right end today after he displaced Dilworth. He is a six-foot junior and weighs 170. He has had two years on the scrubs and may get a chance against West Virginia Saturday. Frequent changes were made on the 'Varsity and the coaches tried out plays which will be used against the mountaineers rather than trying to score against the seconds.

EXPECTS CLOSE GAME.

West Virginia Coach Believes Team Can Give Yale Hard Test.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 21.—Coach McIntire of the West Virginia football team expressed himself as well satisfied with the condition of his men for the game with Yale Saturday, although he repeated his statement that he regards this year's West Virginia eleven as below the standard set by the 1919 Mountaineer outfit, and as practically inexperienced as compared to that fine eleven. Nevertheless, McIntire does not conceal the fact that he believes he has a good bunch of men and who will be able to give Yale a close and interesting game. He does not believe that the fighting spirit of the Mountaineers can be overcome to the extent that Yale will be able to make a runaway match of it.

All the leading players are fit for the fray. Beck, the elusive halfback, who will largely be depended upon for West Virginia's gains, has suffered no serious injuries this season, and he is just now reaching his top form. Mountaineer supporters expect a great deal from this blonde-haired wouth. Martin is another player who, it is expected, will be a big factor in the Yale game. Harrich, Johnson, Kay and Setron will give steadiness to the line, and will, it is hoped, prevent consistent gains by Yale by means of straight football. Who will assist Captain Lentz in backing up the line is not yet known. In all probability Emsweiler will start the Yale conflict at centre. He is more experienced than Fuccy, his alternate, although the latter has been displaying a great deal of fight in his recent work.

VERMONTERS ON WAY.

MIDDLEBURY, Vt., Oct. 21.—The Middlebury College football squad, twenty-five strong, under Coaches Morey and Brown, left this morning for the trip to Hoboken, N. J., where it will play the Stevens Institute of Technology team tomorrow afternoon. It is expected that Golnick and Keppler, who have been out of the last two games on account of injuries, will be in their regular places tomorrow.

143 MORE BOXING LICENSES ISSUED

SWAMPED WITH BUSINESS

Officials to Continue Weekly Meetings Until Voluminous Work Has Been Cleaned Up.

The task of issuing licenses for boxing activities under the provisions of the Walker law was resumed yesterday at a meeting of the License Committee and the Boxing Commission. Chairman Larry Maguire and his confreres on the License Committee, in a session which lasted for several hours, signed and issued a total of 143 licenses for clubs and individuals connected with the sport throughout the State.

Though this huge batch of permits indicates steady progress toward getting the sport firmly established in the different parts of the State, Chairman Maguire's committee still is confronted with a voluminous accumulation of applications which have yet to receive official action. The policy of holding weekly meetings on Thursday will be retained until the work is entirely disposed of. In connection with these weekly sessions the officials emphasize that applicants must have their requests for licenses and accompanying essential information in the hands of the committee by Tuesday of each week in order to receive action at the current meeting.

Three clubs received permits to conduct bouts at yesterday's meeting. They were the Brighton Boxing Club, Inc., of West New Brighton, Staten Island; the Dutchess A. C., Inc., of Poughkeepsie, and the Syracuse Arena A. C., Syracuse.

Individual licenses were distributed as follows: boxers, 76; managers, 25; referees, 2; judges, 5; timekeepers, 2; seconds, 25; trainers, 4, and one physician.

Those boxers who are scheduled to perform at Madison Square Garden this evening, who had not previously received licenses, were included in the list granted permits to ply their trade in the Empire State. Paul Doyle, Jack Perry and Lou Bogash were included. Billy Levine, Dave Rosenberg, former amateur boxers, and Allie Nack, who has recently returned from the Coast, also received licenses.

Tom O'Rourke, manager of Fred Fulton and Kewpie Callender, was licensed as a manager. Referees licensed were Thomas Dunlea and Harry Fisher, and among the five judges licensed were Patrick Donnelly and Charles Williamson, of the local district.

The complete list of licenses issued follows:

Title Contenders Among Those in Four Garden Bouts Tonight.

A program of forty rounds of boxing will be furnished this evening at Madison Square Garden. Welterweights, among them several contenders for the title now in Jack Britton's possession, will compete in a quartet of ten-round bouts to a decision. Promoter Tex Rickard reports a heavy advance sale and expects a large crowd to witness the contests.

Jack Perry, Pittsburgh boxer, and Paul Doyle of the east side will be rivals in one of the bouts. Another will bring together Lou Bogash of Bridgeport and Marty Cross, east side welterweight. Georgie Ward of Elizabeth and K. O. Willie Loughlin, a Philadelphia aspirant to Britton's title, will clash in the third encounter, and the fourth of the series will bring together Steve Latzo of Hazleton, Pa., and Johnny Summers. The boxers have agreed to weigh in at 147 pounds at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

HOPPE SHOWS MASTERY.

Willie Hoppe regained his mastery of the ivories at the Fourteenth Street Billiard Academy yesterday afternoon and last night in the continuation of his exhibition matches against Charley Peterson. The balkline champion won in the afternoon by a score of 250 to 64 and defeated Peterson in the evening session, 250 to 39.

Hoppe ran out the game in three innings in the afternoon, averaging 83 1-3, and making a high run of 163. He started the match with a run of 86, missed a comparatively easy draw shot and came back with a single point in his second inning. Then he finished the game in his third turn at the table. In the evening Hoppe averaged an even 50. It took him five innings to win. His best run was 130, made in the second inning. His first inning was productive of 7 points, he scored 36 in the third, 17 in the fourth and 16 in the last.

During his big run Hoppe showed to advantage in making his masterfully delicate draws and a series of massés. Time and again when the balls lined up on him he extricated himself by making extremely difficult masse shots. Peterson, on the other hand, did his best work while giving his exhibition of fancy shots.

Hughey Jennings May Coach Baseball Team at Cornell

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Hughey Jennings, former Manager of the Detroit American League Baseball Club, may be chosen as Cornell University baseball coach at a meeting of the Alumni Baseball Association here Saturday to select a coach for next season. Jennings, it was announced here today, is expected to attend the meeting. The former Detroit manager is an Alumnus of Cornell and coached the university baseball team in 1904.

He Defeats Hamilton by 5 and 4 in Final Match on Links at Garden City.

The name of H. C. Richard was yesterday added to the honor roll of New York Athletic Club members who have won the club's golf championship in annual tournaments for the title. Richard, who displayed a brilliant game on Wednesday in passing through the elimination stages, yesterday defeated Lou A. Hamilton by 5 and 4 in the final match, played over the course of the Garden City Country Club. Richard, who plays most of his golf on the difficult Engineers' links, was plainly in a class by himself.

In the morning he did what was expected of him, but altogether too easily. He passed through the semi-finals, not by reason of victory, however, but because his opponent, Robert Collier of Dunwoodie, defaulted the match. While Richard was loafing on the clubhouse veranda, Hamilton was providing the first excitement of the day in dethroning last year's champion, Pierre Proal of Deal, the final result being 3 up and 2 holes to play. Hamilton's golf was perhaps the best of the tourney, and he had an approximated medal round of 75. He won four of the first five holes and played the first seven strictly in even par figures. Although only 1 up at the turn, Hamilton widened his advantage to 4 up at the thirteenth. On this thirteenth, a hole 221 yards long, his tee shot actually hit the pin, the ball dropping within a couple of feet of the cup, and his birdie 2 came without half trying.

The final match furnished its share of interest, but had nothing uncommonly brilliant in the way of record-breaking shooting. Both started poorly, halving the first hole in sixes against a par of four. Richard was in a trap on this hole as well as on the second, which he lost, but Hamilton used up three putts on the first. Richard squared the match by winning the third and then started to pile up his lead on the fifth when he sank a 35-foot putt for a birdie 2. He then won four more holes to make it five in a row, turning for home 4 up. Hamilton took the eleventh with a par 3, Richard's needing four strokes, but the Engineers' player became dormie five when he won the thirteenth, 4 to 5. They halved the fourteenth, ending the match.

The cards:

Out—
Richard	6	5	5	4	2	5	3	4	5	39
Hamilton	6	4	6	4	3	6	5	5	6	45
In—
Richard	5	4	5	4	6
Hamilton	5	3	5	5	6

C. H. Larson of Dunwoodie was the winner of the second sixteen, defeating A. P. Roth of Manhattan, 2 and 1. The third flight was won by R. Hickox of Bedford, who defeated E. G. Wylie of Great Neck, 2 and 1.

The results:

INGRAHAM FORCES MATCH.

Cue Expert Compels Greenleaf to Extend Himself to Win.

Ralph Greenleaf had a couple of real battles on his hands when he continued his 1,000 point exhibition match against Everett Ingraham at the Strand Billiard Academy yesterday. Ingraham, who claims the championship of New England, seemed to have recovered from his stage fright, and he went after the world's champion pocket billiard player in approved fashion. Greenleaf managed to win both the matinee and evening performances, but in both instances he was compelled to play all the pocket billiards he knows. His score in the afternoon was 125 to 113, and at night 125 to 68. In the afternoon Greenleaf had high runs of 29, 16 and 14, and his opponent knocked off 38 balls without missing and also had runs of 18 and 12.

The afternoon match was productive of the best pocket billiards. Greenleaf started off as if he meant to make a walk-away match of it. He soon was leading by a score of 116 to 76. It was then that Ingraham pocketed thirty-eight balls. He lost position for his thirty-ninth shot and played safe. Greenleaf followed by playing safe, and Ingraham retaliated. When the champion stepped to the table he found an extremely difficult and dangerous combination confronting him. To attempt it and miss meant almost certain defeat. However, he tried it and made the ball. Then he ran out.

The total score for the two days' play is: Greenleaf, 500; Ingraham, 229. They will continue playing this afternoon and tonight.

LETZTER WINS FAST GAME.

Defeats Cohen, 35 to 28, in Amateur Three-Cushion Billiard Play.

Mannie Letzter, one of the scratch men in the amateur handicap three-cushion billiard tournament at Joe Thum's Academy, had to hustle like a regular commuter to win his match against M. Cohen last night. He finally succeeded in winning by a score of 35 to 28, but it wasn't until after Cohen had given him a real battle. Cohen was benefited by a handicap of six points, and this allowance enabled him to step away from the barrier at a brisk pace.

It was another fast game, only fifty-nine innings being consumed until Letzter had collected his thirty-five points. That's an average of better than one-half, and any time amateurs average better than a half at three cushions they are playing real caroms. Letzter's high run was four, but in addition he made three runs of three each and registered five clusters of two each. Cohen's best run was a collection of three.

Cohen stepped off in front as if he meant to lead Letzter a merry chase. At the end of the thirteenth inning, however, Letzter caught Cohen, the score then being tied at 13 points each. Letzter was playing excellently. Never has an amateur shown more impressive form than did the scratch man during the early innings. He made an average of one for the first nineteen innings. At the expiration of the nineteenth round the score stood 19 to 16 in favor of Letzer. In the circumstances Cohen did remarkably well to keep within striking distance of his opponent. It was this feature of Cohen's play that made him loom up as a dangerous contender all the way.

PLATT WINS MEDAL BY STERLING GOLF

Leads Field in Qualifying Round at Atlantic City with Great Card of 74.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 21.—J. Wood Platt, North Hills, won the gold medal in the qualifying round of the annual Fall golf tournament of the Country Club of Atlantic City today on the links at Northfield. Playing excellent golf, the young star turned in a card of 74 to top a classy field of 100 entries. His performance breaks the record for the reconstructed course by two strokes.

Platt's total was four strokes better than the score of W. E. Donohue of New York, who finished second with a 78. Platt was out in 38, considered a splendid achievement, but it was on the outside nine that he shot the golf which enabled him to distance a field that included players from Scotland, Canada, California, Chicago and other distant points. The par for these nine holes is 26, but it's a hard par, and the North Hills youth's play in achieving theoretically perfect figures was remarkable.

Out	5	3	5	3	5	4	4	3	6	38
In	3	5	2	5	4	3	5	5	4	36	74

Tom Armour, the Scotch holder of the French amateur championship, who last week won the Shawnee tournament, got away to a late start owing to the fact that his clubs were lost en route to the club. This unsteadied him and his card showed 41 out and 40 in, and put him a tie for fourth place.

A bit of hard luck prevented the New York youth from cutting one or two strokes off his total. On the fifteenth tee the youngster looked ahead and remarked to the man he was playing with, "Do you see that direction flag. I have an idea that I am going to hit that." There was one chance in a million that this thing would come to pass, but that one chance became a reality. His ball, a low hard carry, struck the post squarely and bounded back, with the result that he lost sufficient distance to cost him three in getting home, instead of the regulation two.

Maurice Risley, who knows no more about the shore course than the Divine Sarah knows about acting, came in with an 80, 39 on the inside nine and 41 coming in.

First Sixteen—J. Wood Platt, North Hills, 38, 36—74; W. E. Donohue, Shackmaxon, 39, 39—78; Maurice Risley, Atlantic City, 39, 41—80; T. D. Armour, Scotland, 41, 40—81; Marcus Grier, Grand Mere, 38, 43—81; P. B. Jennings, Cedar Brook, 40, 42—82; C. L. Maxwell, Trenton, 41, 42—83; Ed Satterthwaite, Bala, 40, 43—83; C. J. Dunphy, Woodland Club, 40, 43—83; Horace Smedley, Merion, 41, 42—83; J. J. Young, Frankford, 43, 41—84; J. J. Beadle, Llanerch, 42, 42—84; T. B. Wootton, Atlantic City, 42, 42—84; G. B. Adams, Ekwanok, 41, 44—85; C. Phillips, Atlantic City, 41, 45—86; Eddie Stiles, North Hills, 39, 47—86.

Pairing for first round of match play tomorrow: Maxwell vs. Armour, Young vs. Adams, Donohue vs. Jennings, Risley vs. Satterthwaite, Dunphy vs. Beadle, Grier vs. Phillips, Wootton vs. Stiles, Platt vs. Smedley.

Dunn Explains His Attitude On the National Commission

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—James C. Dunn, President of the Cleveland American League championship baseball club, in response to an inquiry as to what course he intended to pursue regarding the reorganization of the National Commission, said tonight that he was going to do just what the rest of the American League club owners were going to do.

"That's my attitude," he summarized. "I am going to attend the annual meeting of the American League when it is legally and constitutionally called, and am going to consider ways and means to maintain the honesty and integrity of baseball in collaboration with men against whom and against whose clubs there has not been a breath of suspicion."

HEYDLER CONFIDENT OF BASEBALL PEACE

Twelve-Club League Practicable and Will Force A. L. to Act, He Says.

President John A. Heydler of the National League, on his return to this city yesterday from Chicago, where he attended the meeting of major league club owners, expressed the hope that the five American League club owners, now opposed to the reorganization plan, would soon join with the majority to bring about needed changes.

"It is a bit premature to discuss the details of a twelve-club league at this time," said Mr. Heydler, "but we are all satisfied that such a circuit would be working smoothly in a year or two. However, we still are hopeful that the present system of two eight-club leagues will continue. We feel that changes are necessary and that an enlarged circuit is one way to bring them about if the club owners now opposing the plan continue to maintain this attitude.

"We favor the twelve-club plan, instead of two new circuits of eight clubs each, in order that we may not be encumbered with some minor league cities in the event that a restoration of present major league conditions should be brought about at some future time. There can be no return, however, to a National Commission arrangement such as has prevailed in the past."

McANDLESS IN GOOD FORM.

Former Amateur Balkline Champion Finds Cranfield Easy.

David McAndless, the former amateur balkline billiard champion, last night showed the best form he has displayed since turning professional in an exhibition match at Cranfield's Academy. Playing against Austin Cranfield, McAndless won by a score of 250 to 2, running out the game in four innings for an average of 62½.

SERVATIUS WINNER IN BILLIARD TILT

The first match in the final round of the Class C 18.2 balkline tournament for the interborough championship of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players was played at the Rational Recreation Academy in Brooklyn last night. Louis A. Servatius and Joseph Johann, the two players who qualified for the finals from Section 1, clashed and attracted the largest gallery that has yet attended any of the matches. A real cue battle was anticipated, but the fans were doomed to disappointment, for Johann failed to show anything like the form that had carried him through the preliminary round, while the veteran Servatius was steady at all times and scored a decisive victory, 150 to 83.

The winner did not make any sensational high runs, but he put together a cluster of 21 in his best inning and also had three runs of 18 each. He finished the game in twenty-nine innings, giving him an average of 5 5-29. His opponent made one run of 14 and two of 13 and his average was 2 27-28.

Johann was a big disappointment. He had played such consistently good billiards in his preliminary round matches that he had gained a number of followers who confidently expected him to emerge from the finals with the new title dangling from his cue tip. Last night's defeat does not eliminate him, because it is a round robin affair in which each of the four finalists meets the other, but it makes things look pretty bad for him so far as the first prize is concerned.

WHITEHILL WINS AGAIN.

Defeats Larrihty, 25 to 23, in Miss-and-Out Billiard Tourney.

The second round in the annual amateur handicap three-cushion billiard tournament was completed at John Doyle's Academy yesterday with the playing of two matches. In the afternoon, Clarence Whitehill, with a handicap of nine, defeated George Larrihty, favored with an allowance of five, by a score of 25 to 23. In the evening, Steve Cortelyou, who receives nine, won from John Anderson, handicapped at four, by 25 to 16. Eight players remain in the miss-and-out event. They will compete in the third round which begins today. They are Steve Cortelyou, Clarence Whitehill, William Adams, Edward Dale, Benjamin Snow, George Barton, Robert Garcia and Arthur Levi.

In the current jamboree on the green cloth, Whitehill is proving that, with his handicap of nine, he will be an extremely hard man to beat. Anderson might have done a great deal better against Cortelyou had he not played so many wrong shots. He made so many mistakes that some of the spectators were inclined to place him in the same class with the original John Anderson, the first man to steal second with the bases full.

Portway Wins Twice with Cue.

William Portway last night won two matches in the novice straight rail billiard tournament at the Broadway Academy for the metropolitan championship of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players. He first defeated R. von Dorin, 100 to 82 in fifty-two innings, and immediately won from J. B. Sunye, 100 to 93, in fifty innings. Both games were replete with open billiards and plenty of safety. The players steadfastly refused to take chances. The double victory gives Portway three wins in as many starts in the tournament.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday ......8 per cent. for the best names
Wednesday ....8 per cent. for the best names
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Gray Goods Sales Dragging.

Gray goods sales are still dragging in this market, partly due to the slump in cotton and partly to the general apathy on the part of buyers. Yesterday's trading was confined for the most part to small lots wanted for immediate or nearby deliveries, although a few contract goods were sold. Ten cents was paid for quick shipments of 38½-inch 64-60s, with 11 and 13 cents, respectively, received for 39-inch 68-72s and 72-76s. Some additional business was done in 5.50-yard sheetings at 8 cents.

Scarfs for Fall and Winter.

There is a big demand for wool scarfs for Fall and Winter use. The large straight scarfs are 24 by 72 inches, in camel's hair and zephyrs, the colors being brown, buff, black and navy blue. The Winter scarfs are heavier than those for Fall and run more to solid colors. One of the scarfs which is particularly smart has a border only on one edge, this being in white in a conspicuous conventional design. Both Fall and Winter scarfs come with pockets and belts, or with pockets alone, leather belts being worn.

Retailers Short of White Goods.

Due to limited stocks that have further been depleted—in the sense that they have not been replenished—by cancellations and returns, the retail trade of the country is said to be in an unusual condition in regard to cotton white goods. As a result there is considerable speculation among the jobbers and converters as to how the retailers expect to put on their annual January white sales. It was said yesterday that some of the larger stores are already trying to rebuy canceled and returned goods for December delivery at the new and lower prices, and it was further said that the wholesalers are not keen at the moment to trade on that basis. The chief reason for this is the probability of goods being canceled a second time in the event of a further price reduction previous to the time of delivery.

Silk Sweaters for Spring.

Nothing smarter has been seen than women's silk sweaters which the manufacturers have ready for the Spring trade. These are lightly woven and are almost transparent when on. They are of a Tuxedo cut, with revers that can be turned back, with a narrow belt and pockets and with fringe almost a quarter of a yard in depth around the lower edge. The garment is a long one, falling to the knee. One of these in a dark, solid color is very good looking. In quite different fashion is a natty little wool sweater that is exceptionally short, Tuxedo cut, with revers that can be turned back or with the garment buttoned close.

Underwear Buyers Move Slowly.

Despite the fact that at least one of the leading lines of men's balbriggan underwear has been opened for Spring at a price that is considered in the trade to be "rock bottom," it is understood that there has been no rush on the part of jobbing buyers to lay down orders. Two reasons are held accountable for this, neither of which has to do with price. One is that not many jobbers or their representatives are in this market at the present time, and the other is that not enough lines have been opened to bring them here yet. It is expected, however, that the coming week will see both these conditions remedied, and that it will then be possible to tell exactly where the trade stands in regard to the new season.

When the Rebate Will Be Paid.

A novel reply to a request by a retailer for a rebate on some goods purchased last June at prices higher than those which now prevail on the same goods, was made yesterday by a local wholesaler. When the request was made of the latter he replied that he was willing to give the rebate, and issued orders to a clerk to have the necessary credit determined and a check for the amount made out. The retailer, visibly pleased, asked how long before he would get the check. To which the wholesaler replied: "Just as soon as I read in the newspapers that you are giving rebates to your customers on goods they bought last June."

Raw Silk Markets Are Dull.

The local market for raw silk continues quiet, and little change in the situation is now expected until after election. At Yokohama a similar condition prevails as to demand, with prices sustained on the "pegging" basis recently established with the aid of the Japanese Government. Reports have come from that market that prices of the higher-grade silks would also be "pegged," but as yet there has been no confirmation of them. Mail advices received by H. L. Gwalter & Co. of this city from Japan say that the quantity of silk available there for export this season will not exceed 200,000 bales, due to the poor Autumn crop. The Canton market is active for European account, but American buying is very limited in spite of the drop in exchange. Shanghai is quiet, and the same is reported true of Italian silks at Milan.

A New Style Ribbon.

What is said to be the first hand-dyed ribbon in this country is just out, is in wonderfully brilliant colors, light and dark and in all combinations, and is best described by its name "Clouds o' Glory." The colors are apparently put in haphazard, no two pieces being alike. It comes now in two widths, 5½ and 7½ inches, and retails for something less than $5 a yard. There will be widths somewhat narrower. The ribbon has just had time to reach the retailers, some of whom have thought well enough of it to give it a special window display. It is an exceptionally notable and beautiful ribbon, in weave a soft faille, a satin finish being sometimes used.

Weather Hurts Heavier Garments.

The unseasonably warm weather that has prevailed through the greater part of this month has not helped the sale of Fall garments for women by any means. Dresses seem to have profited from it to some extent, but the consumer call for coats and suits has not been normal for this time of the year. This fact is reflected very largely in the cancellations and returns that have been received in this market of late. That it is the weather which is to blame, rather than a consumer revolt against current prices, was said yesterday to be proved by the active business done at retail in the goods in question on the few really chilly days which came earlier in the month. It appears to be an open question, however, if even cooler weather can now produce a good season for the trade as a whole.

Will Be More Careful Now.

One effect of the flood of cancellations which is now being received by manufacturers and wholesalers in all lines of business, particularly in dry goods, will be to make selling houses cautious hereafter in booking orders for future deliveries. Many of the present cancellations, it was said yesterday, are legal if the exact letter of the orders concerned is observed, and it is for this reason that more of them are not developing into cases for adjudication by the courts. In view of the conditions responsible for the claims on which many of them are hinged, however, the current cancellations are decidedly unethical.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

British Labor Troubles and South American Tension Depresses Stocks.

The markets were influenced yesterday by unsettling events abroad which have a direct bearing upon American exports. The move of transport workers' unions in England to force the Government's hand in the wage controversy with coal miners was immediately availed of by professional traders in stocks to bring about reactions running from large fractions to more than a point. The threat of the British railway men to help the miners had been hinted at from the start of the mine strike, but the selection of a definite day to cease work clinched the bearish import of earlier conjectures. Stocks fell back after the morning had brought some sizable advances. Sterling also belied an early appearance of firmness by declining sharply in the late transactions, the demand quotation retracing its course from $3.45¾ to $3.42¼ for a net recession of 2¼ cents. Wheat future quotations fell 5 cents a bushel at Chicago and cotton pursued its decline with reactions of 35 to 45 points. The connection between a possible widening of British labor difficulties and the marketing of our cotton and grain is sufficiently obvious to explain why prices should recede under speculative urgings. Silver recovered, with a gain of no less than 3¼ cents per ounce.

The question may be raised, in the light of the day's news, however, whether what may be temporarily adverse conditions in England were more influential in the markets than information from South American countries. The persistent decline of Argentine and Brazilian exchange of late, until the present depreciation of about 22 and 25 per cent. in terms of the American dollar, was recorded, tells its own story of an unbalanced trade position. But it remained for dispatches, which were received yesterday, to describe conditions so unfavorable that Argentine merchants were seeking to co-operate in limiting imports from the United States to the barest necessities. Supplementing this information, as evidence of the slow movement of goods and of a slackening of sales in export channels, was news that bankers of Colombia were considering the advisability of a moratorium. As far as Brazil is concerned, it is likely that exchange will be supported shortly through a loan of $30,000,000 to $40,000,000 in the United States, and no surprise would attend overtures by Argentina for accommodation here. The task in which the South American countries are engaged, no less than in Japan, Holland and the United States, is one of restoring markets dislocated by the worldwide decline of commodity prices and the inability of consumers to buy on the scale of six months ago. Whether or not security prices here have "discounted" a large part of the after-war readjustment processes, it stands to reason that they will be unable to ignore new events as they occur.

Call money lent at 7 per cent. during the business session, with an advance reported for specially arranged loans afterward. Time funds were quoted slightly easier, although old rates did not change in actual transactions. The ability of the investment market to absorb large offerings was again demonstrated by the appearance of Denmark as a borrower of $25,000,000 at 8 per cent. for twenty-five years. Denmark is another country whose strong position in the exchange market during the war has been reversed, and the loan is for the purpose of financing the purchase of needed goods and materials.

As the steel industry is now the centre of much debate over the future course of commodity quotations, a great deal of interest is attached to the Autumn meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute, to be held today. It is possible that the exchange of ideas between the leading producers will have a bearing upon the market that will shortly be expressed in changes of some prices.

PAYING OIL STRUCK NEAR ARCTIC CIRCLE

RUNS 1,500 BARRELS DAILY

Two Geologists Lost in Search—Would Cost $50,000,000 to Lay Pipe Line.

Tucked in a corner of the frozen North, almost on the edge of the Arctic Circle, is the outpost of the petroleum industry, a well put down by the Imperial Oil Company of Canada, a subsidiary of the Standard of New Jersey, which taps a hitherto untried territory and which represents both a success and a tragedy in the far reaching quest for oil. Some 2,000 miles further north than any other real producing well on this continent, this most recent conquest of nature's stores is clouded with a certain degree of mystery which may not be dispelled until Spring breaks the ice grip in which the whole territory is now held. Almost the first word that the Imperial Oil Company had of the find came through those intangible new trails peculiar to the North country. The Indians, close by the geologists carried away the first word, and it passed from one to another until finally it reached the office of the company in Montreal. And with it came also the news that two of the geologists had been lost in this pioneer work in a new field.

The outcome, the bringing in of what apparently is a new pool to appease the insatiable appetite for petroleum the world over, is a testimonial to the struggle which the oil companies are making.

C. O. Stillman, President of the Imperial Company, on his arrival in New York yesterday told all of the facts which he learned concerning this most recent discovery, word of which reached here in unverified form several days ago.

"There are two big problems ahead of us," said Mr. Stillman. "The first is to determine if the deposits of petroleum in the far North are sufficiently large to justify intensive drilling, and the second is how to overcome the unusual difficulties presented by distance and weather to the movement of the oil to the refineries. I would say off-hand that it would cost approximately $50,000,000 to put into operation the necessary pipe line to bring the oil to a market.

"Fort Norman is in the Arctic Circle, about 1,500 miles north of Edmonton, and about 1,200 miles from the nearest railroad, which reaches MacMurray on the Athabasca. We started a party of drillers for that locality early in July, 1919, and it was with the greatest difficulty that they got the necessary skeleton equipment and supplies into the district by the following September. The drilling crew remained in camp throughout the long Winter in order to be on hand to begin work in the Spring of the present year. Since then drilling operations have been pushed as rapidly as possible.

"On Aug. 25, at a depth of 783 feet, oil in some quantity was found and began flowing out of the 6-inch pipe. After thirty minutes it was shut off and there were no facilities for accurately measuring the flow. It is the opinion of the drillers that the well ought to prove good for something between 1,000 and 1,500 barrels a day. Fortunately the oil is of light gravity, about 37 degrees, Baume.

"This is the furthest point north at which oil has ever been located, and it is of course too early yet to speculate on the probable value of the discovery. Many months must elapse before other test wells can be sunk to prove or disprove the theory that petroleum exists in this district in sufficient quantities to justify the enormous expenditures which will be required before any return on the initial outlay may be expected.

"Fort Norman is in the same latitude as the Klondike, and navigation on the Mackenzie River, on which it is located, is open only two months of the year. In January and February it is not unusual to have a temperature there of 60 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit.

"We consider this an important strike, and scientifically of much value. From a commercial point of view, however, it is not of immediate value, on account of its remoteness from any refinery outlet.

"If early reports are borne out, the well at Fort Norman is the largest ever obtained in Canada. The Imperial Oil Company has been conducting a systematic search for pools for many years, and has expended millions of dollars testing out localities selected by geologists."

COPPER PRICES DROP TO 15 1-4 A POUND

With One Exception, Metal Is Cheaper Than Since 1915, When It Was 12.80.

NO ADVANCE NOW IN SIGHT

Big Producers Will Curtail Production in Hope to Restore Market.

The price of copper dropped to 15¼ cents a pound yesterday, the lowest since March 28 of last year. The low price for 1919 was 14¾ cents on March 3 and 4 and the quotation hung under 15 cents for a period of several days. With the exception of this decline, there has not been such a low price for copper as the present since 1915, when the low for the metal was 12.80 cents a pound.

The present decline is a direct result of lack of buying power. Ever since the close of the war the copper producers have been at a disadvantage, since they had heavy stocks of the metal on hand and no commensurate demand to take up the slack so that operations could be carried on in a normal manner. There is nothing to indicate that there will be any improvement. The manufacturing companies which are large users of copper normally are either idle or are on a greatly curtailed basis of operations and foreign demand has not developed as a relief to the situation. Furthermore, consumers are not overanxious to stock up in anticipation of future demand and higher prices, since, with the big surplus stocks, they feel that it is better to let the copper companies assumed the burden of carrying the metal rather than take over this responsibility themselves. It is argued that the price cannot advance greatly until such time as the copper surplus is dissipated, and this does not appear likely for a long time to come.

Some of the big producers are holding for a higher price, arguing that there is no advantage in sacrificing the metal at near or under cost. In view of this attitude it is expected that operations by many of the large companies will be further curtailed.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Standard of Indiana.

In the houses which specialise in Standard Oil stocks, Standard of Indiana was the centre of attention yesterday, the advance of the day amounting to 25 points. This sharp upturn was a sequence to steady buying which has been going on for some time. Most of yesterday's purchasing was traceable to Chicago. Of course the incentive to this new buying move is the old possibility of a stock dividend. Evidently there is a growing belief that Indiana is about ready to take a step which has been awaited with interest for many weeks. As compared with low of last week Indiana at yesterday's closing price was up 50 points, and as compared with the low of the year, 620, there has been an advance of 125 points. For some reason there is more color to rumors concerning stock dividend distributions by Standard of Indiana than with any of the other Standard issues. Possibly this is due to the recollection of the record stock dividend of 2,900 per cent. made by Indiana in 1912. No one has been so rash as to make predictions of a like nature now. It is expected, however, that should a stock dividend be declared it will be at least 100 per cent. with a reduction in the par value of the shares from $100 to $25.

Steel Stocks Heavy.

Contrary to what might have been expected the steel group of stocks was heavy yesterday, reflecting to only a slight extent the excellent earnings statement made by Republic Iron and Steel for the third quarter of the year. Whatever may happen it is assured now that the steel companies will have a goodly margin over dividends to show for their operations in 1920. That there was not better buying of the steel issues on the strength of the Republic statement, which bore out strikingly the trend indicated in the earlier report by Lackawanna Steel, was probably attributable to the unfavorable news developments which cast a cloud over the entire market. The British strike reports of trouble in South America, and continued evidence of the decline in commodity prices here were factors which to be ignored would have necessitated finding the stock market in a decidedly happy frame of mind. And such optimism was decidedly lacking.

Bears Make Another Effort.

So far as the news of the day was concerned it furnished some hope to the bears and encouraged them in attempting to further depress prices. The entire list was under moderate pressure, and while there may have been some liquidation of long stock it is probable that a big portion of the selling was for short account. The recent decline in the industrials has been so heavy, however, that it is likely stocks have found their way into strong hands. At any rate the bears did not make any pronounced headway, the easing off being gradual, after a good opening, with no particularly sharp break in any of the leading issues.

Was Money Tight?

Call money moved along quietly throughout yesterday's session. It opened and renewed, ruled and closed all at 7 per cent. And then, after the formal close of business, there were some loans made at 8 per cent. Now the question arises: Was this advance an indication of tightness? In this particular case it would seem not, for the advance did not come during the formal session. Instead, it came afterwards, when the ordinary business of the day was over. Loans made on such occasions are largely matters of convenience to brokers. The brokers would be mildly embarrassed if they could not secure the accommodation. As for the banks, it is more trouble to handle these late loans than it is to handle those made in regular hours, for securities have to be checked over and certification made at a time when the day's routine is turning elsewhere. And the advance in the rate was only 1 per cent. over the rate charged for the early regular loans, and 1 per cent. for one day on $100,000 means an added cost to the borrower of $2.74, which is not such outrageous compensation for the extra trouble.

September Rail Reports.

Efforts are being made by many of the railroad companies to have their earnings reports for September ready by the first of the week so that some idea of what the rate increases have meant to them may be generally ascertained. Improvement is expected, but conservative students of the situation assert that a comparison of last month's earnings with those of the corresponding period in 1919 will not be true because of a number of things. First, they assert that in September last year freight was being routed almost arbitrarily, the shipper having but little say regarding the lines it was to travel over. Another point raised is that the dispute in regard to intrastate rates conforming with interstate rates has not been settled, and many roads will be unable to show what the increases in rates intended as general on all lines by the Interstate Commerce Commission would have been. Still another factor which will prevent the showing of a true picture is that there has been a decline in traffic on some systems which at this time last year were enjoying their heaviest business.

Keeping the Railroads Fit.

One of the items which probably will stand out in the annual reports of the railroads for 1920 and may show in some of the monthly reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission will be the increase in expenditures made by private managers for maintenance. It has been asserted repeatedly, and statistics show plainly, that during Federal control the carriers as a whole were undermaintained. That this condition is being offset as much as possible under existing conditions is the assertion of many railroad heads, who, although compelled to cut their expenditures to the bone, have nevertheless been able in many instances to substantially improve the condition of their lines.

St. Louis Southwestern's Recovery.

The sharp upturn in both the common and preferred shares of the St. Louis Southwestern Railway Company (the Cotton Belt), which netted gains of more than 2 and 4 points, respectively, yesterday, followed publication of President Herbert's statement showing that the company, after rejecting the six months' guarantee provided in the Transportation act, earned almost $2,000,000 more than that guarantee would have paid it. On this basis it appears that in the period of extended Government guarantee St. Louis Southwestern earnings were at an annual rate sufficient to pay 5 per cent. on the preferred stock and more than $2.75 a share on the common stock. This was generally considered as significant in view of the fact that these earnings were shown before the increases in freight and passenger rates went into effect last month.

Silver's Recovery.

Commercial bar silver, which sold down to 74¼ cents a fine ounce on Tuesday, got back to 81⅝ cents yesterday, a recovery in the two days of 7⅛ cents per ounce. Whether this rally marks a definite turn in the trend of this market or merely is one of these natural recoveries which occur from time to time in all declining markets, remains to be seen. Most dealers who are in close touch with affairs in the silver market incline to the latter theory, but dealers, of course, have been known to make mistakes in price movement forecasts before this. However, they are able to marshal a good deal of logic in support of their ideas, and, further, some of them have demonstrated a willingness to back their opinions with real money.

The Tendency of The Bond Market

Declines in commodity prices have already favorably affected prices of high grade bonds and notes. Nevertheless it is still possible to select obligations selling but little above the lowest prices level of the past twenty years. Such issues will guarantee a high income return which will have a steadily increasing purchasing power as commodity prices continue to decline, and also offer opportunities for future profits without speculation.

BRAZIL TO GET LOAN

Formal Announcement of $40,000,000 Financing Expected Next Week—First Offering in America.

The Kingdom of Denmark has completed arrangements with the National City Company for a loan of $25,000,000 which will be offered for public subscription within a few days, and the Government of Brazil is now winding up its negotiations with another group of local bankers for a loan of $40,000,000, which is expected to be formally announced some time next week.

The Danish loan, according to announcement made yesterday by the bankers, is to run twenty-five years and is to bear a coupon rate of 8 per cent. The purpose of the loan is to supply the Danish Government with dollars with which to meet the exchange situation, Danish exchange in this market now standing at a discount of approximately 50 per cent. The bonds, when they appear on the public subscription, will be offered at par and interest. They will be dated Oct. 15, 1920.

Under the terms of agreement with the National City Company, the Government of Denmark will pay to the National City Bank, as fiscal agent for the loan, a sinking fund sufficient to retire $1,250,000 principal amount of bonds annually, from Oct. 15, 1925, to maturity, payments to be made in semi-annual instalments beginning April 15, 1926. The fiscal agent will apply all sums received by it on account of the sinking fund, up to and including Oct. 15, 1935, for the purchase of bonds in the open market, if obtainable, at not more than 110 and interest in the case of bonds purchased on or before that time, and at not more than 107½ and interest in the case of bonds purchased thereafter.

Any sinking fund moneys not so applied prior to Aug. 15 in any year will be applied on the following Oct. 15 to the redemption of bonds by lot, for which purpose bonds will be called at 110 up to and including Oct. 15, 1935, and at 107½ thereafter. The bonds are callable, as a whole, on Oct. 15, 1925, or on any interest date thereafter prior to maturity, at 110 if called for redemption on or before Oct. 15, 1935, and at 107½ if called for redemption after that date. The sinking fund payments, as agreed to in the contract for the loan, are sufficient to redeem the entire loan.

The Brazilian financing has not yet been put into shape where a formal announcement may be made. A cable received from Rio de Janeiro a few days ago said that that country was arranging with New York bankers for the floatation of a $40,000,000 Government loan here. This advice has been confirmed and while it is admitted that the loan of this size is expected to be brought out here some time next week, no definite statement can be made just yet.

When this loan is finally offered it will be the first time that the Brazilian Government has offered its own securities in this market. Virtually all of the past Brazilian Government financing has been arranged and floated in London, where, before the war, the country enjoyed a high credit. It floated loans in London on the basis of 4½ per cent. to 5 per cent.

CURB MARKET PLANS DRAWN

The sign language and raucous cries of the Curb Market, unintelligible to all but the initiated and one of the sights of New York, may be a thing of the past within the next twelve months. For the building adjoining 25 Broad Street on the south, which houses a large number of Curb offices, has been sold, and the New York Curb Market Association is hastening its plans for the erection of a new home on the Trinity Place site purchased some months ago.

It was officially announced yesterday that plans for the new building have been drawn and the construction work will be started as soon as possible. The Association has obtained a loan of $800,000 from a trust company and has available in its treasury $500,000. The plans call for a structure to cost approximately $1,200,000.

Indications point to—

Lower Money Rates

TO secure continuance of the yields now procurable from bonds, it is our recommendation to buy Long Term Bonds, so as to enjoy the liberal yields for as long a period as possible.

We have prepared a special list of carefully selected Long Term Bonds which we will gladly send on request.

Wichita Falls, the judicial seat of Wichita County, situated northwest of Fort Worth, is one of the most progressive and rapidly growing cities in the state. It is important not only as a railroad center but also, as a consequence of its access to an abundant supply of cheap natural gas, has extensive and diversified manufactories. Excluding refineries and other plants related with the oil industry, there are approximately forty-five manufacturing concerns having a total investment of more than $7,000,000 and an annual gross output exceeding $20,000,000.

The annual business of the city can best be indicated by its banking statement, which shows that the six banks have combined deposits in excess of $32,000,000 and the clearings for thirty-eight weeks in 1919 approximated $146,000,000.

These bonds, issued for the construction of sewers, constitute a direct obligation of the city payable from a tax against all of the taxable property.

Conemaugh Power Co

First (Closed) Mortgage Ten-Year 8% Gold Bonds

Dated October 1, 1920 Due October 1, 1930

Interest payable April 1 and October 1 in New York

Guaranteed principal and interest by Penn Public Service Corporation

The Company agrees to pay interest without deduction for any Normal Federal Income Tax to an amount not exceeding 2% per annum which it may lawfully pay at the source.

Tax Free in Pennsylvania

For further information regarding these bonds, attention is called to the letter of Mr. F. T. Hepburn, President of the Company, copies of which will be furnished on request and which is summarised as follows:

The Conemaugh Power Company was formed for the purpose of providing additional power generating capacity for the Penn Public Service Corporation, which owns and operates an extensive electric light and power system, serving over fifty communities in western Pennsylvania. The territory served by the Penn Public Service Corporation has an aggregate population estimated to exceed 400,000.

The Conemaugh Power Company First Mortgage 8% Bonds will be secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a direct first mortgage on the Company's new power plant. It is estimated that the new station will cost about $4,500,000, of which over $1,400,000 has been actually expended on construction to date and which will be represented by the Conemaugh Power Company Preferred Stock.

The Penn Public Service Corporation will unconditionally guarantee both principal and interest of these bonds. Earnings of the Penn Public Service Corporation available to support the guarantee of payment of the interest on the Conemaugh Power Company First Mortgage 8% Bonds are officially reported as over 2½ times the amount required.

It is expected that temporary bonds will be available for delivery on or about November 11, 1920. Bonds are offered for delivery when, as and if issued and received by us, subject to the approval of counsel as to legal details and subject to the approval, insofar as it may be required, of the Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

We recommend these bonds for investment

ROAD EARNS MORE WITH NO GUARANTEE

Cotton Belt Has $1,900,039 in Excess of Amount Retainable Under Federal Aid.

CENSURES ADMINISTRATION

Charges It Neglected Maintenance During Control—Cut Upkeep Nearly $2,000,000.

In a statement covering the operation of the St. Louis Southwestern Railway Company from March 1 to Aug. 1 of this year—the period of extended Governmental guarantee of standard return—J. M. Herbert, President, shows that by refusing the guarantee and operating independently the road, which is known as the Cotton Belt, earned $1,900,039 more than it would have been able to retain under the terms of the guarantee. Mr. Herbert also condemned the Railroad Administration for inefficient management of the road during the period of Federal control. He said in part:

"Maintenance of this company's property was very seriously neglected and mismanaged during the period of Federal control, and upon termination, March 1, 1920, it was found necessary to appropriate very liberal sums for maintenance of way and structures, as well as maintenance of equipment, in order to make good the neglected maintenance during Federal operation and control.

"Of the total excess income earned, $1,593,285.24 was spent in maintenance of the company's property, in excess of the amount it would have been permitted to spend under terms of the guarantee and $306,753.75 excess cash income was produced, in addition to the amount appropriated for maintenance.

"The amount spent and appropriated for maintenance of way and structures for ten months, March to December, 1920, are equal to an annual expenditure of $6,537,323, compared with $4,127,516 spent by the Railroad Administration for the calendar year of 1919. Eliminating the increased rates of pay included in the expenditures and appropriation for 1920, leaves $6,032,134 spent on the same basis of pay as 1919, or an increase compared with the Administration for 1919 of $1,904,618.

"Thus it will be noted that had the roadway and structures been maintained during 1919 up to the standard of 1920, the Railroad Administration instead of producing net operating income of $1,562,159 would have shown a deficit of $342,459. Expenditures for maintenance of equipment for 1920 (on the same basis of pay as 1919) will show an increase of $364,746 in excess of the Administration expenditures for 1919, so that their deficit on the corporate 1920 basis for maintenance, both roadway and equipment, would be $707,205."

BREAK IN COTTON AFTER 2-DAY RISE

Heavy Market Closes with Net Declines of 35 to 45 Points.

Two days of recovery appeared to be about all the cotton market could stand, for after the advances of Tuesday and Wednesday yesterday's market was heavy, breaking 95 to 110 points in the middle of the afternoon. In the last hour it came back part way, recovering half to two-thirds of the extreme losses, but still holding at net declines of 35 to 45 points for the active months. Incidentally, there was much less optimism at the close yesterday than there had been at the final of the preceding day.

Liverpool, which came in reactionary, started the downward swing and largely accounted for the weak opening, which showed the list down 15 to 40 points. These opening prices proved to be the best of the day, for after the start there was general selling from local and Southern sources, with some foreign liquidation thrown in for good measure. The market sagged all through the morning and then broke sharply in the afternoon when word of the threatened railroad trainmen's strike in England was received.

On the bad afternoon break October got down to 18.75, December to 18.40, and some of the late months, like July, for instance, to 17.95, this latter reflecting a net loss of 110 points. In the closing trading short covering started up and there was a substantial rally. This was helped along by more favorable reports from abroad.

Southern markets were again inclined to heaviness, and while Charleston reported a price up 75 points on the day, Galveston, with a loss of a full cent a pound, more than offset this sentimentally. Also, several of the Southern markets were down 25 to 50 points and the tone was not so good as on Wednesday.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Day.
Oct.	19.10	19.15	18.75	19.15@ ..	19.50

Southern spot markets were: Galveston, 21c; New Orleans, 19c; Savannah, 20c; Augusta, 19.25c; Memphis, 20c; Houston, 19.50c; Little Rock, 20c.

Liverpool cables: Spot cotton was in more demand at 15.21d for middling. Sales 3,000 bales, of which American 2,000. Imports 18,000 bales, of which American 17,000. Future opened barely steady, 2 points down to 12 points up and closed steady, 1 to 23 points down on the day. Prices: Oct. 14.42, Dec. 14.27d, March 14.02d, May 13.88d. Manchester Yarns and cloths were quiet.

The New York Stock Exchange membership of William L. Wilson has been proposed for transfer to Henry Picoli for $101,000 and that of Frank G Webster to Charles S. WHEAT DECLINES FURTHER.

British Strike Talk Causes Decrease of 5 to 5¾ Cents Per Bushel.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Sharp downturns in the price of wheat took place today largely as the result of likelihood that British strike troubles would spring. The market closed unsettled 5c. to 5⅝c. lower with December 197⅝ to 198 and March 189⅝ to 190. Corn finished 1⅜c. down to ¼c. advance and oats off to ⅛ to ⅜c. and provisions at a setback of 10 to 45 cents.

Heavy selling developed in the wheat market after mid-day when news was circulated that British Railway Employes and Transport workers had decided to join the miners' strike unless the Government opens up negotiations with the miners by Saturday. Bear pressure on the market was increased further by reports that Canadian millers were offering flour for three to six months delivery at rates equal to twenty per cent. a bushel below present prices of wheat.

Profit taking lead to something of a rally near the close, but otherwise throughout the day the bulls were at a disadvantage except for a brief time early while a leading elevator interest turned to the buying side, and to some extent discredited assertions that buying powers for all commodities were being reduced to a minimum.

Corn and oats were depressed in sympathy with wheat and sold at new low levels for the season.

SPAIN sent U.S. in 1919 $49,000,000. of her Products

SPAIN is today entering upon a period of great commercial and industrial growth which is reflected in her trade with the United States. In two years her exports to this country, of which the most important is olive oil, increased 100%. Spain's growing industries are creating an increased demand for our manufactures and staples.

—Almost half of our exports to Spain consists of unmanufactured cotton for Spain's numerous textile factories.

In the two largest cities of Spain, Barcelona and Madrid, are located branches of the Mercantile Bank of the Americas.

The Care of Your Securities

The ownership and supervision of securities involve both risk and detail labor.

By depositing securities with us in safekeeping, you are relieved, for a moderate fee, from all routine care, while at the same time you retain complete control of them.

Your securities are always available to you without your being present. You may direct their sale, or transfer their ownership, as readily as you may transfer by check a sum standing to your credit.

We will, at your request, attend to the sale or purchase of such securities as you may direct.

We will collect your income, forward it to you or credit your account, endeavoring, as well, to keep you advised if any of your bonds are called for payment prior to their maturity, and if you are entitled to subscribe to issues of stock, or of your right to convert your bonds into stock.

At your request, we will from time to time make an impartial examination of your investments and recommend to you such changes as seem to us advisable.

An explanatory booklet will be sent on request.

Are Your Investments As Safe As Your Life Insurance?

THIS is a good test for you or any investor to apply to your securities. You naturally demand that the safety of your life insurance be above suspicion. Why not apply the same standard to your investments? Are they not equally important?

For thirty-eight years S. W. Straus & Co. have pursued with unvarying success an unvarying policy of dealing only in safe investments.

The fact that no investor has ever lost a dollar on any security purchased of us, or suffered a delay in payment of either principal or interest, is the best evidence of this policy.

In times like these, demand unquestionable safety and make sure your investments are worry-proof as well as safe. Call or write for a new booklet which we have just published, which tells how $1,000, $500, or any other sum may be invested with complete safety and freedom from worry. Ask for

OLD BRONX ESTATE SOLD AT AUCTION

Hebrew Orphan Asylum Enlarges Holdings by Acquiring Twenty-two Lots.

405 PLOTS BRING $83,233

Active bidding in the Vesey Street Salesroom yesterday characterized the auction offering of the former Schieffelin estate property in the East Bronx section. Joseph P. Day was the auctioneer and the 405 lots brought more than $83,233, an average of a trifle more than $205 a lot.

The lots are on Laconia Avenue, East Chester Road, Crawford, Needham, Kingsland, Tiemann, Gunther and Mickle Avenues, Oakley Street, and from East 221st to 227th Streets. They are about three blocks east of the 225th Street subway station of the White Plains Avenue line and near the Baychester Avenue station of the New York, Westchester and Boston Railroad. There was an excellent attendance at the sale and the last lot was knocked down at 4:15 o'clock.

The Hebrew Orphan Asylum was one of the largest buyers, acquiring twenty-five lots for $3,300. About a year ago the asylum purchased 110 lots from East 224th Street to 226th Street, near Laconia Avenue, for the erection of new buildings. This plot was increased at yesterday's sale by twenty-two lots, and by their acquisition the asylum squared out its holdings along the southerly boundary. The purchase involved a large plot running through the block from 225th to 226th Street, east of Laconia Avenue; a four-lot gore at the northwest corner of Shieffelin Avenue and 225th Street, and the northeast corner of Shieffelin Avenue and 225th Street, a plot of about seven lots.

Salvadore Esposito bought the first lot offered, the southeast corner of East Chester Road and 224th Street, paying $550. He also took the adjoining avenue lot for $475. The northeast corner of East Chester Road and 223d Street went for $475, and inside avenue lots between 223d and 224th Streets brought $375 to $475. Lots on the north side of 223d Street, between East Chester Road and Schieffelin Avenue, went for $175 to $350.

The highest prices paid were for the northeast and northwest corners of East Chester Road and 222d Street, each of which went for $700. The northwest corner of Schieffelin Avenue and 223d Street sold for $225 and the same price was paid for the southwest corner of that avenue and 224th Street. Inside avenue lots between 223d and 224th Streets brought $175, and lots on the south side of 224th Street averaged $150 to $300 apiece. For the northwest corner of Laconia Avenue and 224th Street $400 was paid.

Among the buyers were Myrtle Ralston, Robert Schift, Mrs. M. L. Mason, N. Victor Coronevale, Frank A. Riley, Martin P. Owens, Alfredo Pitretto, Mrs. Katherine Tisanti, Antonio Camperlengo, Charles Rappaport, Philip Cohen, Mrs. Anna Rupp and Luigi Cerullo.

Realty Notes.

Deeds recorded yesterday reveal that Norman S. Goldberger, President of the Fidelio Brewing Company, was the successful bidder at the recent auction of the company's brewing plant on First Avenue, Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth Streets.

Bailey, Directors) is the buyer of the five-story building with stores at the northeast corner of Washington and Morris Streets, sold recently by Emeline A. Eddy. James S. Anderson & Co. and Robert F. Bonsall were the brokers.

Augustus F. Schwarzler, Bronx builder, is the buyer of the four-story dwelling at 91 Park Avenue, reported sold yesterday. Mr. Schwarzler will rebuild the house.

COLBY WILL DEFEND DIPLOMATS' 'RIGHTS'

THREATENS TO GO TO COURT

Holds They Are Immune from Examination by Law Antedating Prohibition.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State, who was away from Washington when the Treasury Department issued an order to Collectors of Customs to examine the personal baggage of foreign diplomatic representatives to see if they contained intoxicating beverages, has taken up the cudgel in behalf of the diplomats and insists that the Treasury Department is wrong. Mr. Colby was today emphatic in declaring that the Treasury Department had no rights to trespass on the privileges accorded diplomatic representatives by international law and practice, and he intimated broadly that if necessity arose he would take the matter to the courts.

It is unusual for two departments of the Government to become involved in a public controversy. Ordinarily such differences are adjusted by the President, but in this case the Treasury Department, backed by a decision of the Attorney General, contends that it is obliged to enforce the Volstead act even against diplomatic officers, while the State Department holds that the rights of accredited diplomatic representatives and the members of their households cannot be superseded by ny national enactment.

The incident has caused a flutter in the Diplomatic Corps, which is objecting to the attitude of the Treasury Department as a matter of principle and not in order to permit the importation of wines and liquors for the personal use of members of the corps.

To newspapermen, Secretary Colby said today that the baggage of diplomatic officers was "absolutely immune" from examination, and would continue to be immune from interference on the part of revenue agents. He emphasized the sacredness of the rule of international law "antedating the recent amendment to the Constitution, under which the personal effects of diplomatic officers and members of their establishments are wholly exempt from investigation."

He declared that it might become necessary for the State Department to invoke that ancient rule, which is a part of the law of the United States, as international law is recognized as a part of the law of the land, if Government agents attempt to enforce the prohibition measures against diplomats.

Mr. Colby said that the principle of the law conferring the right of immunity from search will be vindicated by appropriate methods without waste of force.

Mr. Colby has already informed the Treasury Department that it has gone far in its interpretation of the law as affecting diplomats.

SAID HE DREW AMERICA INTO WAR ON AUSTRIA

Macchi di Cellere Thus Quoted in a Book by His Widow—Intervened on Fiume.

ROME, Oct. 20.—The Countess Macchi di Cellere, widow of Count V. Macchi di Cellere, former Italian Ambassador to the United States, is publishing a book concerning her husband's work in Washington.

The Countess says that the Ambassador wrote to Tommaso Tittoni, then Italian Foreign Minister: "America's declaration of war to Austria is due to me." She adds that the success which she says the Count attained was all the more notable because Austria had avoided any friction with America, which had a marked appreciation of Austria, while it knew and understood Italy little.

The Countess says that the Ambassador obtained the first loan made by the American Treasury to the Allies, that given to Italy, and says: "And Italy might also have had American troops, which Ambassador Page (Thomas Nelson Page, former American Ambassador to Italy) was the first to offer."

The book contains an interesting diary of the Paris Peace Conference, which Count di Cellere wrote daily without knowing that it would be printed, rendering constant homage to what he termed the coherent and straightforward policy of Baron Sidney Sonnino of the Italian peace delegation.

The Countess recalls the evening of Oct. 20, 1919, when, although ill, the Count dictated to her from his sickbed a telegram for Signor Tittoni, who was then in Paris fighting to obtain a solution of the Fiume question acceptable to Italy, that is, territorial contiguity between Fiume and the mother country. Signor Tittoni had intrusted Count di Cellere with the task of overcoming President Wilson's reluctance to such a solution, the Countess declares, adding that the Count worked indefatigably to attain his object in several conversations with the then American Secretary of State, Robert Lansing, "who was always the enlightened and faithful friend of Italy."

The Countess says that the Count's message to Signor Tittoni explained the details of his efforts. Twenty-five minutes after dictating the communication Count di Cellere died.

BOMBS NEAR MILAN HOTEL.

Raids on Anarchist Quarters Carried Out in Naples.

MILAN, Italy, Oct. 20.—A bag containing five bombs, two tubes of explosives and several pounds of material for shrapnel was found today under a bench in a public garden near the Hotel Cavour, where bombs recently were exploded while the delegates to the Congress of the League of Nations Societies were stopping in the hotel.

NAPLES, Oct. 20.—The police, following evidence obtained of a vast anarchist plot, today searched the houses of many noted extremists and sequestrated a large quantity of pamphlets containing anarchist and Communist propaganda. The pamphlets were written in Russian, Italian, German and English, the last named being intended for transmission to the United States. Some of the pamphlets were entitled, "Spartacus," "What the Anarchists Want," "The Russian Revolution," and "Bolshevism and a Proletariat Dictatorship."

Many Hungarians and Russians have been arrested and expelled. Most of them had credentials, letters and safe conducts signed by Bela Kun, former Communist dictator of Hungary, or Russians high in the Soviet councils.

Chinese Girl Jumps from Airplane.

MENLO PARK, Cal., Oct. 21.—Frances E. Lee, a Chinese girl, was killed when she jumped from a falling airplane today. John Courtney, pilot of the machine, suffered probable fatal injuries when the machine dashed to the ground. A wing of the plane collapsed, according to witnesses. The girl was a student aviatrix.

LAYS DEFEAT TO WOMEN.

Social Democratic Leader Analyzes Vote in Austria.

VIENNA, Oct. 20.—Leaders of the Christian Socialist Party, which was victorious in the Parliamentary elections last Sunday, are confident that they will be able to induce the more conservative elements of the opposition to join in a coalition government, in view of the grave internal situationn of the country. Dr. Otto Bauer, leader of the Social Democrats, has announced that his party will not participate in the new government.

In analyzing the defeat of the Social Democrats, Dr. Bauer declares that out of 309,000 wives of members of the party, or women members of organized labor, 142,000 voted against the Social Democrats. This fact, he says, was responsible for the defeat of the organization in the election.

Spanish Prince Corporal in Army.

MADRID, Oct. 20.—Prince Alfonso, eldest son of the King, will tomorrow join his regiment as a corporal and will participate in the manoeuvres now going on in the vicinity of the Guadarrama Mountains, near Toledo. King Alfanso will witness the manoeuvers.

FOUR ROBBERS SHOT, BANK LOOT SAVED

One Killed, Three Caught, by Citizens of Ohio Town—Bank Clerk Wounded.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 21.—George ("Jiggs") Losteiner, said to be under indictment in many States on charges of murder and robbery, is under arrest at a local hospital, shot through the neck as the result of a street battle at Bedford, ten miles from here, late today, which resulted in the death of one of Losteiner's companions, the serious wounding and capture of two others and the probable fatal shooting of a bank clerk. More than 200 shots were fired.

The battle was the culmination of one of the most spectacular bank robberies ever staged in this State, during which eight bandits held up the Bedford branch of the Cleveland Trust Company.

William Petrie, a bank clerk, was the victim of a shotgun in the hands of a citizen who had answered the burglar alarm and mistook him for one of the bandits as he emerged from the bank. Physicians say he is dying.

The robbery occurred just as the bank was closing. Six of the gang entered with drawn revolvers and ordered the five employes and three customers to the rear of the building. The employes were forced to lie on their faces and the customers were placed under guard in a room. Then, seizing all the money in sight, said to amount to $50,000, the bandits rushed into the street.

Almost simultaneously George C. Flickinger, manager of the branch, touched the burglar alarm, which sounded in every downtown business house of Bedford.

E. W. Porter, a tire dealer, fatally shot Joyce, who was at the wheel of the waiting automobile. Unable to start the engine, the other bandits fled, leaving the money intact in the machine. During the ensuing battle Losteiner, Harry Stone and an unidentified man were wounded, R. W. Osborn, proprietor of a grocery, bringing down two of them.

The men appeared to be armed with more than one revolver, as when they emptied one during their flight they quickly produced another and returned the fire of the merchants.

All Marked At One Price

When we began this great sale we had no idea that it would assume such tremendous proportions as it progressed. Manufacturers who had large stocks on hand that were not moving because of an unresponsive market, were attracted by the enormous turnover that our big 2d floor shop is capable of making, and our policy of spot cash transactions. The result is that we have been able to add big and complete stocks to this sale from time to time, which we were able to purchase at practically our own price, and thus make this sale a more powerful attraction each day. You will be astonished at the wonderful values you see here. And we positively guarantee that they cannot be duplicated anywhere in New York or money refunded.
